Mancheno Ends Ecuador Fight; Resigns Post

Former President Plans To Return

QUITO, Ecuador, Sep. 2 (AP)—Authoritative sources said tonight that Col. Carlos Mancheno, head of Ecuador's de facto government has resigned and issued a cease-fire order to troops under his command.

There was no official confirmation of this report, although it became apparent late today that Mancheno's forces were being defeated and counter revolutionary troops could march into Quito with practically no opposition.

(In Buenos Aires, former President Jose Maris Velasco Ibarra, deposed by Mancheno in a bloodless coup d'etat nine days ago, said he had received the news of Mancheno's reverses in Ecuador and would leave Argentina to return to his country on the first plane available tomorrow.)

Mancheno and all the troops loyal to his regime left the city earlier in the day in an effort to hold back the counter revolutionaries. Mancheno himself was understood to have gone to "the center of operations" to take personal command of his forces.

Suffers Severe Blow

The Mancheno faction suffered a severe blow when a detachment of the Ricaauarte Batallion, which had been sent from Quito to the Ambato sector south of the city, joined the counter-revolutionary cause and marched to join its advancing forces in the north.

Anti-Mancheno demonstrations flared in the streets of Quito as the counter revolutionaries approached the city.

Newspapers in the capital, which had suspended publication because of censorship imposed by the Mancheno government, announced today they would resume publication tomorrow morning and, at the same time, issued an appeal for order.

Newspaper proprietors said the appeal had been issued because they expected the counter revolutionary forces to enter the capital at any moment and felt that any civilian disorders might cause unnecessary loss of life and property damage.

The newspaper appeal for order was understood to have been issued at the request of Maldonado Tomayo, who said he was motivated by the precarious situation in Quito and explained that so few police remained in the capital that they could be overpowered easily in the event of anti-Mancheno rioting. The labor minister was reported to have told the newspapers that his principal mission was to prevent disorders in Quito.

Nothing was heard directly from Mancheno, the former defense minister who deposed President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra in a bloodless coup d'etat nine days ago and established himself at the head of a de facto government when Velasco Ibarra "resigned" and went into exile.

The counter revolutionaries broadcast from Ambato today that they had decisively defeated Mancheno's forces in a six-hour battle there yesterday. Ambato is 70 miles south of the capital.

Police Use Tanks

(In Guayaquil, Ecuador's chief port and largest city, it was reported that police had used tanks to break up anti-Mancheno demonstrations in Quito.

(Reliable sources in Guayaquil said a "political solution" was being sought and that Mancheno might resign.)

Maldonado Tomayo said:

"The Mancheno government has no intention of continuing to move against the will of the people and is taking the necessary steps to arrive at an understanding to safeguard, in the most adequate way, the interests of the country."

However, other officials of the de facto regime claimed its forces in the south had reached Riobamba and had that city under control. The counter revolution started at Riobamba Saturday, and spread rapidly to several other sectors of the country.

Mancheno had seized power with the apparent full support of the army and constabulary, but it was in those forces that the counter revolution originated, its leaders demanding a return to constitutional government.

Space Ships, Projectiles "Theoretically Possible"

Work On Weapons Of Future Urged

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2. (AP) — Two Johns Hopkins scientists said today it is "theoretically possible" to arm America with new guided missiles like space ships or projectiles navigating themselves by stars. But—

They said vast problems of propulsion, launching and guidance must be overcome through "years" of research before even simpler types of supersonic guided missiles —other than the German V-2 type —become operational realities.

Dr. Lawrence R. Hafstad and Dr. Daniel T. Sigley already are looking over the possibilities. National security dictates, they said, that these be explored "to the limit."

Hafstad is director of the Johns Hopkins University applied physics laboratory which has a project on guided missiles research. Sigley is a member of the staff.

Face "Tough Job"

Looking beyond present American - developed gravity - powered "glide bombs" and the German rocket-powered V-2 type weapon, Hafstad said:

"We face a tough job. x x x technical men with experience in the guided missiles field, though confident of ultimate success, insist on talking in terms of years rather than months."

Nevertheless, said Hafstad in a report issued by the laboratory, the nation should push ahead and tackle the problems without "discouragement" because while much remains to be done "good progress is being made" and:

"In the present international atmosphere it should be obvious that failure to solve the guided missiles problem might prove very expensive indeed."

Both Hafstad and Sigley said researchers must even consider the possibility of projecting missiles beyond the influence of the earth and its atmosphere.

And Sigley told a reporter that the following things are "theoretically possible" if scientists perfect the proper mechanisms of propulsion, launching and guidance in years to come:

1. "Satellite" vehicles or space ships, launched at speeds capable of getting them beyond the earth's gravitational pull and into an area where they would circle the earth like a celestial object—ready to zeem down and spread destruction at the bidding of men or robots directing them by remote control.

Such man-less vehicles, he said, conceivably could also be used for reconnaissance—employing built-in television and other equipment whose "story" would be relayed to earthly observers.

2. Missiles that would be self-guided by means of built-in telescopes and other instruments that would automatically track a course to an objective target by reference to the stars, the moon and the planets.

3. Projectiles which could be made to follow celestial "highways" made by the invisible lines of magnetic force which surround our planet. It is possible, said Sigley, that a projectile might be made to follow a line of force to the point where the line passed over the target—from which point it could be directed by automatic means to swoop down and destroy.

4. Guided missiles that would "ride" a radar beam to a target. Or —if the target were beyond radar range—missiles that would follow a hyperbolic course computed automatically within the missile after it had passed the converging point of two radar waves at some point in the sky.

May Include Television

5. Missiles that would have built-in means of "homing" on a target, once they were guided to the general area. Such "homing" techniques, he said conceivably could include television, whereby the missile would head for a target as soon as it had televised an area exactly matching a picture of the area carried within the missile.

Another possible means, said Sigley, would be for the missile to "home" on a target with the aid of a heat sensitive element that would

15 Others Are Seriously Hurt

DUGALD, Man., Sept. 2 (AP)—The worst train wreck in Western Canada's history killed at least 35 persons and injured seriously 15 others here late last night when a Canadian National Railways Campers' special collided head on with a stationary transcontinental passenger train at this flag station 20 miles east of Winnipeg.

The west-bound 13-coach special from Minaki, Ont., and other Lake of the Woods resorts was traveling 30 miles an hour when it plowed into the standing express shortly after 11 p. m. as the transcontinental train was discharging passengers.

Two of the nine wooden coaches of the special caught fire. The flames quickly spread to other coaches, a grain elevator and nearby oil storage tanks, some of which exploded.

Twenty-seven bodies had been removed from the wreckage tonight, 24 of them so burned and mutilated that identification other than by dentures and finger rings was deemed impossible.

Some passengers said acetylene lamps used to illuminate the wooden coaches caused the blaze.

"When the crash came, all those lamps burst into flame right away," an unidentified yardman declared.

Early rescuers found flames shooting 50 feet high. Canoes, duffel bags and other vacationers' baggage was scattered over the right of way. The two locomotives were locked together, the baggage car of the transcontinental train raised partly over the tender ahead.

The screams of the hurt and trapped came from the piled up wreckage, but the heat of the flames drove most of the rescuers back.

Telephone operators summoned ambulances, doctors, police and firemen from Winnipeg, St. Boniface and Transcona, 10 miles to the west. The firemen pumped water on the wreckage from a nearby ditch, but it was not until nearly noon that the 35 bodies had been dug from the still sizzling wreckage.

The 15 injured were taken to St. Boniface hospital in trucks, cars and ambulances. Only the most seriously hurt were hospitalized.

Two of the bodies were decapitated and only three were identifiable. The three victims were identified as Gaye Lewis, 64, of Transcona, Man., engineer of the special, a Mrs. Albert Simpson of Winnipeg, who died enroute to the hospital, and Donna Barlow, 17, St. Vital, Man.

So far as is known all victims were Canadians.

U. S. Rebuffs Soviet Protest Of German Aid

Plans To Raise Economic Level

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (AP) — The United States, rejecting a Russian protest, served notice today that Moscow cannot veto the British-American plans for economic revival of Western Germany.

A U. S. note said this country "is unable to accept the thesis that nothing can be done" simply because the Soviet Union has not consented to the plans.

At the same time, this government accused the Soviet Union of failing to live up to its agreement, made by Generalissimo Stalin at Potsdam in 1945, to treat Germany as a single economic unit.

The American views were expressed in a letter sent by Undersecretary of State Lovett to Semen K. Tsarapkin, minister counselor and acting head of the Soviet Embassy here.

The note from Lovett was a reply to a Soviet protest delivered August 18 against agreement by the United States and Britain on raising the level of industry in Western Germany and particularly the critical Ruhr area.

The letter was made public by the State Department today and subsequently there were two other developments bearing upon relationships among the big three powers:

1. It was learned that United States and British experts seeking to boost coal production from the Ruhr mines have tentatively agreed here to British-American partnership control of the mining operations. The British at present have exclusive control. Under the new plan the pits in the British zone would be under supervision of a joint Anglo-American board but most, if not all, of the actual on-the-scene direction of coal mining would be done by Germans. American experts have argued that this is the best way to handle morale of German miners.

The mine talks are expected to be completed late this week. Press Officer Lincoln White said he understood plans for boosting Ruhr coal production to aid European economic recovery were about wound up and needed only to be reduced to final paper form.

2. It was also learned that the United States is asking the British to retain troops in Greece—they have an estimated 6,000 there—until the United States position in that strife ridden land is sufficiently strong and secure. An estimated 6,000 British soldiers remain in the country and the labor government previously said they would all be withdrawn by autumn. American officials feel that even though they are only a symbolic force their withdrawal in the immediate future would prove very upsetting to the Greek situation which should have considerably more time to settle down under the effects of the American anti-Communist aid program.

The American position on raising the level of German industry came as no surprise to Washington diplomats. Only last week London and Washington announced that they intended to build up the German economy to a production stage equivalent to output in the pre-war year 1936.

Replying to a Russian protest, the United States note declared that the American objectives in making the production changes are not in conflict with the 1945 Big Three agreement at Potsdam for eliminating the German war potential, developing peaceful German industries and helping the German people to maintain themselves.

"The Soviet government is certainly aware of the importance of German production to the economic rehabilitation of Europe. This is particularly true in respect of coal from the Ruhr area of Germany.

"Furthermore the failure of the Soviet government to implement the Berlin agreement has placed upon the U. S. a heavy financial burden in the occupation of Germany."

He said that the United States could not accept the thesis that it could do nothing to ease his burden or carry out other activities "within the framework of the Berlin agreement" for the economic reconstruction of Europe "until the consent of the Soviet Government has been obtained.

19 Nations Sign Defense Treaty To Outlaw War

Secretary Marshall Signs First For U. S.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 2. (AP)—Representatives of 19 of the 21 American Republics, acting in a concerted effort to outlaw war in the Western Hemisphere, signed today the mutual defense treaty framed at the Inter-American conference at Quitandinha.

The statesmen signed the history-making pact in the paneled reception hall of Itamaraty Palace, Brazil's foreign office.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall was the first United States representative to affix his signature to the document. The other American signers were Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich); Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex); Warren R. Austin, chief United States Delegate to the United Nations; Rep. Sol Bloom (D-NY) and William Pawley, U. S. Ambassador to Brazil.

The participating nations in the order of their signing were:

Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Peru, El Salvador, Panama, Paraguay, Venezuela, Chile, Honduras, Cuba, Boliva, Colombia, Mexico, Haiti, Urugay, Argentina, Brazil and the United States.

The United States was to have signed farther up the list, but its delegation was absent from the chamber when its name twice was called, and finally penned the last signatures on the document.

The only two American Republics which did not sign the treaty were Nicaragua, which did not receive an invitation to the Inter-American conference because of the Pan-American Union's dissatisfaction with its current regime, and Ecuador, now in the throes of a counter-revolution against its new revolutionary government.

The treaty provides that an armed attack against any of the signator nations will be considered an attack against them all; that collective military defense measures will be taken in case of an armed attack within a geographically-defined security zone, which includes all the Republics, ocean territory and most of the Western Hemisphere polar regions, or within the territory of an American State."

Thieves Have Trouble

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 2 (AP)—Yeggs who failed to crack a safe with an acetylene torch at the Copco Steel and Engraving Company during the week-end left this message scrawled on the safe door with soot from the torch: "Get a safe we can open."

"U. S. Will Keep Strong," President Tells Latins

Gives Four-Point American Policy

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 2 (AP)—President Truman told Latin American delegates today that "many of the remaining peoples of Europe and Asia live under the shadow of armed aggression," and that the United States was determined to keep its military might to bulwark a policy based on a desire for lasting world peace.

He laid down a "frank" four-point declaration of American policy at the final session of the interAmerican conference at Quitandinha, then drove to Rio De Janeiro.

In a post-war world which Mr. Truman said has "brought us bitter disappointment and deep concern" the President gave these as the major points of his country's policy:

1. The providing of economic help to Europe through the Marshall Plan and Truman Doctrine. He expressed hope that the Latin American Republics would be prepared to contribute to its success.

2. Fidelity to the United Nations.

Will Defend Peace

3. The retention of United States military strength. He said the traditional aversion of the United States to violence "must not be misread as a lack of determination on our part to live up to the obligations of the U. N. charter or an invitation to others to take liberties with the foundations of international peace."

4. Increased economic collaboration with the countries of the Western Hemisphere.

The brilliantly lighted flags of all the American nations formed the backdrop for the address in the huge circular hall of the mammoth resort hotel at Quitandinha. The gold braid and khaki of the military vied with the sombre black attire of the diplomats in the crowd of 2,500 who heard the President.

Mrs. Truman, in a dark navy blue suit and gray hat, and daughter, Margaret, in a gray suit, sat side by side in a seat of honor directly behind the delegates.

The President prefaced his declaration on foreign policy with congratulations to the conference delegates for their work in achieving a treaty on hemisphere defense, which he said was a plain warning to any "possible aggressor" and an "example of good neighborliness and international amity."

"We find that a number of nations are still subjected to a type of foreign domination which we fought to overcome," he said, "many of the remaining peoples of Europe and Asia live under the shadow of armed

2 Men Are Held For Attempting To Lynch Negro

Superior Court Judge Frees Six

JACKSON, N. C., Sept. 2 (AP) —A Superior Court Judge today dismissed charges against six of seven white men accused in the attempted lynching of a negro but had the Northampton County Jailer arrested and bound the seventh defendant over to a grand jury.

The action was taken by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, who sat today as a special committing magistrate on Governor R. Gregg Cherry's commission, after the Northampton County Grand Jury last month found no cause for action against the seven.

Cunningham Is Held

The judge, in freeing six of the accused men, ordered that Joe Cunningham, assistant theatre manager at nearby Rich Square where race tension has run high this year, be held for action by the Warren County Grand Jury on September 15. Warrenton, county seat of Warren County, is approximately 42 miles west of this northeastern North Carolina community.

Arrest of A. W. Edwards, elderly jailer, from whom 22-year-old Godwin (Buddy) Bush was taken by an armed and masked band last May 23 came as a surprise move in a hushed and crowded courtroom. It followed testimony by Edwards today that there had been no force or threats against him when the negro was taken from jail.

Judge Frizzelle stopped the six men who were freed just as they arose to leave the court room. "Before you go," the judge said, "I want to make this observation. This court is passing only on probable cause. It is perfectly apparent x x x that the only reason you are allowed to go free is because of the incompetence of Mr. Cunningham's confession as it concerns you. If the statement had been made in the presence of the other six, it would have been admitted—or if it had been made before the accomplishment of the conspiracy, it would have been admitted."

In advising Edwards of the bench warrant against him, Judge Frizzelle said the jailer had done nothing to prevent the masked men from taking Bush. "Not once did you beg them to desist. x x x you led them into the negro's cell and pointed him out. I couldn't leave this courtroom with my self-respect intact if I did not hold you under a bench warrant."

Jailer Is Arrested

Jailer Edwards was arrested by Sheriff J. C. Stephenson on a bench warrant issued by Judge Frizzelle. It charged him with conspiracy in breaking and entering a jail and with aiding and abetting in the breaking and entering. The jailer's case will also be considered by the Warren County Grand Jury.

Cunningham is charged with conspiracy to break and enter a jail and with breaking and entering a jail with intent to kill or injure Bush, the same counts on which all seven of the original defendants were charged. Each of the two counts carries a maximum imprisonment of 15 years. All of the seven defendants earlier today had pleaded not guilty when the charges were read.

Soviet Failure To Back Atomic Pact Is Blamed

McMahon Declares Proposal 'Just'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (AP)—Senator McMahon (D-Conn) said tonight the United States is making more atomic bombs because Russia has not agreed to American proposals for their control.

"That those proposals were right and decent and just," he asserted, "is testified to by the fact that every nation except Russia has supported them."

McMahon, co-author of the act for domestic control of atomic energy, was the last of eight speakers during a half-hour radio rally staged by the Democratic party as a warm-up for the 1948 campaign.

The other orators assailed the Republican-controlled Congress for its attitude toward labor, prices, farm programs, and housing. Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, was moderator.

Issues Are Discussed

Speeches from New York, California, Minnesota, Alabama, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and Washington, D. C. were scheduled. Party members gathered in meetings over the country to hear the (ABC) broadcast and to discuss the issues raised during what was called the "first national meeting of a political party to be conducted over the air."

Asserting that control of atomic energy, domestically and internationally, lies at the very heart of world peace, McMahon said:

"We are making real progress in the achievement of ever greater superiority in atomic energy production, including the making of atomic bombs—bombs, incidentally, which we wish we did not have to continue to make—bombs which we would not be making if the American proposals for international control had been agreed to by Russia.

McMahon added that because of Russia's stand on atomic controls and evidence that she is "pursuing an aggressive and expansionist policy on every front," the United States has "become unified in our determination that Russia shall not either by intrigue or by force accomplish the domination of Europe and Asia."

He predicted that if Western Europe fulfills its obligations under the Marshall Plan of aiding those countries that help themselves the people of America "will be behind this administration, regardless of party, in the measures necessary to make the plan a success."

Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York City, who spoke first, said the working people of New York are "angry" because the Republican Congress "tried to turn the working people of the country into second-class citizens."

Makes Contrast

He contrasted th lot of the working man in the days of "Hoovervilles and apple peddlers on every corner" with what he called "happier times" under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas, speaking from Los Angeles, said the GOP "cannot understand the problem of 95 per cent of America's housewives."

"In answer to their desperate plea for help," she asserted, "the party of big business—the friends of the real estate lobby—has cynically set up investigating committees in Congress to see if prices really are too high and whether there actually is a housing shortage. This, of course, after they had just destroyed rent control, the veterans' housing program, and taken all restrictions off installment buying."

Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis denounced the Republican Party for slashing appropriations for rual electrification, soil conservation, agricultural research, and the farmers' home administration.

Senator Sparkman of Alabama told the rally that the Republican record on housing "is consistent — consistently bad. They have done nothing, absolutely nothing to help get homes for veterans." He said the veterans with whom he has talked "intend to take Congress away from the real estate lobby in 1948 and return it to the people."

Sullivan, who spoke twice during the rally, said the people "are sick of the stumbling and bumbling of the Republican-controlled Congress."

Cancer Blood Tests Prove Accurate In Animals, Hold Hope For Humans

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2—(AP)—A blood test for early detection of cancer, which has shown strikingly quick and accurate results in animals, was disclosed today by Dr. Louis Herly of the Department of Cancer Research, Columbia University.

It is being tested on humans with results yet inconclusive, he said, but there is hope it may be valuable in humans. The chances of curing cancer are greatest if it is caught early.

Dr. Herley is demonstrating the test in exhibits at the fourth International Cancer Research Congress. He examines blood under ultra-violet light, so filtered that only the invisible or "black light" rays of ultraviolet come through the lamp.

Normal blood shines brightly, or fluoresces, and appears turbid or murky under the black light, he said. But blood of animals with cancer does not show any fluorescence or murkiness.

Some substance in the blood which fluoresces apparently is taken out of the blood when cancer begins to grow, Dr. Herly said. Whether this substance goes to the site of the tumor is not yet known.

Dr. Herley injected some cancer cells under the skin of animals which are known to get cancer after such injections, and the blood test detected cancer almost surely within 20 hours.

19 Japanese Convicted Of Sadistic Murders Of 10 Yanks By Navy Court

GUAM, Sept. 2 (AP) — Nineteen Japanese today were convicted of torturing to death 10 American prisoners of war in 1944 by the inhuman experimental use of bacteria, dynamite, strangulation, bayonets and bamboo spears.

Capt. Hiroshi Iwanami, former fleet surgeon whom witnesses testified devised and ordered the strange, sadistic executions on Truk, was convicted by a United States Tribunal of murder and of violating the law of war.

Eighteen others, including a second surgeon and ranging from chief petty officers through lieutenant commander, were convicted of fatally torturing the 10 Americans who were not identified.

The court said it would hear defense pleas for mitigating circumstances before pronouncing sentences.

The two months long hearing, presided over by Rear Adm. Arthur G. Robinson of Washington, D. C., was termed the most spectacular ever conducted by the Navy in the Pacific. Three witnesses committed suicide—shocked and fearful that they had testified, or would have to testify, against their former commander and buddies.

One witness, 63-year-old Capt. Masaharu Tanaka, quaveringly testified that Iwanami had assured him he had permission of high authorities to perform the horrible "experiments."

"Satellite" vehicles or space ships, launched at speeds capable of getting them beyond the earth's gravitational pull and into an area where they would circle the earth like a celestial object—ready to zeem down and spread destruction at the bidding of men or robots directing them by remote control.

Such man-less vehicles, he said, conceivably could also be used for reconnaissance—employing built-in television and other equipment whose "story" would be relayed to earthly observers.

2. Missiles that would be self-guided by means of built-in telescopes and other instruments that would automatically track a course to an objective target by reference to the stars, the moon and the planets.

3. Projectiles which could be made to follow celestial "highways" made by the invisible lines of magnetic force which surround our planet. It is possible, said Sigley, that a projectile might be made to follow a line of force to the point where the line passed over the target—from which point it could be directed by automatic means to swoop down and destroy.

4. Guided missiles that would "ride" a radar beam to a target. Or —if the target were beyond radar range—missiles that would follow a hyperbolic course computed automatically within the missile after it had passed the converging point of two radar waves at some point in the sky.

May Include Television

5. Missiles that would have built-in means of "homing" on a target, once they were guided to the general area. Such "homing" techniques, he said conceivably could include television, whereby the missile would head for a target as soon as it had televised an area exactly matching a picture of the area carried within the missile.

Another possible means, said Sigley, would be for the missile to "home" on a target with the aid of a heat sensitive element that would

15 Others Are Seriously Hurt

DUGALD, Man., Sept. 2 (AP)—The worst train wreck in Western Canada's history killed at least 35 persons and injured seriously 15 others here late last night when a Canadian National Railways Campers' special collided head on with a stationary transcontinental passenger train at this flag station 20 miles east of Winnipeg.

The west-bound 18-coach special from Minaki, Ont., and other Lake of the Woods resorts was traveling 30 miles an hour when it plowed into the standing express shortly after 11 p. m. as the transcontinental train was discharging passengers.

Two of the nine wooden coaches of the special caught fire. The flames quickly spread to other coaches, a grain elevator and nearby oil storage tanks, some of which exploded.

Twenty-seven bodies had been removed from the wreckage tonight, 24 of them so burned and mutilated that identification other than by dentures and finger rings was deemed impossible.

Some passengers said acetylene lamps used to illuminate the wooden coaches caused the blaze.

"When the crash came, all those lamps burst into flame right away," an unidentified yardman declared.

Early rescuers found flames shooting 50 feet high. Canoes, duffel bags and other vacationers' baggage was scattered over the right of way. The two locomotives were locked together, the baggage car of the transcontinental train raised partly over the tender ahead.

The screams of the hurt and trapped came from the piled up wreckage, but the heat of the flames drove most of the rescuers back.

Telephone operators summoned ambulances, doctors, police and firemen from Winnipeg, St. Boniface and Transcona, 10 miles to the west. The firemen pumped water on the wreckage from a nearby ditch, but it was not until nearly noon that the 35 bodies had been dug from the still sizzling wreckage.

The 15 injured were taken to St. Boniface hospital in trucks, cars and ambulances. Only the most seriously hurt were hospitalized.

Two of the bodies were decapitated and only three were identifiable. The three victims were identified as Gaye Lewis, 64, of Transcona, Man., engineer of the special, a Mrs. Albert Simpson of Winnipeg, who died enroute to the hospital, and Donna Barlow, 17, St. Vital, Man.

So far as is known all victims were Canadians.

U. S. Rebuffs Soviet Protest Of German Aid

Plans To Raise Economic Level

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (AP) — The United States, rejecting a Russian protest, served notice today that Moscow cannot veto the British-American plans for economic revival of Western Germany.

A U. S. note said this country "is unable to accept the thesis that nothing can be done" simply because the Soviet Union has not consented to the plans.

At the same time, this government accused the Soviet Union of failing to live up to its agreement, made by Generalissimo Stalin at Potsdam in 1945, to treat Germany as a single economic unit.

The American views were expressed in a letter sent by Undersecretary of State Lovett to Semen K. Tsarapkin, minister counselor and acting head of the Soviet Embassy here.

The note from Lovett was a reply to a Soviet protest delivered August 18 against agreement by the United States and Britain on raising the level of industry in Western Germany and particularly the critical Ruhr area.

The letter was made public by the State Department today and subsequently there were two other developments bearing upon relationships among the big three powers:

1. It was learned that United States and British experts seeking to boost coal production from the Ruhr mines have tentatively agreed here to British-American partnership control of the mining operations. The British at present have exclusive control. Under the new plan the pits in the British zone would be under supervision of a joint Anglo-American board but most, if not all, of the actual on-the-scene direction of coal mining would be done by Germans. American experts have argued that this is the best way to handle morale of German miners.

The mine talks are expected to be completed late this week. Press Officer Lincoln White said he understood plans for boosting Ruhr coal production to aid European economic recovery were about wound up and needed only to be reduced to final paper form.

2. It was also learned that the United States is asking the British to retain troops in Greece—they have an estimated 6,000 there—until the United States position in that strife ridden land is sufficiently strong and secure. An estimated 6,000 British soldiers remain in the country and the labor government previously said they would all be withdrawn by autumn. American officials feel that even though they are only a symbolic force their withdrawal in the immediate future would prove very upsetting to the Greek situation which should have considerably more time to settle down under the effects of the American anti-Communist aid program.

The American position on raising the level of German industry came as no surprise to Washington diplomats. Only last week London and Washington announced that they intended to build up the German economy to a production stage equivalent to output in the pre-war year 1936.

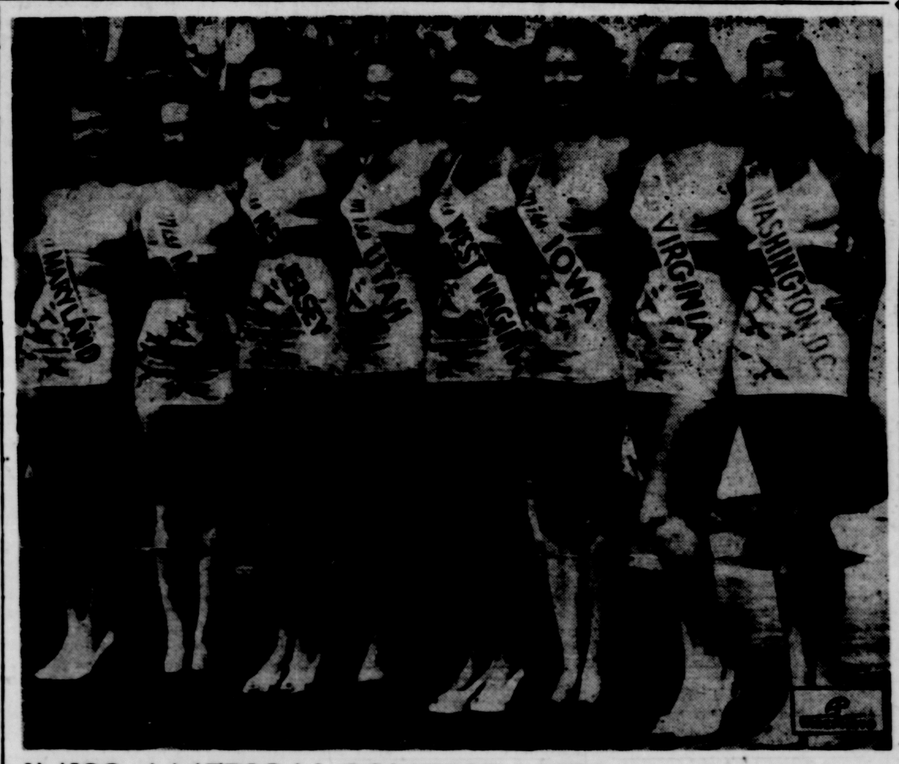

Replying to a Russian protest, the United States note declared that the American objectives in making the production changes are not in conflict with the 1945 Big Three agreement at Potsdam for eliminating the German war potential, developing peaceful German industries and helping the German people to maintain themselves.

"The Soviet government is certainly aware of the importance of German production to the economic rehabilitation of Europe. This is particularly true in respect of coal from the Ruhr area of Germany.

"Furthermore the failure of the Soviet government to implement the Berlin agreement has placed upon the U. S. a heavy financial burden in the occupation of Germany."

He said that the United States could not accept the thesis that it could do nothing to ease his burden or carry out other activities "within the framework of the Berlin agreement" for the economic reconstruction of Europe "until the consent of the Soviet Government has been obtained.

19 Nations Sign Defense Treaty To Outlaw War

Secretary Marshall Signs First For U. S.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 2. (AP)—Representatives of 19 of the 21 American Republics, acting in a concerted effort to outlaw war in the Western Hemisphere, signed today the mutual defense treaty framed at the Inter-American conference at Quitandinha.

The statesmen signed the history-making pact in the paneled reception hall of Itamaraty Palace, Brazil's foreign office.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall was the first United States representative to affix his signature to the document. The other American signers were Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich); Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex); Warren R. Austin, chief United States Delegate to the United Nations; Rep. Sol Bloom (D-NY) and William Pawley, U. S. Ambassador to Brazil.

The participating nations in the order of their signing were:

Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Peru, El Salvador, Panama, Paraguay, Venezuela, Chile, Honduras, Cuba, Boliva, Colombia, Mexico, Haiti, Urugay, Argentina, Brazil and the United States.

The United States was to have signed farther up the list, but its delegation was absent from the chamber when its name twice was called, and finally penned the last signatures on the document.

The only two American Republics which did not sign the treaty were Nicaragua, which did not receive an invitation to the Inter-American conference because of the Pan-American Union's dissatisfaction with its current regime, and Ecuador, now in the throes of a counter-revolution against its new revolutionary government.

The treaty provides that an armed attack against any of the signator nations will be considered an attack against them all; that collective military defense measures will be taken in case of an armed attack within a geographically-defined security zone, which includes all the Republics, ocean territory and most of the Western Hemisphere polar regions, or within the territory of an American State."

Thieves Have Trouble

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 2 (AP)—Yeggs who failed to crack a safe with an acetylene torch at the Copco Steel and Engraving Company during the week-end left this message scrawled on the safe door with soot from the torch: "Get a safe we can open."

"U. S. Will Keep Strong," President Tells Latins

Gives Four-Point American Policy

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 2 (AP)—President Truman told Latin American delegates today that "many of the remaining peoples of Europe and Asia live under the shadow of armed aggression," and that the United States was determined to keep its military might to bulwark a policy based on a desire for lasting world peace.

He laid down a "frank" four-point declaration of American policy at the final session of the interAmerican conference at Quitandinha, then drove to Rio De Janeiro.

In a post-war world which Mr. Truman said has "brought us bitter disappointment and deep concern" the President gave these as the major points of his country's policy:

1. The providing of economic help to Europe through the Marshall Plan and Truman Doctrine. He expressed hope that the Latin American Republics would be prepared to contribute to its success.

2. Fidelity to the United Nations.

Will Defend Peace

3. The retention of United States military strength. He said the traditional aversion of the United States to violence "must not be misread as a lack of determination on our part to live up to the obligations of the U. N. charter or an invitation to others to take liberties with the foundations of international peace."

4. Increased economic collaboration with the countries of the Western Hemisphere.

The brilliantly lighted flags of all the American nations formed the backdrop for the address in the huge circular hall of the mammoth resort hotel at Quitandinha. The gold braid and khaki of the military vied with the sombre black attire of the diplomats in the crowd of 2,500 who heard the President.

Mrs. Truman, in a dark navy blue suit and gray hat, and daughter, Margaret, in a gray suit, sat side by side in a seat of honor directly behind the delegates.

The President prefaced his declaration on foreign policy with congratulations to the conference delegates for their work in achieving a treaty on hemisphere defense, which he said was a plain warning to any "possible aggressor" and an "example of good neighborliness and international amity."

"We find that a number of nations are still subjected to a type of foreign domination which we fought to overcome," he said, "many of the remaining peoples of Europe and Asia live under the shadow of armed

2 Men Are Held For Attempting To Lynch Negro

Superior Court Judge Frees Six

JACKSON, N. C., Sept. 2 (AP) —A Superior Court Judge today dismissed charges against six of seven white men accused in the attempted lynching of a negro but had the Northampton County Jailer arrested and bound the seventh defendant over to a grand jury.

The action was taken by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, who sat today as a special committing magistrate on Governor R. Gregg Cherry's commission, after the Northampton County Grand Jury last month found no cause for action against the seven.

Cunningham Is Held

The judge, in freeing six of the accused men, ordered that Joe Cunningham, assistant theatre manager at nearby Rich Square where race tension has run high this year, be held for action by the Warren County Grand Jury on September 15. Warrenton, county seat of Warren County, is approximately 42 miles west of this northeastern North Carolina community.

Arrest of A. W. Edwards, elderly jailer, from whom 22-year-old Godwin (Buddy) Bush was taken by an armed and masked band last May 23 came as a surprise move in a hushed and crowded courtroom. It followed testimony by Edwards today that there had been no force or threats against him when the negro was taken from jail.

Judge Frizzelle stopped the six men who were freed just as they arose to leave the court room. "Before you go," the judge said, "I want to make this observation. This court is passing only on probable cause. It is perfectly apparent x x x that the only reason you are allowed to go free is because of the incompetence of Mr. Cunningham's confession as it concerns you. If the statement had been made in the presence of the other six, it would have been admitted—or if it had been made before the accomplishment of the conspiracy, it would have been admitted."

In advising Edwards of the bench warrant against him, Judge Frizzelle said the jailer had done nothing to prevent the masked men from taking Bush. "Not once did you beg them to desist. x x x you led them into the negro's cell and pointed him out. I couldn't leave this courtroom with my self-respect intact if I did not hold you under a bench warrant."

Jailer Is Arrested

Jailer Edwards was arrested by Sheriff J. C. Stephenson on a bench warrant issued by Judge Frizzelle. It charged him with conspiracy in breaking and entering a jail and with aiding and abetting in the breaking and entering. The jailer's case will also be considered by the Warren County Grand Jury.

Cunningham is charged with conspiracy to break and enter a jail and with breaking and entering a jail with intent to kill or injure Bush, the same counts on which all seven of the original defendants were charged. Each of the two counts carries a maximum imprisonment of 15 years. All of the seven defendants earlier today had pleaded not guilty when the charges were read.

Soviet Failure To Back Atomic Pact Is Blamed

McMahon Declares Proposal 'Just'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (AP)—Senator McMahon (D-Conn) said tonight the United States is making more atomic bombs because Russia has not agreed to American proposals for their control.

"That those proposals were right and decent and just," he asserted, "is testified to by the fact that every nation except Russia has supported them."

McMahon, co-author of the act for domestic control of atomic energy, was the last of eight speakers during a half-hour radio rally staged by the Democratic party as a warm-up for the 1948 campaign.

The other orators assailed the Republican-controlled Congress for its attitude toward labor, prices, farm programs, and housing. Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, was moderator.

Issues Are Discussed

Speeches from New York, California, Minnesota, Alabama, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and Washington, D. C. were scheduled. Party members gathered in meetings over the country to hear the (ABC) broadcast and to discuss the issues raised during what was called the "first national meeting of a political party to be conducted over the air."

Asserting that control of atomic energy, domestically and internationally, lies at the very heart of world peace, McMahon said:

"We are making real progress in the achievement of ever greater superiority in atomic energy production, including the making of atomic bombs—bombs, incidentally, which we wish we did not have to continue to make—bombs which we would not be making if the American proposals for international control had been agreed to by Russia.

McMahon added that because of Russia's stand on atomic controls and evidence that she is "pursuing an aggressive and expansionist policy on every front," the United States has "become unified in our determination that Russia shall not either by intrigue or by force accomplish the domination of Europe and Asia."

He predicted that if Western Europe fulfills its obligations under the Marshall Plan of aiding those countries that help themselves the people of America "will be behind this administration, regardless of party, in the measures necessary to make the plan a success."

Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York City, who spoke first, said the working people of New York are "angry" because the Republican Congress "tried to turn the working people of the country into second-class citizens."

Makes Contrast

He contrasted th lot of the working man in the days of "Hoovervilles and apple peddlers on every corner" with what he called "happier times" under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas, speaking from Los Angeles, said the GOP "cannot understand the problem of 95 per cent of America's housewives."

"In answer to their desperate plea for help," she asserted, "the party of big business—the friends of the real estate lobby—has cynically set up investigating committees in Congress to see if prices really are too high and whether there actually is a housing shortage. This, of course, after they had just destroyed rent control, the veterans' housing program, and taken all restrictions off installment buying."

Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis denounced the Republican Party for slashing appropriations for rual electrification, soil conservation, agricultural research, and the farmers' home administration.

Senator Sparkman of Alabama told the rally that the Republican record on housing "is consistent — consistently bad. They have done nothing, absolutely nothing to help get homes for veterans." He said the veterans with whom he has talked "intend to take Congress away from the real estate lobby in 1948 and return it to the people."

Sullivan, who spoke twice during the rally, said the people "are sick of the stumbling and bumbling of the Republican-controlled Congress."

Cancer Blood Tests Prove Accurate In Animals, Hold Hope For Humans

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2—(AP)—A blood test for early detection of cancer, which has shown strikingly quick and accurate results in animals, was disclosed today by Dr. Louis Herly of the Department of Cancer Research, Columbia University.

It is being tested on humans with results yet inconclusive, he said, but there is hope it may be valuable in humans. The chances of curing cancer are greatest if it is caught early.

Dr. Herley is demonstrating the test in exhibits at the fourth International Cancer Research Congress. He examines blood under ultra-violet light, so filtered that only the invisible or "black light" rays of ultraviolet come through the lamp.

Normal blood shines brightly, or fluoresces, and appears turbid or murky under the black light, he said. But blood of animals with cancer does not show any fluorescence or murkiness.

Some substance in the blood which fluoresces apparently is taken out of the blood when cancer begins to grow, Dr. Herly said. Whether this substance goes to the site of the tumor is not yet known.

Dr. Herley injected some cancer cells under the skin of animals which are known to get cancer after such injections, and the blood test detected cancer almost surely within 20 hours.

19 Japanese Convicted Of Sadistic Murders Of 10 Yanks By Navy Court

GUAM, Sept. 2 (AP) — Nineteen Japanese today were convicted of torturing to death 10 American prisoners of war in 1944 by the inhuman experimental use of bacteria, dynamite, strangulation, bayonets and bamboo spears.

Capt. Hiroshi Iwanami, former fleet surgeon whom witnesses testified devised and ordered the strange, sadistic executions on Truk, was convicted by a United States Tribunal of murder and of violating the law of war.

Eighteen others, including a second surgeon and ranging from chief petty officers through lieutenant commander, were convicted of fatally torturing the 10 Americans who were not identified.

The court said it would hear defense pleas for mitigating circumstances before pronouncing sentences.

The two months long hearing, presided over by Rear Adm. Arthur G. Robinson of Washington, D. C., was termed the most spectacular ever conducted by the Navy in the Pacific. Three witnesses committed suicide—shocked and fearful that they had testified, or would have to testify, against their former commander and buddies.

One witness, 63-year-old Capt. Masaharu Tanaka, quaveringly testified that Iwanami had assured him he had permission of high authorities to perform the horrible "experiments."

15 Committees C. Of C. Names For 1947-48

Fifteen committees to serve for the year 1947-48 have been appointed by Henry W. Price, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Committees and their chairmen are:

Agriculture, William W. Nace; budget, F. H. Ankeney; civic improvement, Mrs. Cara L. Ebert; convention, J. L. Towler; fire prevention, Edgar A. Kendall; flood control, George G. Young; highways and transportation, Miles G. Thompson; industrial, Garland L. Johnston; membership activities, C. Philip Jolley; membership, O. J. Hale; public affairs, George L. Buchanan, education, Adolph Blunk.

Committee members are:

Agriculture — Harry Barton, John D. Liebau, R. E. Light, Tasker G. Lowndes, Ralph F. McHenry and William A. Parr.

Budget — George F. Hazelwood, Benjamin M. Kamens, Joseph M. Naughton, Irving Rosenbaum.

Civic Improvement—Mrs. Aurelia S. Becker, E. H. Bender, Roy W. Eves, Webster K. Edwards, W. J. Hart, Charles L. Kopp, Mrs. Esther Rosenbaum.

Community Development — Douglas R. Bowie, George L. Buchanan, W. Earle Cobey, Charles A. Piper, W. Donald Smith.

Convention—Robert Blair, R. A. Burke, Y. S. Levine, Ronald E. Simmons.

Executive — Douglas R. Bowie, Thomas E. Gilchrist, George F. Hazelwood, John D. Liebau, Charles A. Piper, Arthur J. Weber.

Education—Charles S. Catherman, Tasker G. Lowndes, George L. Spoerl, Wilbur V. Wilson.

Fire Prevention—Howard T. Blank, J. Henry Holzshu, Charles C. McKearn, James B. Reinhart.

Flood Control—Harry Beneman, William Claus, Owen E. Hitchins, David Kauffman, Joseph Klawan, Fred T. Small.

Highways and Transportation—J. Glenn Beall, Lee E. Carpenter, Earl D. Chaney, F. W. Eiler, Oscar Gurley, C. E. Gehr, M. W. Grove, Dr. A. H. Hawkins, Walter T. Kline, Earl C. Robertson.

Industrial—William Claus, C. E. Gehr, Melville G. Gemmill, Owen E. Hitchins, Benjamin M. Kamens, Mark Lazarus, M. W. Peskin, Robert L. Stallings, Howard M. Smith, Edgar D. Vandegrift.

Membership — Frank H. Ansel, Thomas F. Conlon, John L. Carnochan, Charles F. Helmrich, J. G. Jackson, Paul E. Myers, David L. Miller, George W. Remer, John J. Robinson, Jr., Albert T. Tomsko, J. L. Towler.

Membership Activities — J. M. Groobey, G. L. Johnston, Frank A. Martin, George M. Martin, Gilbert A. Rehbeck, George Schwarzenbach, Howard M. Smith.

Mercantile Bureau (Advisory Committee)—E. V. Coyle, chairman; Max Bastian, Irving Rosenbaum, Glenn Shoop, George Schwarzenbach, W. Donald Smith.

Public Affairs—James Alfred Avirett, James W. Bishop, Douglas R. Bowie, Walter C. Capper, W. Earle Cobey, Isaac Hirch, Charles A. Piper, Harry A. Pitzer, William M. Somerville, Arthur J. Weber, F. Brooke Whiting.

be activated by heat given off from a target factory or ship.

But Sigley emphasized repeatedly that these are only theoretical possibilities—and Dr. Hafstad, in his report, detailed the sticklers that beset guided missiles research.

"It must be realized," he said, "that the push button war is definitely not just around the corner. At the same time, it would be a fatal mistake to prepare this nation for defense against the wrong kinds of weapons.

"This nation must therefore explore to the limit the possibilities in guided missile techniques. Next time there will be no time to recover from a Pearl Harbor surprise."

(Dr. Hafstad is on leave as director of APL and is serving as secretary of the armed forces' joint research and development board. But the laboratory release on his report cautioned against attributing Hofstad's views "as an official expression" of the joint research and development board).

Soviet Failure

Senator Francis J. Myers of Pennsylvania said the people of his state "share the disgust felt by all liberal-minded, fair-minded Americans," over Republican policies, approve the policies of the Democratic administration, and thinks Mr. Truman should run in 1948.

Marshall Hanley, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Indiana, told how young people in the party are working in ward and precinct to bring a Democratic victory next year.

aggression."

He said that in view of the "unfortunate" conditions in the post-war era "we have faced some difficult problems of adjustment in our foreign policy," but "the fundamental basis of the policy of the United States is for permanent world peace. We are determined that, in the company of our friends, we shall achieve that peace."

In reference to the Marshall Plan and his own program for aid to Greece and Turkey, the President said:

"We intend to do our best to provide economic help to those who are prepared to help themselves and each other. But our resources are not unlimited. We must apply them where they can serve most effectively to bring production, freedom and confidence back to the world.

"We undertook this on an individual basis in the case of Greece and Turkey, where we were confronted with specific problems of limited scope and of peculiar urgency.

"But it was evident, at the time that decision was made early this year, that this precedent could not be applied generally to the problems of other European countries x x x

"It was equally clear that the peoples of Europe would have to get together and work out a solution of their own economic problems. In this way they would be able to make the most of their own resources and of such help as they might receive from others."

Condition Of Man With Fractured Skull Improved

Suffering a fractured skull when, police said, he staggered or fell from a curb on Park Street and was struck by a car late Saturday night, Clarence Shaffer, Queen City Hotel, was reported improving last night in Memorial Hospital.

Police said it is "not likely" that any charges will be filed against Eldon W. Elkins, 620 Elm Street, said to be the driver of the car.

Milton Stein, 6, 824 Harvard Avenue, was admitted to Memorial Hospital Monday morning with a fractured leg after he was struck by a backing truck on Gephart Drive. A careless driving charge against the driver, Robert J. Snyder, 27 Prospect Square, was dismissed yesterday in Police Court.

Three persons were injured, none believed seriously, late Monday night in a head-on collision on Route 25 in Ellerslie. Both drivers, Ernest J. Twigg, 22, Route 4, Christie Road, and Vonder J. Conner, 28, near Corriganville, were treated in Allegany Hospital for lacerations. Mrs. Ruth Butts, 25, 112 Polk Street, a passenger in the Conner car, was cut about the forehead.

Both drivers were fined $6.45 each on reckless driving charges yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court. State Trooper G. M. Rotruck investigated.

A reckless driving charge was filed against George B. Hansel, 24, Route 1, this city, following a two-car crash at the bridge across Braddock Run on Route 40 in LaVale Monday at 6:15 p. m.

Three persons were injured, including Hansel who suffered a deep laceration of the knee and facial cuts. He was treated in Memorial Hospital. Miss Jacqueline B. Loar, 19, Route 1, said to be the driver of the other car, was treated by a physician for bruises of the face and knee, and Miss Winifred McCloskey, 20, 845 Mt. Royal Avenue, a passenger in her car, was treated in Memorial Hospital for bruises of the rib, knee and arm.

Hansel will be given a hearing later in Trial Magistrates Court, according to State Trooper William F. Baker, who investigated.

Woman Is Hurt; Three Men Held

Trio Picked Up At Westernport

Three Vindex men were arrested at the Western Maryland Railway Station in Westernport at 6:30 p.m. yesterday and turned over to Garrett County authorities who said the trio had gotten into a fight with a woman Saturday night at a tavern on the Vindex Road between Oakland and Kitzmiller.

The woman, identified as Mrs. Maude Martin, 39, Westernport, is a patient in Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W. Va., where she is undergoing treatment for a fractured left shoulder. Her condition was reported as satisfactory last night.

Deputy Sheriff Paul W. Fisher, of Garrett County, said the trio, Kenneth Boyce, Monzel Sims and Sheridan Sims, the latter two brothers, all of Vindex, were arrested on a warrant charging them with disorderly conduct.

The warrant, he said, was obtained Sunday by Lee McRobie, operator of the tavern, from Magistrate James E. Barrick, Kitzmiller.

Deputy Fisher said the three men were waiting at the Westernport station to board a train for Cumberland when they were arrested by Chief of Police Burza Hanlin and Assistant Chief Leonard Murphy, of Westernport.

Sheriff J. S. Teats, Constable Roy Sowers and Deputy Fisher took the trio to Oakland. The latter said they may be questioned today in the office of the Garrett County state's attorney.

Molinari Forfeits Bond On City Liquor Charge

Bond of $200 was forfeited in Police Court yesterday by Frank Molinari, 32 Cumberland Street, proprietor of the Cadillac Cocktail Lounge, Baltimore Street, when he failed to appear for a hearing on a charge of selling alcoholic beverages after midnight.

Officers reported receiving complaints about "drinks" being sold at the place after midnight and said he was arrested on a warrant for violating an ordinance recently enacted by the City Council. The arrest was made Saturday.

Finan To Attend Housing Meeting

The first meeting of the five-member State Veterans Housing Commission, formed during the 1947 session of the Legislature, is to be held at the office of the Attorney General in Baltimore tonight at 8 o'clock, and Thomas B. Finan, this city, a member of the commission, expects to attend.

The meeting was called by Joseph Buscher, assistant attorney general, who is chairman of the commission.

The commission is authorized and empowered to conduct a state-wide survey to determine and classify, insofar as possible, such areas as are critically in need of additional temporary and permanent housing accommodations for veterans.

Likewise, the commission is authorized to co-ordinate federal, state and county efforts as well as those of private individuals toward obtaining housing accommodations for veterans.

NATIVE OF CUMBERLAND ENDS NEWSPAPER CAREER

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 2 (AP)—Vernon B. Garton, 75-year-old veteran newspaperman, retired today after 58 years in the newspaper and printing business and 38 years as a member of the reportorial staff of the Martinsburg Journal.

Garton came to work for the Journal in 1909, two years after Harry Flood Byrd of Winchester, Va., who published the Star there, established the local paper. He remained with the Journal through the subsequent changes of ownership, continually as a reporter.

Before coming to Martinsburg he spent 20 years on Winchester papers and in the composing rooms. He entered the newspaper field as an apprentice at 17 in Winchester, but circumstances soon found him doing leg work for reporters and he was soon writing copy.

For a time he managed the Winchester Star and recalls that his duties included picking up advertising as well as news, carrying routes occasionally, collecting, paying off employes and turning over the remaining cash to the owner. At the time he was drawing about $4 a week, he says.

He is a native of Cumberland, Md., and in 1916 married Miss Mary Martin, formerly of Nain, Va.

VFW TO SEND FOUR LOCAL DELEGATES TO NATIONAL ENCAMPMENT

Four delegates representing Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will leave Friday for the National Encampment at Cleveland, Ohio, to be held September 4 to 10 inclusive, it was announced at a regular post meeting last night. They are Victor Shaffer, Maurice Leasure, Irvin Engle and James Flinn.

Post members last night voted down a proposal and an offer that a restaurant concession be opened in the post home on Union Street.

James E. Stemple called a meeting of the district degree team for Thursday at 8 p. m. George Banzhoff, district commander, announced that he will be in Baltimore and Philadelphia this week on VFW business and also will visit a number of posts east of here.

A report was made at the meeting that two members, Edward Thompson and James Shoemaker, are medical patients in Memorial Hospital.

James Kloran, senior vice commander, who presided in the absence of Lee Thrasher, introduced Noah Carter, commander of the Oldtown Post, as a guest.

More people are smoking CAMELS than ever before!

Yes, like Champion Don Whitfield, smoker after smoker who tried many different brands during the wartime cigarette shortage now smokes Camels.

YOU KNOW what it was like during the wartime cigarette shortage: people took any brand they could get, a different brand every day sometimes.

That's when smokers discovered that Camel's rich taste and cool mildness added up to a smoking pleasure they didn't find in any other cigarette.

As a result of that experience, more people are smoking Camels than ever before!

Try Camels. See how they suit your taste ... your throat. Let your own experience tell you why, with smoker after smoker who has tried and compared, Camels are the "Choice of Experience."

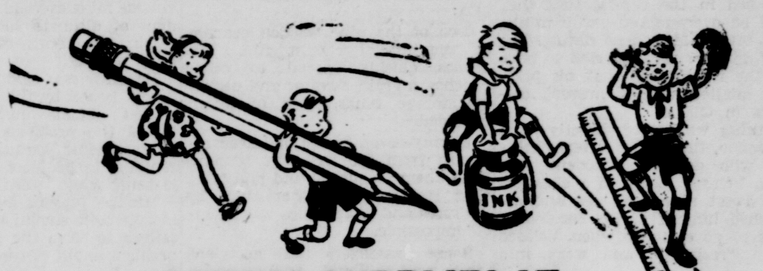

DURING the wartime shortage of cigarettes ... trying many different brands ... that's when so many more smokers learned the meaning of the phrase, "Camels suit my 'T-Zone' to a 'T'!"

According to a Nationwide survey:

MORE DOCTORS SMOKE CAMELS THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE

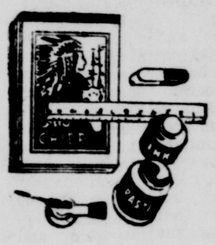

When 113,597 doctors from coast to coast—in every field of medicine—were asked by three independent research organizations to name the cigarette they smoked, more doctors named Camel than any other brand!

But Sigley emphasized repeatedly that these are only theoretical possibilities—and Dr. Hafstad, in his report, detailed the sticklers that beset guided missiles research.

"It must be realized," he said, "that the push button war is definitely not just around the corner. At the same time, it would be a fatal mistake to prepare this nation for defense against the wrong kinds of weapons.

"This nation must therefore explore to the limit the possibilities in guided missile techniques. Next time there will be no time to recover from a Pearl Harbor surprise."

(Dr. Hafstad is on leave as director of APL and is serving as secretary of the armed forces' joint research and development board. But the laboratory release on his report cautioned against attributing Hafstad's views "as an official expression" of the joint research and development board).

aggression."

He said that in view of the "unfortunate" conditions in the post-war era "we have faced some difficult problems of adjustment in our foreign policy," but "the fundamental basis of the policy of the United States is for permanent world peace. We are determined that, in the company of our friends, we shall achieve that peace."

In reference to the Marshall Plan and his own program for aid to Greece and Turkey, the President said:

"We intend to do our best to provide economic help to those who are prepared to help themselves and each other. But our resources are not unlimited. We must apply them where they can serve most effectively to bring production, freedom and confidence back to the world.

"We undertook this on an individual basis in the case of Greece and Turkey, where we were confronted with specific problems of limited scope and of peculiar urgency.

"But it was evident, at the time that decision was made early this year, that this precedent could not be applied generally to the problems of other European countries x x x

"It was equally clear that the peoples of Europe would have to get together and work out a solution of their own economic problems. In this way they would be able to make the most of their own resources and of such help as they might receive from others."

Americans normally average about 160,000,000 telephone conversations a day.

Condition Of Man With Fractured Skull Improved

Suffering a fractured skull when, police said, he staggered or fell from a curb on Park Street and was struck by a car late Saturday night, Clarence Shaffer, Queen City Hotel, was reported improving last night in Memorial Hospital.

Police said it is "not likely" that any charges will be filed against Eldon W. Elkins, 620 Elm Street, said to be the driver of the car.

Milton Stein, 6, 824 Harvard Avenue, was admitted to Memorial Hospital Monday morning with a fractured leg after he was struck by a backing truck on Gephart Drive. A careless driving charge against the driver, Robert J. Snyder, 27 Prospect Square, was dismissed yesterday in Police Court.

Three persons were injured, none believed seriously, late Monday night in a head-on collision on Route 35 in Ellerslie. Both drivers, Ernest J. Twigg, 22, Route 4, Christie Road, and Vonder J. Conner, 28, near Corriganville, were treated in Allegany Hospital for lacerations. Mrs. Ruth Butts, 25, 112 Polk Street, a passenger in the Conner car, was cut about the forehead.

Both drivers were fined $6.45 each on reckless driving charges yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court. State Trooper G. M. Rotruck investigated.

A reckless driving charge was filed against George B. Hansel, 24, Route 1, this city, following a two-car crash at the bridge across Braddock Run on Route 40 in LaVale Monday at 6:15 p. m.

Three persons were injured, including Hansel who suffered a deep laceration of the knee and facial cuts. He was treated in Memorial Hospital. Miss Jacqueline B. Loar, 19, Route 1, said to be the driver of the other car, was treated by a physician for bruises of the face and knee, and Miss Winifred McCloskey, 20, 845 Mt. Royal Avenue, a passenger in her car, was treated in Memorial Hospital for bruises of the rib, knee and arm.

Hansel will be given a hearing later in Trial Magistrates Court, according to State Trooper William F. Baker, who investigated.

Woman Is Hurt; Three Men Held

Trio Picked Up At Westernport

Three Vindex men were arrested at the Western Maryland Railway Station in Westernport at 6:20 p. m. yesterday and turned over to Garrett County authorities who said the trio had gotten into a fight with a woman Saturday night at a tavern on the Vindex Road between Oakland and Kitzmiller.

The woman, identified as Mrs. Maude Martin, 30, Westernport, is a patient in Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W. Va., where she is undergoing treatment for a fractured left shoulder. Her condition was reported as satisfactory last night.

Deputy Sheriff Paul W. Fisher, of Garrett County, said the trio, Kenneth Boyce, Monzel Sims and Sheridan Sims, the latter two brothers, all of Vindex, were arrested on a warrant charging them with disorderly conduct.

The warrant, he said, was obtained Sunday by Lee McRobie, operator of the tavern, from Magistrate James E. Barrick, Kitzmiller.

Deputy Fisher said the three men were waiting at the Westernport station to board a train for Cumberland when they were arrested by Chief of Police Burza Hanlin and Assistant Chief Leonard Murphy, of Westernport.

Sheriff J. S. Teats, Constable Roy Sowers and Deputy Fisher took the trio to Oakland. The latter said they may be questioned today in the office of the Garrett County state's attorney.

Molinari Forfeits Bond On City Liquor Charge

Bond of $200 was forfeited in Police Court yesterday by Frank Molinari, 32 Cumberland Street, proprietor of the Cadillac Cocktail Lounge, Baltimore Street, when he failed to appear for a hearing on a charge of selling alcoholic beverages after midnight.

Officers reported receiving complaints about "drinks" being sold at the place after midnight and said he was arrested on a warrant for violating an ordinance recently enacted by the City Council. The arrest was made Saturday.

Finan To Attend Housing Meeting

The first meeting of the five-member State Veterans Housing Commission, formed during the 1947 session of the Legislature, is to be held at the office of the Attorney General in Baltimore tonight at 8 o'clock, and Thomas B. Finan, this city, a member of the commission, expects to attend.

The meeting was called by Joseph Buscher, assistant attorney general, who is chairman of the commission.

The commission is authorized and empowered to conduct a state-wide survey to determine and classify, insofar as possible, such areas as are critically in need of additional temporary and permanent housing accommodations for veterans.

Likewise, the commission is authorized to co-ordinate federal, state and county efforts as well as those of private individuals toward obtaining housing accommodations for veterans.

NATIVE OF CUMBERLAND ENDS NEWSPAPER CAREER

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 2 (AP)—Vernon B. Garton, 75-year-old veteran newspaperman, retired today after 58 years in the newspaper and printing business and 38 years as a member of the reportorial staff of the Martinsburg Journal.

Garton came to work for the Journal in 1909, two years after Harry Flood Byrd of Winchester, Va., who published the Star there, established the local paper. He remained with the Journal through the subsequent changes of ownership, continually as a reporter.

Before coming to Martinsburg he spent 20 years on Winchester papers and in the composing rooms. He entered the newspaper field as an apprentice at 17 in Winchester, but circumstances soon found him doing leg work for reporters and he was soon writing copy.

Vandals Reported Damaging Property At Local Airport

Vandals have been causing heavy damage to property at the Cumberland Municipal Airport, Charles F. Heller, maintenance foreman, reported to the Mayor and Council yesterday.

Heller said a wire fence along the Lamp Road has been cut and that an end light on No. 2 runway was shot to pieces. City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett said a standing reward for information leading to the arrest of vandals exists. He said that in the event the culprits are arrested, an indictment would be sought in the Mineral County, W. Va., Circuit Court.

The expected introduction of an order naming a chief of police and assistant chief did not materialize, and city officials said the appointments were held over for further discussion.

The report of Samuel E. Griminger, city clerk, shows $605.95 was collected during August on bingo taxes and $685.60 in Sunday movie taxes. License fees amounted to $361.80.

Taxes collected in August amounted to $48,346.79 with $24,865.22 being water rents. The Police Department reported 473 arrests with $1,292 being collected in fines. The Fire Department answered 22 calls with damage being small. There were four false alarms among the calls.

The Optimist Club was granted permission to hold a "Soap Box Derby" October 18 on Shriver Avenue.

The Marine Corps Reserve was granted permission for a banner over Baltimore Street in the interests of recruiting.

A bid of the Eiler Chevrolet, Inc., of $1,377.25 for a three-fourth ton pickup truck to be used by the Police Department was accepted.

The Street Department reported 592 paved streets, 75 alleys, 24 catch basins and four manholes were cleaned during August. A carload of oil was distributed on unpaved streets.

The $115 bid of Kenneth S. Ritter for Lots No. 37 and 38, Montreal Avenue, was accepted and a $300 bid for Lots 99 and 100 on Laing Avenue extended by Douglas R. Parker was also accepted.

During August 33 building permits were granted with 22 for new construction and 11 for additions. Total value of the work was $79,850. Twenty sewer permits, with 15 having been installed, were also reported.

The Engineering Department reported fees of $1,069 during the month.

Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, reported a survey for the extension of First Street from South Street to Maple Street has been completed.

Duties Of Advisory Board To Rent Unit Outlined By White

The duties of the new Rent Advisory Board recently appointed for the Cumberland area have been outlined in an announcement received by Caleb J. White, area rent director, from the National Housing Expediter's office.

Any recommendation of the board must be substantiated in accordance with applicable law and regulations and must be approved. The area rent director is required to act on a recommendation or notify the board within 30 days in writing explaining the reason action could not be taken.

Landlords whose housing accommodations are freed from rent control by the Housing Act of 1947 are not required to file reports of decontrol with their rent director, Mr. White said. This does not apply to operators of hotels and tourist homes who must still file decontrol forms.

This order affects accommodations whose construction or conversion was completed on or after February 1, 1947, and units which were in existence but not rented at any time between February 1, 1945 and January 31, 1947. Units constructed with priorities obtained under the Veterans' Emergency Housing authority are not decontrolled.

Use of the decontrol form on a voluntary basis for these units is continued, White said, since some landlords desire to file them to clear their records.

Filing for applications for decontrol by operators of hotels and tourist homes is no longer a condition of decontrol of such housing. This means that failure to file is a violation but doesn't continue the units under control which provisions of the law have decontrolled.

Provision for relief of hardship cases has been changed to provide that the adjustment shall be sufficient to relieve the hardship instead of being limited to the amount that will bring the rent into line with rentals for comparable accommodations.

The duties of the new Rent Advisory Board recently appointed for the Cumberland area have been outlined in an announcement received by Caleb J. White, area rent director, from the National Housing Expediter's office.

Any recommendation of the board must be substantiated in accordance with applicable law and regulations and must be approved. The area rent director is required to act on a recommendation or notify the board within 30 days in writing explaining the reason action could not be taken.

Landlords whose housing accommodations are freed from rent control by the Housing Act of 1947 are not required to file reports of decontrol with their rent director, Mr. White said. This does not apply to operators of hotels and tourist homes who must still file decontrol forms.

This order affects accommodations whose construction or conversion was completed on or after February 1, 1947, and units which were in existence but not rented at any time between February 1, 1945 and January 31, 1947. Units constructed with priorities obtained under the Veterans' Emergency Housing authority are not decontrolled.

Use of the decontrol form on a voluntary basis for these units is continued, White said, since some landlords desire to file them to clear their records.

Filing for applications for decontrol by operators of hotels and tourist homes is no longer a condition of decontrol of such housing. This means that failure to file is a violation but doesn't continue the units under control which provisions of the law have decontrolled.

Provision for relief of hardship cases has been changed to provide that the adjustment shall be sufficient to relieve the hardship instead of being limited to the amount that will bring the rent into line with rentals for comparable accommodations.

Soviet Purposes, Diplomatic Technique And Her Mentality

The lead article in Harper's Magazine last month was devoted to the important and much-misunderstood subject of "Negotiating With Russia." Written by James B. Reston, long-time diplomatic correspondent of the New York Times, it casts a good deal of light on Soviet purposes, Soviet diplomatic techniques, and Soviet mentality.

First of all, says Mr. Reston, "Negotiating with the Russians is like playing tennis on a court without lines or umpires. If the indefatigable Mr. Molotov hits one into the net (as he often does) and cries 'good,' there is nothing you can do about it except argue. If you call in the French, the British, and the Chinese, and they all say, sorry, it went into the net, Mr. Molotov is not only adamant but angry. Did we not agree, he says, on 'the rule of unanimity'?"

To the Soviet mind, this is not, apparently, either dishonest or unethical. The Soviet diplomats enter every debate knowing precisely what the result must be. As Mr. Byrnes, the former Secretary of State, once said to Molotov, "We start with the facts and try . . . . to reach true and fair conclusions, while you start with the conclusions you want and try to select and twist the facts to your own ends." But even that, Mr. Reston observes, does not tell all the story. Russian policy, as shown in the various conferences held since the war, is a morass of contradictions. At one time, for instance, the Russians were completely opposed to the inclusion of France in the Council of Foreign Ministers, and the first meeting of the Council collapsed, having achieved nothing whatsoever, over this issue. But, at the second meeting of the Council, the Russians demanded that France participate in the discussions. The obvious reason was that they then wanted to make a good impression on the French people, and the Soviet high command could see no reason why it shouldn't abandon its first stand without explanation or embarrassment. This has happened time and time again and, of course, is a main reason why hundreds of international meetings of one kind or another have been held without major result.

One more difficulty lies in the fact that the Soviet diplomats, even including Molotov, are watched like hawks by Moscow, and a statement made by one of them one day may be disavowed by the Kremlin the next. When this happens, the diplomat simply reverses his position and the arguing starts all over again. The representatives of the other powers naturally find this maddening, but there's nothing they can do about it. Cases are on record where the powers have accepted Soviet demands in all particulars —and then the Russians have vetoed the final draft on some obscure technical question of phraseology.

Mr. Reston gives several enlightening reasons for the Soviet attitude. For one thing, the Russians still feel that they were unjustly treated after World War 1, when the Allied troops were sent into Siberia, and the major powers refused them formal recognition for many years. The seeds of bitterness which were planted then still flower. Another, and perhaps more cogent reason, is that negotiation in the Anglo-American sense of the word is alien to the Russian mind. In the United States, as an example, labor negotiates with industry, industry negotiates with government, the President negotiates with Congress, etc. Negotiation of some sort is our traditional means of settling every difference. In the Soviet Union, to the contrary, everything is done by order, and a sort of gigantic chain-of-command system prevails which no one who values his neck opposes. As Mr. Reston says, "Even Molotov does not 'negotiate' with Stalin."

From the Soviet point of view, the eccentric Soviet diplomatic practices are producing excellent results. Of major importance, they force interminable delay in deciding almost every problem, from the smallest to the greatest. They thus constitute blocking tactics of remarkable effectiveness. And, while the weary talk goes on, the Russian empire extends inexorably outward. Little by little—and perhaps far faster than most of us realize—the Russians are getting what they want.

Mr. Reston is too able and experienced an observer to offer any pat solution to the problem of negotiating with the Russians—indeed, his whole article is designed to show that pat solutions are worthless. He simply observes that whether we like it or not, there are almost 200,000,000 Russians in the world, and they have a very high birth rate. It is obviously impossible to ignore them, and few people want to fight them if a fight is unavoidable. Perhaps, through trial and error, some workable basis of negotiation between the Eastern and Western worlds will eventually be reached. But it looks like a long, tough job, and many more setbacks must be expected.

Whittier made the barefoot boy famous, but he never attracted nearly the attention his bare-legged sister does now.

Gardener's Return After A Restless Vacation Trip

For the ingrained gardener no vacation away from home can be perfect. Sight-seeing, he is sure to come across other gardens and to wonder with a pang how his own is going. No matter how hard he plays, the thought will rise in his mind that he could be using his energy to better purposes. Long days of idleness only reminds him that he would be working happily in his vegetable garden if he could get to it.

The gardener can and does, of course, take himself firmly in hand at such moments. He does not entertain these invaders of his peace; he gets rid of them as promptly as may be. But he cannot help knowing that while he is away the weather, the insects and the ailments garden crops are heir to may be getting in their deadly work. This knowledge will rise up to plague him when he least expects it.

Much can happen to a garden in a few short days. Even a brief drought can kill seedlings in need of water. Meanwhile, the weeds will grow as they always do. During a vacation of two weeks a garden can become a ruin.

So the gardener is likely to become increasingly restless as his vacation wears on. Once home, it is not long before he is surveying his plot and finding, no doubt, that his fears were exaggerated.

It could be a lot worse. Next year, he vows, he will not permit himself a moment's worry about it. He will keep that pledge, too—until vacation time.

SCHOOL AND THE ASTHMATIC CHILD

THIS month brings a marked reorganization of the lives of thousands of youngsters who enter first grade. Existence for the next decade or more will no longer consist of carefree play. Something new has been added in the form of homework, discipline, and learning to adjust to strangers. For parents too there is a change for they realize with nostalgia that little chicks have a habit of growing up and leaving the nest.

The average child adapts readily to the new surroundings tho the sensitive and sheltered boy or girl may find the period somewhat difficult. But to the asthmatic child even more of a problem is presented. The novelty and excitement of the new adventure is almost certain to bring on a bout of wheezing and unless the situation is handled intelligently by family and teacher, it is likely to prove the start of a vicious cycle. The young one will soon recover from the acute symptoms. But on attempting to return to class, the whole performance may be repeated, because school is associated with a distressing experience. This is why it is so important that the first encounter with the process of education be handled in a skilful manner.

Asthmatics, as a whole, possess a characteristic mental make-up, which is usually inherited. The parent who passes on the trait exhibits some form of abnormal response to the environment. Allergic individuals are likely to be mercurial, excitable, and domineering and when two people with such dispositions live in the same household, a clash of personalities is the rule. But since the adult has the power of authority behind him he generally wins, causing suppression of the child's aggressive tendencies.

When a disturbing or unusual situation arises, the boy is frightened because he lacks confidence. In this pre-asthmatic stage, his personality becomes a mixture of dependence and independence—he wants to assert himself but feels too insecure. When the predisposition to asthma exists, such conflicting factors at an early period of socialization when the tot is more or less feeling his way in a complex world, will precipitate an attack of asthma when the predisposition exists. Thereafter, bouts appear whenever the circumstances are appropriate. Obviously not all domineering parents and aggressive-dependent children become asthmatic. But Swanton believes that this is the psychologic explanation of the disorder.

As a rule, asthmatic pupils have high intelligent quotients tho they are better on verbal tests than performance ability. Such youngsters are extremely susceptible to suggestion and become upset by grisly stories and movies, the sight of blood, or injustices of various types. Fortunately, however, suggestibility can be equally helpful in bringing relief. Hence it is up to parents and teachers to eliminate tension, stress, and strain, particularly when the child first enters school.

The immediate attack can be cured quickly by various measures, especially if the child has confidence in the physician. The fuss-budget parent, however, should be reeducated so that she will cease smothering her offspring by fussiness, insistence on obedience in every minor detail, and a perfection complex. In other words her rigid attitude must be relaxed so that the youngster is given a break. By becoming more impersonal and allowing the child to assume responsibilities suited to his years, he can be helped to lead a more normal life.

YES AND NO

H. J. writes: Is a local anesthetic sufficient in removing piles?

REPLY

This question is best answered by the surgeon. Sometimes, by injecting an anesthetic, the tissues become distorted and swollen, making the operation more difficult. On the other hand, there are cases where the procedure is desirable.

EYE DISTURBANCE

Mrs. R. writes: What causes congenital glaucoma?

REPLY

This uncommon condition usually results from the presence of another defect which causes interference with the circulation of the fluid in the eyes. As a consequence, tension within the eyeball increases.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

People who live in glass houses can now afford to throw stones, the glass houses I refer to are hothouses where they grow the nation's flowers, which, according to a survey, are blossoming out into a billion dollar business. Yes sir, now when you see a guy digging in his garden, he's not only digging up weeds. He's burying his money.

When my brother heard of the big money involved in gardening, he went into it, lock stock and wheelbarrow. He couldn't make it work, though, he drank his roses and wound up potted.

I guess this business isn't for amateurs. It's hard work and the expert horticulturists are constantly at work looking for newer and more expensive varieties to put on the market. Just this week they crossed a pussywillow with an orchid and came up with the rarest flower of all . . . a mink daisy.

Now that flowers are such a big business, I understand they auditioned Speed Riggs to be a flower auctioneer. He had to give it up the first week, though. He couldn't get past rhododendron.

We'll now find a ticker tape next to every bird bath. I had a few shares of petunia stock, some Pansy, and a few dozen amalgamated roses. . . . but everything happens to me. Carmen Miranda sold her hat and the bottom fell out.

HEY, MISTER, IT'S RUNNING OVER

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Is Critical Of Dr. Vannever Bush's Wartime Research Work And May Not Name Him To Head Research And Development Board

Says ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

WASHINGTON. — Dr. Vannevar Bush's eager ambition to be head of the newly created Research and Development Board is running into some rough going in inner White House quarters.

The powerful agency was established by the armed forces unification law enacted by the last Congress. Bush is currently chief of Army-Navy Research Activities and a lot of undercover wire-pulling, particularly by the military, is being exerted in his behalf to get him the RDB job.

Chances of this drive succeeding are still good. But if Bush is named, he will have to toe the mark as far as President Truman is concerned.

The President made this sharply clear at a White House conference on the appointment question. Present at the meeting were Defense Secretary James Forrestal, General Eisenhower, Admiral Nimitz, Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, and several other high defense officials.

Truman spoke very critically of Bush as head of Wartime Research operations. In restrained but emphatic terms, the President charged Bush with being largely responsible for the passage of the hodge-podge Science Foundation Bill, under which government research would have been lumped in a military-dominated agency over which the government would have had practically no control. Truman vetoed the measure in a stinging message.

The President told his defense chiefs he was still undecided whether he would appoint Bush.

"I want to think that over a while longer," the President declared. "I'm still very much undecided what to do about it. But if I should decide to give Dr. Bush this job, I can tell you that we're going to keep a very close eye on him."

Note: The Army and Navy are having difficulty unloading on U. S. industries and universities the numerous German scientists brought to the U. S. after V-J Day. The military is now through with most of these men and wants to get rid of them, but doesn't want to send them back to Germany for fear the Russians will grab them. However, U. S. scientists, who are largely very disparaging of the calibre of the Germans, are vigorously objecting to their remaining in this country.

Missing Guest

Trim, soft-spoken President Sockawati of East Indonesia created quite a furor in the August State Department the other day. He was scheduled to be there at 11 a. m. to make a formal call. But the hour passed, and no President Sockawati.

State Department officials immediately conjured up dire possibilities: assassination, kidnapping, etc. A frantic search was immediately instituted. In the midst of the excitement the distinguished guest arrived—calm and beaming, with a camera in his hand.

"Where have you been, sir?" he asked. "We've been terribly worried."

"I'm very sorry," was the surprised reply. "But on the way here I passed the White House and noticed people taking pictures. I thought it was a very good idea. So I did, too. I think it's a delightful tourist custom, don't you?"

Note: East Indonesia (Bali) is at peace with Holland and not involved in the current fighting. The hereditary ruller of East Indonesia is a young, western-educated Sultan.

Merry-Go-Round

Clifford Durr, hard-hitting liberal Federal Communications Commissioner, may resign to accept a [illegible] scholastic job. Two Southern University presidencies have been offered him. . . . Not all congressmen are junketing. Representative J. M. Combs of Beaumont, Texas, one of the ablest and most respected men in the House, is hard at work in the Washington heat on legislative problems. . . . Big political question in Minnesota is ex-Gov. Harold Stassen's stand on Senator Joe Ball's re-election. Ball got to the Senate originally by Stassen's appointment; is already busily campaigning for next year's fight. But to date, Stassen has not declared for him. . . . As a result of the far-reaching improvements and reforms introduced in Veterans' Hospitals by Dr. Paul Hawley, brilliant, indefatigable VA Medical Chief, the turnover rate of patients has increased by more than 100 per cent.

Reaching For Stars

Hectic scramble for stars is under way in the upper reaches of the Army, AAF, Navy and Marine Corps.

The military promotion bill enacted in the final hours of the last Congress fixed the number of Generals and Admirals in the four services. The Army with 599 Generals on its rolls was cut to 334; 184 for the Ground Forces, 150 for the AAF. The Navy with 296 Admirals was whittled to 207. The Marine Corps with 47 Generals was limited to 36.

These levels will necessitate a drastic reshuffling of brass hats. A small percentage will be retired. But a number will have to be reduced in ranks.

To escape this, with attendant reduction in pay and numerous privileges, there is a lot of undercover jockeying and maneuvering, particularly in the Army. Despite their disdain of "politicians," some of the hottest politics to be found anywhere is played in inner army circles.

Note: Under the new law, the Army will have four 4-Star Generals; the AAF three; the Marine Corps one; the Navy three 4-Star Admirals. Former Navy Secretary James Forrestal tried to boost the number to 10 for the Army and Navy. But former War Secretary Robert Patterson flatly opposed this and Congress backed him.

Truman Defines

When Peter Maguire, son of the Chief Justice of Ireland, called at the White House, President Truman remarked that there are "more Irishmen in the United States than in Ireland."

"That's true, sir," grinned young Maguire, who was accompanied by 17-year-old John Spain and Pat and Dick Flynn, sons of Bronx Democratic Boss Ed Flynn. "Many people don't realize that North and South Ireland combined have a population of only about 4,000,000 people."

Young Maguire added that many Irish immigrants came to the U. S. because of "your fine opportunities and democracy."

"We have a republic and not a democracy, Peter," corrected the President, "The only place in our country where there is a genuine democracy is in the New England town meeting. Our governmental system is based on Democratic principles, but if you get down to a fine definition, the nation would have to be classified as a republic."

Labor's Threat To Ignore Part Of Labor Act Confronts Truman

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

THE LAW . . . "It is unlawful . . . for any corporation whatever or any labor organization to make a contribution or expenditure in connection with any election at which Presidential or Vice Presidential electors or a Senator or Representative . . . are to be voted for, or in connection with any primary election or political convention or caucus held to select candidates for any of the foregoing offices . . . Every corporation or labor organization which makes any contribution or expenditure in violation of this section shall be fined not more than $5,000."

—Sec. 313, Labor Management Relations Act, 1947.

THE LAW which union leaders say they will not obey was passed over President Truman's veto by two-thirds majority by both Democrats and Republicans.

Labor union members, as well as stockholders, and all citizens are of course free to vote for or against any candidate for any office.

That freedom is inalienable. It belongs to the individual in the privacy of the voting booth. That freedom must be preserved. Congress has acted to preserve it.

To preserve this freedom, Congress, 22 years ago, forbade corporations and banks to contribute money to elect or defeat candidates.

Then, in the new law which union leaders refuse to obey, Congress has extended the prohibition to labor unions as well.

The use of such funds, either by a corporation or a union, violates the constitutional right of the individual. For money paid in by either a union member or a stockholder may then be used to defeat a candidate whom the union member or stockholder wants to elect, or to elect a candidate whom he wishes to defeat.

No board of directors of a corporation, or official of a labor union, has any moral or legal right to use an individual's money for such a purpose. It is just as wrong to force him to contribute money to a political campaign as it would be to force him to mark his ballot the way the union or the corporation directs.

The individual must be protected in his right to spend his money politically as he pleases and to vote as he pleases. Neither his vote nor his money must be used by any group to which he belongs without his consent.

The right to vote, or contribute to a campaign belongs to no group. It belongs to the individual American citizen and to him alone, to use as his conscience may direct.

Every member of a labor union should be the first to protest against the use of his money in political campaigns without his consent.

Congress, in prohibiting not only contributions but expenditures, had in mind two purposes: (1) to protect the right of the union member against having his money used politically without his consent; (2) to prevent corruption in elections by the secret use of huge funds, wholly outside of organized political committees which, under law, are limited in the amount they may spend and which must make detailed public reports to Congress.

Both of these purposes are clearly in the public interest. Both are designed to insure elections which honestly reflect the wishes of a majority of our citizens. In short, "government by the consent of the governed," which is the foundation stone of free government.

Now the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L. defy the law.

Question: Will the President of the United States and his Attorney General enforce the law—as they are sworn to do?

Public Opinion Poll Questions Often Far-Fetched, Writer Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—With all due respect to the scientific endeavors of the public-opinion poll-takers, they sometimes select questions which are somewhat far-fetched and tend to emphasize how much the people do not know about civics rather than what the people think about specific points in current affairs.

Thus, the Gallup Poll has discovered that four out of five voters do not know what man would move into the White House if President Truman were removed from office by accident or other cause.

Is this a piece of pertinent information? Does the fact that 51 per cent said they didn't know and 19 per cent answered that Secretary of State Marshall would be the successor mean that the voters are lacking in intelligence or knowledge? Does it mean that the newspapers which recently printed the fact that a law altering the custom on presidential succession was passed by Congress didn't display the item sufficiently or that, for reasons or typographical make-up the readers missed it?

Not Greatly Concerned

The answer would seem to be none of these. Much more plausible is the belief that the public isn't too much concerned with theoretical happenings and is more familiar with things that are customary and happen often. This is a simple psychological premise.

After all, the death of a President does not happen very frequently. From 1865, when Lincoln was assassinated, to 1881, when Garfield met violent death at the hands of a disappointed office-seeker, there was a space of 16 years. From that time till the assassination of McKinley in 1901 there was a span of 20 years. Then 22 years elapsed before President Harding died of pneumonia. From 1923 to 1945, when President Roosevelt died, another 22 years elapsed. In each case a Vice-President succeeded to the presidency so the recent Gallup Poll really deals with something that has never happened in American history—namely, the death or removal of a President who has been Vice-President so that no Vice-President is available for succession. The unfamiliarity of the public with the way presidential succession works is not a reflection either of its knowledge or intelligence.

Interesting Points

After all, how many persons could answer correctly the question of what happens if Speaker Martin of the House—who, under the new law, is first in line to become President—were to die in that office? A poll would show that even fewer persons know the answer to that one. Assuming, also, that those who did answer correctly that the "President Pro Tem" of the Senate, Senator Vandenberg, would succeed Mr. Martin, how many would be able to answer correctly what happens after that? The provisions of the law passed a few weeks ago then go back to the old custom whereby the Secretary of State succeeds the Speaker and Senate President if both should die and after that the other nine cabinet officers are in line for Presidential succession in the order of their rank.

How many people, even when the old law was in effect, could answer off-hand what Cabinet officer came after the Secretary of State? How many would know that the rank is fixed by the date on which each cabinet post was created originally by Congress and that the Secretary of the Treasury comes next to the Secretary of State?

All these points might be interesting as $64 questions on a quiz program but are they of any practical importance to the citizen in his everyday life? Is it the kind of information he is expected to acquire to be a useful citizen? Isn't it more important that he should know what a President and Congress are doing and the meaning to him of the laws and decisions of the court on major questions? Isn't it more important for a public-opinion poll to tell what the people are thinking about than what they know about remote contingencies or abstract questions in civics? Maybe a poll of the pollsters is in order—or perhaps a poll of the public to find out what they would like to know from the poll-takers.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

PACTOMANIA

F. A. Voight, in "The Nineteenth Century and After," perhaps the best of British publications, coins a new word "Pactomania." It is an excellent word to describe the current retreat from international law and substitution therefore of special agreements covering a vast number of general and special subjects, all related in fact and unreleated by pact. It is total anarchy following a devastating war.

International law did not prevent nations from going to war but it did provide a mechanism for making peace. There were procedures which nations accepted even while at war. Poison gas was not used in this last war because of vestigal respect for international law. The general assumption was that war was an evil, inevitable perhaps but not justifiable by morals. A treaty was accepted as a contract, inviolable for its duration. That does not mean that there were no violators, just as theves and even murderers exist in spite of all the laws against them.

The current plague of pacts is that they are deals among nations based upon nothing more fundamental than the hurried need to get something done. Teheran and Yalta remain astonishing examples of such deals, being little better than private transactions not only to despoil the enemy but to rob weaker and smaller allies. Certainly, the scuttling of the League of Nations at San Francisco and the establishment of the United Nations represents not historic logic but makeshift pactomania. For the structure and process of the League was closer to international law than the unbelievable confusions of the United Nations with its emphasis on unanimity, which is a euphemism for Veto.

Voigt makes an extraordinary good point when he says:

". . . Agreements between States are freely contracted, and this freedom of contract is impaired, or even destroyed, if the contracts are subjected to a general coercive authority. Even war ends, or ought to end, in agreement, for agreement is the foundation of peace, and the object of war is peace. It is true that an agreement ending war—that is to say, a treaty of peace—is a forced agreement. But . . . peace, to be a true peace, must be a just peace, engendering a status which will, in course of time, be freely accepted. A just war will end in such a peace, or will create the foundation of such a peace. A just war is one that is waged for a just peace. If the war is not just, the peace will not be just. And if the peace is not just, the war cannot have been just, even if it may have begun a just war. The Second World War, as waged by the Allied Powers, began as a just war, but in its course it changed its character, and the result is an unjust peace . . . To make unconditional surrender the over-riding purpose of a war, is to substitute a wrong for a right . . . When the Allied Powers proclaimed unconditional surrender as their war-aim, they struck at the Rule of Law itself."

That is the essence of most of our current troubles. The war turned out to be a bad war because it produced a bad peace. It produced a bad peace because international law was deserted. And somehow we cannot get away from the badness of the peace; therefore there is no peace at all anywhere. The fact that we are unable to solve any major problems, Germany, Japan, the Atomic Bomb, the policing of Europe, etc., is due largely to the lack of guiding principles in international law. Each transaction is separate without regard to any general assumptions and when the pacts conflict with wishes and desires and current internal politics, or with each other, nothing comes of the many conferences and meetings but new conferences and more meetings.

It must be noted that geographically Russia accomplished what Hitler tried and failed to accomplish. When Hitler was engaged upon these territorial changes, we said they were wrong and went to war because of them; but when Russia does the same thing, we dare not even discuss the morals of the case because morals have disappeared along with the disappearance of international law.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Even Death Is Birth!

Walking around the rugged acres of Weskawenaak, my island retreat here in Nova Scotia, I come across nothing in a static state. I recall the statement of Thoreou that "Nature presents nothing in a state of death." Nature keeps moving and changing, never remaining the same. The rocks gather moss and moisture, the dead trees change to dust, and finally into the earth itself.

Every fact in Nature points to the immortality of human life. Death merely becomes a transition, as Longfellow has so beautifully stated in one of his poems. There isn't a single death in Nature that isn't replaced with something else. Life there is continuous. Just what form we shall take after this earthly journey we do not know. I cannot be convinced, however, that death is merely the end.

We miss those of our beloved, but with each oncoming year, that memory of them becomes more precious, and the reunion with them at some future time, more convincing. Perhaps some of them really do come back, reincarnated into some agency of beauty or love, returned to give us renewed hope, or to appease a hunger of the heart.

Even death is birth! If more of us would think of death as this, then the grief that so overcomes us at times, would not only be lessened, but totally wiped out with knowledge that faith could well sponsor. And we must call upon this faith of ours to sponsor many a belief and many a journey into the unknown.

Nature is man's great school—a great university, in which every phase of knowledge is efficiently set forth. There you will view both birth and death in all their many interesting forms, from the tiniest flower, or minutest insect, to the greatest of animals. In animate life the same mother care no matter what the species. The one great law of nature is that life must go on. We cannot be bigger than nature. We are merely students. But a student is one who is forever learning!

Even may we look out and far beyond. And let our daily prayer be that one of Robert Louis Stevenson: "Give us courage and gaiety and the quiet mind."

Soviet Purposes, Diplomatic Technique And Her Mentality

The lead article in Harper's Magazine last month was devoted to the important and much-misunderstood subject of "Negotiating With Russia." Written by James B. Reston, long-time diplomatic correspondent of the New York Times, it casts a good deal of light on Soviet purposes, Soviet diplomatic techniques, and Soviet mentality.

First of all, says Mr. Reston, "Negotiating with the Russians is like playing tennis on a court without lines or umpires. If the indefatigable Mr. Molotov hits one into the net (as he often does) and cries 'good,' there is nothing you can do about it except argue. If you call in the French, the British, and the Chinese, and they all say, sorry, it went into the net, Mr. Molotov is not only adamant but angry. Did we not agree, he says, on 'the rule of unanimity'?"

To the Soviet mind, this is not, apparently, either dishonest or unethical. The Soviet diplomats enter every debate knowing precisely what the result must be. As Mr. Byrnes, the former Secretary of State, once said to Molotov, "We start with the facts and try . . . . to reach true and fair conclusions, while you start with the conclusions you want and try to select and twist the facts to your own ends." But even that, Mr. Reston observes, does not tell all the story. Russian policy, as shown in the various conferences held since the war, is a morass of contradictions. At one time, for instance, the Russians were completely opposed to the inclusion of France in the Council of Foreign Ministers, and the first meeting of the Council collapsed, having achieved nothing whatsoever, over this issue. But, at the second meeting of the Council, the Russians demanded that France participate in the discussions. The obvious reason was that they then wanted to make a good impression on the French people, and the Soviet high command could see no reason why it shouldn't abandon its first stand without explanation or embarrassment. This has happened time and time again and, of course, is a main reason why hundreds of international meetings of one kind or another have been held without major result.

One more difficulty lies in the fact that the Soviet diplomats, even including Molotov, are watched like hawks by Moscow, and a statement made by one of them one day may be disavowed by the Kremlin the next. When this happens, the diplomat simply reverses his position and the arguing starts all over again. The representatives of the other powers naturally find this maddening, but there's nothing they can do about it. Cases are on record where the powers have accepted Soviet demands in all particulars—and then the Russians have vetoed the final draft on some obscure technical question of phraseology.

Mr. Reston gives several enlightening reasons for the Soviet attitude. For one thing, the Russians still feel that they were unjustly treated after World War 1, when the Allied troops were sent into Siberia, and the major powers refused them formal recognition for many years. The seeds of bitterness which were planted then still flower. Another, and perhaps more cogent reason, is that negotiation in the Anglo-American sense of the word is alien to the Russian mind. In the United States, as an example, labor negotiates with industry, industry negotiates with government, the President negotiates with Congress, etc. Negotiation of some sort is our traditional means of settling every difference. In the Soviet Union, to the contrary, everything is done by order, and a sort of gigantic chain-of-command system prevails which no one who values his neck opposes. As Mr. Reston says, "Even Molotov does not 'negotiate' with Stalin."

From the Soviet point of view, the eccentric Soviet diplomatic practices are producing excellent results. Of major importance, they force interminable delay in deciding almost every problem, from the smallest to the greatest. They thus constitute blocking tactics of remarkable effectiveness. And, while the weary talk goes on, the Russian empire extends inexorably outward. Little by little—and perhaps far faster than most of us realize—the Russians are getting what they want.

Mr. Reston is too able and experienced an observer to offer any pat solution to the problem of negotiating with the Russians—indeed, his whole article is designed to show that pat solutions are worthless. He simply observes that whether we like it or not, there are almost 200,000,000 Russians in the world, and they have a very high birth rate. It is obviously impossible to ignore them, and few people want to fight them if a fight is unavoidable. Perhaps, through trial and error, some workable basis of negotiation between the Eastern and Western worlds will eventually be reached. But it looks like a long, tough job, and many more setbacks must be expected.

Gardener's Return After A Restless Vacation Trip

For the ingrained gardener no vacation away from home can be perfect. Sight-seeing, he is sure to come across other gardens and to wonder with a pang how his own is going. No matter how hard he plays, the thought will rise in his mind that he could be using his energy to better purposes. Long days of idleness only reminds him that he would be working happily in his vegetable garden if he could get to it.

The gardener can and does, of course, take himself firmly in hand at such moments. He does not entertain these invaders of his peace; he gets rid of them as promptly as may be. But he cannot help knowing that while he is away the weather, the insects and the ailments garden crops are heir to may be getting in their deadly work. This knowledge will rise up to plague him when he least expects it.

Much can happen to a garden in a few short days. Even a brief drought can kill seedlings in need of water. Meanwhile, the weeds will grow as they always do. During a vacation of two weeks a garden can become a ruin.

So the gardener is likely to become increasingly restless as his vacation wears on. Once home, it is not long before he is surveying his plot and finding, no doubt, that his fears were exaggerated.

It could be a lot worse. Next year, he vows, he will not permit himself a moment's worry about it. He will keep that pledge, too—until vacation time.

SCHOOL AND THE ASTHMATIC CHILD

THIS month brings a marked reorganization of the lives of thousands of youngsters who enter first grade. Existence for the next decade or more will no longer consist of carefree play. Something new has been added in the form of homework, discipline, and learning to adjust to strangers. For parents too there is a change for they realize with nostalgia that little chicks have a habit of growing up and leaving the nest.

The average child adapts readily to the new surroundings tho the sensitive and sheltered boy or girl may find the period somewhat difficult. But to the asthmatic child even more of a problem is presented. The novelty and excitement of the new adventure is almost certain to bring on a bout of wheezing and unless the situation is handled intelligently by family and teacher, it is likely to prove the start of a vicious cycle. The young one will soon recover from the acute symptoms. But on attempting to return to class, the whole performance may be repeated, because school is associated with a distressing experience. This is why it is so important that the first encounter with the process of education be handled in a skilful manner.

Asthmatics, as a whole, possess a characteristic mental make-up, which is usually inherited. The parent who passes on the trait exhibits some form of abnormal response to the environment. Allergic individuals are likely to be mercurial, excitable, and domineering and when two people with such dispositions live in the same household, a clash of personalities is the rule. But since the adult has the power of authority behind him he generally wins, causing suppression of the child's aggressive tendencies.

When a disturbing or unusual situation arises, the boy is frightened because he lacks confidence. In this pre-asthmatic stage, his personality becomes a mixture of dependence and independence—he wants to assert himself but feels too insecure. When the predisposition to asthma exists, such conflicting factors at an early period of socialization when the tot is more or less feeling his way in a complex world, will precipitate an attack of asthma when the predisposition exists. Thereafter, bouts appear whenever the circumstances are appropriate. Obviously not all domineering parents and aggressive-dependent children become asthmatic. But Swanton believes that this is the psychologic explanation of the disorder.

As a rule, asthmatic pupils have high intelligent quotients tho they are better on verbal tests than performance ability. Such youngsters are extremely susceptible to suggestion and become upset by grisly stories and movies, the sight of blood, or injustices of various types. Fortunately, however, suggestibility can be equally helpful in bringing relief. Hence it is up to parents and teachers to eliminate tension, stress, and strain, particularly when the child first enters school.

The immediate attack can be cured quickly by various measures, especially if the child has confidence in the physician. The fuss-budget parent, however, should be reeducated so that she will cease smothering her offspring by fussiness, insistence on obedience in every minor detail, and a perfection complex. In other words her rigid attitude must be relaxed so that the youngster is given a break. By becoming more impersonal and allowing the child to assume responsibilities suited to his years, he can be helped to lead a more normal life.

YES AND NO

H. J. writes: Is a local anesthetic sufficient in removing piles?

REPLY

This question is best answered by the surgeon. Sometimes, by injecting an anesthetic, the tissues become distorted and swollen, making the operation more difficult. On the other hand, there are cases where the procedure is desirable.

EYE DISTURBANCE

Mrs. R. writes: What causes congenital glaucoma?

REPLY

This uncommon condition usually results from the presence of another defect which causes interference with the circulation of the fluid in the eyes. As a consequence, tension within the eyeball increases.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

People who live in glass houses can now afford to throw stones, the glass houses I refer to are hothouses where they grow the nation's flowers, which, according to a survey, are blossoming out into a billion dollar business. Yes sir, now when you see a guy digging in his garden, he's not only digging up weeds. He's burying his money.

When my brother heard of the big money involved in gardening, he went into it, lock stock and wheelbarrow. He couldn't make it work, though, he drank his roses and wound up potted.

I guess this business isn't for amateurs. It's hard work and the expert horticulturists are constantly at work looking for newer and more expensive varieties to put on the market. Just this week they crossed a pussywillow with an orchid and came up with the rarest flower of all . . . a mink daisy.

Now that flowers are such a big business, I understand they auditioned Speed Riggs to be a flower auctioneer. He had to give it up the first week, though. He couldn't get past rhododendron.

We'll now find a ticker tape next to every bird bath. I had a few shares of petunia stock, some Pansy, and a few dozen amalgamated roses. . . . but everything happens to me. Carmen Miranda sold her hat and the bottom fell out.

HEY, MISTER, IT'S RUNNING OVER

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Is Critical Of Dr. Vannever Bush's Wartime Research Work And May Not Name Him To Head Research And Development Board

Says ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

WASHINGTON. — Dr. Vannevar Bush's eager ambition to be head of the newly created Research and Development Board is running into some rough going in inner White House quarters.

The powerful agency was established by the armed forces unification law enacted by the last Congress. Bush is currently chief of Army-Navy Research Activities and a lot of undercover wire-pulling, particularly by the military, is being exerted in his behalf to get him the RDB job.

Chances of this drive succeeding are still good. But if Bush is named, he will have to toe the mark as far as President Truman is concerned.

The President made this sharply clear at a White House conference on the appointment question. Present at the meeting were Defense Secretary James Forrestal, General Eisenhower, Admiral Nimitz, Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, and several other high defense officials.

Truman spoke very critically of Bush as head of Wartime Research operations. In restrained but emphatic terms, the President charged Bush with being largely responsible for the passage of the hodgepodge Science Foundation Bill, under which government research would have been lumped in a military-dominated agency over which the government would have had practically no control. Truman vetoed the measure in a stinging message.

The President told his defense chiefs he was still undecided whether he would appoint Bush.

"I want to think that over a while longer," the President declared. "I'm still very much undecided what to do about it. But if I should decide to give Dr. Bush this job, I can tell you that we're going to keep a very close eye on him."

Note: The Army and Navy are having difficulty unloading on U. S. industries and universities the numerous German scientists brought to the U. S. after V-J Day. The military is now through with most of these men and wants to get rid of them, but doesn't want to send them back to Germany for fear the Russians will grab them. However, U. S. scientists, who are largely very disparaging of the calibre of the Germans, are vigorously objecting to their remaining in this country.

Missing Guest

Trim, soft-spoken President Sockawati of East Indonesia created quite a furor in the August State Department the other day. He was scheduled to be there at 11 a. m. to make a formal call. But the hour passed, and no President Sockawati.

State Department officials immediately conjured up dire possibilities: assassination, kidnapping, etc. A frantic search was immediately instituted. In the midst of the excitement the distinguished guest arrived—calm and beaming, with a camera in his hand.

"Where have you been, sir?" he asked. "We've been terribly worried."

"I'm very sorry," was the surprised reply. "But on the way here I passed the White House and noticed people taking pictures. I thought it was a very good idea. So I did, too. I think it's a delightful tourist custom, don't you?"

Note: East Indonesia (Bali) is at peace with Holland and not involved in the current fighting. The hereditary ruller of East Indonesia is a young, western-educated Sultan.

Merry-Go-Round

Clifford Durr, hard-hitting liberal Federal Communications Commissioner, may resign to accept a [illegible] scholastic job. Two Southern University presidencies have been offered him. . . . Not all congressmen are junketing. Representative J. M. Combs of Beaumont, Texas, one of the ablest and most respected men in the House, is hard at work in the Washington heat on legislative problems. . . . Big political question in Minnesota is ex-Gov. Harold Stassen's stand on Senator Joe Ball's re-election. Ball got to the Senate originally by Stassen's appointment; is already busily campaigning for next year's fight. But to date, Stassen has not declared for him. . . . As a result of the far-reaching improvements and reforms introduced in Veterans' Hospitals by Dr. Paul Hawley, brilliant, indefatigable VA Medical Chief, the turnover rate of patients has increased by more than 100 per cent.

Reaching For Stars

Hectic scramble for stars is under way in the upper reaches of the Army, AAF, Navy and Marine Corps.

The military promotion bill enacted in the final hours of the last Congress fixed the number of Generals and Admirals in the four services. The Army with 599 Generals on its rolls was cut to 334; 184 for the Ground Forces, 150 for the AAF. The Navy with 296 Admirals was whittled to 207. The Marine Corps with 47 Generals was limited to 36.

These levels will necessitate a drastic reshuffling of brass hats. A small percentage will be retired. But a number will have to be reduced in ranks.

To escape this, with attendant reduction in pay and numerous privileges, there is a lot of undercover jockeying and maneuvering, particularly in the Army. Despite their disdain of "politicians," some of the hottest politics to be found anywhere is played in inner army circles.

Note: Under the new law, the Army will have four 4-Star Generals; the AAF three; the Marine Corps one; the Navy three 4-Star Admirals. Former Navy Secretary James Forrestal tried to boost the number to 10 for the Army and Navy. But former War Secretary Robert Patterson flatly opposed this and Congress backed him.

Truman Defines

When Peter Maguire, son of the Chief Justice of Ireland, called at the White House, President Truman remarked that there are "more Irishmen in the United States than in Ireland."

"That's true, sir," grinned young Maguire, who was accompanied by 17-year-old John Spain and Pat and Dick Flynn, sons of Bronx Democratic Boss Ed Flynn. "Many people don't realize that North and South Ireland combined have a population of only about 4,000,000 people."

Young Maguire added that many Irish immigrants came to the U. S. because of "your fine opportunities and democracy."

"We have a republic and not a democracy, Peter," corrected the President, "The only place in our country where there is a genuine democracy is in the New England town meeting. Our governmental system is based on Democratic principles, but if you get down to a fine definition, the nation would have to be classified as a republic."

Labor's Threat To Ignore Part Of Labor Act Confronts Truman

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

THE LAW . . . "It is unlawful . . . for any corporation whatever or any labor organization to make a contribution or expenditure in connection with any election at which Presidential or Vice Presidential electors or a Senator or Representative . . . are to be voted for, or in connection with any primary election or political convention or caucus held to select candidates for any of the foregoing offices . . . Every corporation or labor organization which makes any contribution or expenditure in violation of this section shall be fined not more than $5,000."

—Sec. 313, Labor Management Relations Act, 1947.

THE LAW which union leaders say they will not obey was passed over President Truman's veto by two-thirds majority by both Democrats and Republicans.

Labor union members, as well as stockholders, and all citizens are of course free to vote for or against any candidate for any office.

That freedom is inalienable. It belongs to the individual in the privacy of the voting booth. That freedom must be preserved. Congress has acted to preserve it.

To preserve this freedom, Congress, 22 years ago, forbade corporations and banks to contribute money to elect or defeat candidates.

Then, in the new law which union leaders refuse to obey, Congress has extended the prohibition to labor unions as well.

The use of such funds, either by a corporation or a union, violates the constitutional right of the individual. For money paid in by either a union member or a stockholder may then be used to defeat a candidate whom the union member or stockholder wants to elect, or to elect a candidate whom he wishes to defeat.

No board of directors of a corporation, or official of a labor union, has any moral or legal right to use an individual's money for such a purpose. It is just as wrong to force him to contribute money to a political campaign as it would be to force him to mark his ballot the way the union or the corporation directs.

The individual must be protected in his right to spend his money politically as he pleases and to vote as he pleases. Neither his vote nor his money must be used by any group to which he belongs without his consent.

The right to vote, or contribute to a campaign belongs to no group. It belongs to the individual American citizen and to him alone, to use as his conscience may direct.

Every member of a labor union should be the first to protest against the use of his money in political campaigns without his consent.

Congress, in prohibiting not only contributions but expenditures, had in mind two purposes: (1) to protect the right of the union member against having his money used politically without his consent; (2) to prevent corruption in elections by the secret use of huge funds, wholly outside of organized political committees which, under law, are limited in the amount they may spend and which must make detailed public reports to Congress.

Both of these purposes are clearly in the public interest. Both are designed to insure elections which honestly reflect the wishes of a majority of our citizens. In short, "government by the consent of the governed," which is the foundation stone of free government.

Now the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L. defy the law.

Question: Will the President of the United States and his Attorney General enforce the law—as they are sworn to do?

Public Opinion Poll Questions Often Far-Fetched, Writer Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—With all due respect to the scientific endeavors of the public-opinion poll-takers, they sometimes select questions which are somewhat far-fetched and tend to emphasize how much the people do not know about civics rather than what the people think about specific points in current affairs.

Thus, the Gallup Poll has discovered that four out of five voters do not know what man would move into the White House if President Truman were removed from office by accident or other cause.

Is this a piece of pertinent information? Does the fact that 51 per cent said they didn't know and 19 per cent answered that Secretary of State Marshall would be the successor mean that the voters are lacking in intelligence or knowledge? Does it mean that the newspapers which recently printed the fact that a law altering the custom on presidential succession was passed by Congress didn't display the item sufficiently or that, for reasons or typographical make-up the readers missed it?

Not Greatly Concerned

The answer would seem to be none of these. Much more plausible is the belief that the public isn't too much concerned with theoretical happenings and is more familiar with things that are customary and happen often. This is a simple psychological premise.

After all, the death of a President does not happen very frequently. From 1865, when Lincoln was assassinated, to 1881, when Garfield met violent death at the hands of a disappointed office-seeker, there was a space of 16 years. From that time till the assassination of McKinley in 1901 there was a span of 20 years. Then 22 years elapsed before President Harding died of pneumonia. From 1923 to 1945, when President Roosevelt died, another 22 years elapsed.

In each case a Vice-President succeeded to the presidency so the recent Gallup Poll really deals with something that has never happened in American history—namely, the death or removal of a President who has been Vice-President so that no Vice-President is available for succession. The unfamiliarity of the public with the way presidential succession works is not a reflection either of its knowledge or intelligence.

Interesting Points

After all, how many persons could answer correctly the question of what happens if Speaker Martin of the House—who, under the new law, is first in line to become President—were to die in that office? A poll would show that even fewer persons know the answer to that one. Assuming, also, that those who did answer correctly that the "President Pro Tem' of the Senate, Senator Vandenberg, would succeed Mr. Martin, how many would be able to answer correctly what happens after that? The provisions of the law passed a few weeks ago then go back to the old custom whereby the Secretary of State succeeds the Speaker and Senate President if both should die and after that the other nine cabinet officers are in line for Presidential succession in the order of their rank.

How many people, even when the old law was in effect, could answer off-hand what Cabinet officer came after the Secretary of State? How many would know that the rank is fixed by the date on which each cabinet post was created originally by Congress and that the Secretary of the Treasury comes next to the Secretary of State?

All these points might be interesting as $64 questions on a quiz program but are they of any practical importance to the citizen in his everyday life? Is it the kind of information he is expected to acquire to be a useful citizen? Isn't it more important that he should know what a President and Congress are doing and the meaning to him of the laws and decisions of the court on major questions? Isn't it more important for a public-opinion poll to tell what the people are thinking about than what they know about remote contingencies or abstract questions in civics? Maybe a poll of the pollsters is in order—or perhaps a poll of the public to find out what they would like to know from the poll-takers.

THESE DAYS

By George E. Sokolsky

PACTOMANIA

F. A. Voight, in "The Nineteenth Century and After," perhaps the best of British publications, coins a new word "Pactomania." It is an excellent word to describe the current retreat from international law and substitution therefore of special agreements covering a vast number of general and special subjects, all related in fact and unreleated by pact. It is total anarchy following a devastating war.

International law did not prevent nations from going to war but it did provide a mechanism for making peace. There were procedures which nations accepted even while at war. Poison gas was not used in this last war because of vestigal respect for international law. The general assumption was that war was an evil, inevitable perhaps but not justifiable by morals. A treaty was accepted as a contract, inviolable for its duration. That does not mean that there were no violators, just as theves and even murderers exist in spite of all the laws against them.

The current plague of pacts is that they are deals among nations based upon nothing more fundamental than the hurried need to get something done. Teheran and Yalta remain astonishing examples of such deals, being little better than private transactions not only to despoil the enemy but to rob weaker and smaller allies. Certainly, the scuttling of the League of Nations at San Francisco and the establishment of the United Nations represents not historic logic but makeshift pactomania. For the structure and process of the League was closer to international law than the unbelievable confusions of the United Nations with its emphasis on unanimity, which is a euphemism for Veto.

Voigt makes an extraordinary good point when he says:

". . . Agreements between States are freely contracted, and this freedom of contract is impaired, or even destroyed, if the contracts are subjected to a general coercive authority. Even war ends, or ought to end, in agreement, for agreement is the foundation of peace, and the object of war is peace. It is true that an agreement ending war—that is to say, a treaty of peace—is a forced agreement. But . . . peace, to be a true peace, must be a just peace, engendering a status which will, in course of time, be freely accepted. A just war will end in such a peace, or will create the foundation of such a peace. A just war is one that is waged for a just peace. If the war is not just, the peace will not be just. And if the peace is not just, the war cannot have been just, even if it may have begun a just war. The Second World War, as waged by the Allied Powers, began as a just war, but in its course it changed its character, and the result is an unjust peace . . . To make unconditional surrender the over-riding purpose of a war, is to substitute a wrong for a right . . . When the Allied Powers proclaimed unconditional surrender as their war-aim, they struck at the Rule of Law itself."

That is the essence of most of our current troubles. The war turned out to be a bad war because it produced a bad peace. It produced a bad peace because international law was deserted. And somehow we cannot get away from the badness of the peace; therefore there is no peace at all anywhere. The fact that we are unable to solve any major problems, Germany, Japan, the Atomic Bomb, the policing of Europe, etc., is due largely to the lack of guiding principles in international law. Each transaction is separate without regard to any general assumptions and when the pacts conflict with wishes and desires and current internal politics, or with each other, nothing comes of the many conferences and meetings but new conferences and more meetings.

It must be noted that geographically Russia accomplished what Hitler tried and failed to accomplish. When Hitler was engaged upon these territorial changes, we said they were wrong and went to war because of them; but when Russia does the same thing, we dare not even discuss the morals of the case because morals have disappeared along with the disappearance of international law.

Today's Talk

Even Death Is Birth!

Walking around the rugged acres of Weskawenaak, my island retreat here in Nova Scotia, I come across nothing in a static state. I recall the statement of Thoreou that "Nature presents nothing in a state of death." Nature keeps moving and changing, never remaining the same. The rocks gather moss and moisture, the dead trees change to dust, and finally into the earth itself.

Every fact in Nature points to the immortality of human life. Death merely becomes a transition, as Longfellow has so beautifully stated in one of his poems. There isn't a single death in Nature that isn't replaced with something else. Life there is continuous. Just what form we shall take after this earthly journey we do not know. I cannot be convinced, however, that death is merely the end.

We miss those of our beloved, but with each oncoming year, that memory of them becomes more precious, and the reunion with them at some future time, more convincing. Perhaps some of them really do come back, reincarnated into some agency of beauty or love, returned to give us renewed hope, or to appease a hunger of the heart.

Even death is birth! If more of us would think of death as this, then the grief that so overcomes us at times, would not only be lessened, but totally wiped out with knowledge that faith could well sponsor. And we must call upon this faith of ours to sponsor many a belief and many a journey into the unknown.

Nature is man's great school—a great university, in which every phase of knowledge is efficiently set forth. There you will view both birth and death in all their many interesting forms, from the tiniest flower, or minutest insect, to the greatest of animals. In animate life the same mother care no matter what the species. The one great law of nature is that life must go on. We cannot be bigger than nature. We are merely students. But a student is one who is forever learning!

Even may we look out and far beyond. And let our daily prayer be that one of Robert Louis Stevenson: "Give us courage and gaiety and the quiet mind."

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

"The best laid plans of mice and men aft gang agley," sighed Major Timothy Morgan.

"Aft gang what?" I asked.

"Agley," said the self-commissioned major. "That's poetry, my unlettered friend. The music of the sweet singer Robert Burns. Translated, it means can you let me have twenty tiny dollars till next Tuesday?"

Billy Rose

"Major," I deadpanned, "I'll do better than that. I'll get you a job. An old midway buddy of mine is looking for someone to operate a wheel of chance on a Jersey boardwalk. The wages are nominal and the hours are long—but there might be a chance for advancement after a season or so."

Morgan's underlip quivered. "Running a wheel involves muscular effort," he protested. "My old war wounds . . . ."

"Forgive me," I said. "I forgot you were wounded at Midway—the midway at Revere Beach, Boston."

"Where is this wheel of chance?" asked Timothy.

"Tanglewood Beach, New Jersey."

The Major smiled. "I doubt if the Mayor of Tanglewood would welcome my presence. His hostile attitude involves an interesting tale. It might be worth the twenty tiny dollars. But, first, the heat of the day seems to have parched my throat. Is there a wee drop of the creature around the office?"

Three fingers of bourbon later, Morgan began. "I was in Tanglewood a couple of summers back on an artistic mission—shilling for a sand sculptor. One evening, while scouting the boardwalk, I noticed a sign announcing a Diaper Derby, a race for kiddies of crawling age. First prize—$50.

"I decided to enter my little nephew. And . . . ."

"Hold on," I cut in. "You never told me you had a nephew."

"Captain Billy is not really my nephew," Timothy said. "However, he might easily have been if his father had been my brother."

"How old is your little nephew?" I asked.

"About 35, I should judge," said the Major. "But very small for his age. In fact, he's a midget. Used to work for Singer. I located Captain Billy at a freak show on the Asbury Park boardwalk. He agreed to enter the baby race for a small cut in the take. The Captain is a pleasant little fellow and, when sober, a charming companion.

"It rained a little the Sunday of the race, but by post time it was clear and hot. I promenaded the boardwalk with Captain Billy, all diapered up, in a borrowed baby carriage. With the cigar out of his mouth, he looked quite cunning. Whenever he got restive, I gave him the baby bottle which contained his formula—one part milk and three parts Old Grand-Dad.

"As we approached the bit of lawn in front of the City Hall where the race was to be held, I fell in with the long line of parents and their squawling offspring. During the half hour preceding the event, I circulated among the proud poppas. I made a few mildly disparaging remarks about their infants and out came the wallets with the baby pictures and the money. The smallest price I got on any wager was 5 to 1.

"The fifteen entrants lined up. At the end of the twenty-yard course stood the Mayor and his wife, ready to embrace the winning child and award the prizes.

"At the whistle, the kids took off in all directions. Captain Billy, always the ham, played with his toes a little, just to make it look hard. After permitting the other starters a five-yard lead, he winked at me and got going. The Captain put on a good show. He overtook the leading kid, grabbed him by the leg and headed him back toward the starting line. Then the Captain crawled to one side and sat in a puddle of rain water. When he got back into the race, the tykes were going every which way and the Captain had his troubles making it look close. At that, he breezed in by five lengths.

"The Mayor's wife picked him up as he crossed the finish line. As she kissed him, I noticed a puzzled expression come over her face. Knowing my entrant would never pass the saliva test, I started over to claim him.

"And then I changed my mind and started running for the city limits."

"What made you change your mind?" I asked the old swindler.

Morgan sighed. "The Mayor's wife noticed that Captain Billy was wet from sitting in the rain puddle and suggested changing his diaper."

The marriage of Miss Virginia Cutter to William J. Helmstetter, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Helmstetter, Franklin Street, has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Russell W. Cutter, Midland, parents of the bride.

The ceremony was performed August 30 in the rectory of SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church by Rev. Alban, O.F.M. Cap. Mrs. William McKinley, Midland, and Joseph Helmstetter were their attendants.

The bride is a graduate of Central High School, Lonaconing, and is employed by the Celanese. The bridegroom attended Allegany High School and is a veteran of four and one-half years in the Army served in the ETO.

After a luncheon at the Little Ritz, Frostburg, Mr. and Mrs. Helmstetter left for a trip to Niagara Falls and Canada.

Valley Road Club To Have Food Clinic

The Valley Road Homemakers Club will hold a food clinic at the regular meeting at 1:30 today, in the Girl Scout headquarters. The program will be presented by Miss Maude A. Bean and Mrs. Carl D. Bachman. Members are asked to bring written questions on nutrition.

A Nominating Committee will be appointed by Mrs. John S. Cook.

WSCS Seminar To Be Held Today

The new study course for the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Hagerstown district of the Methodist Church will be presented at the fall seminar to be held at Grace Methodist Church, city, beginning at 10:30 this morning. Visitors from other churches will be welcome.

Mrs. Louis Dashiell, Hyattsville, conference secretary of Missionary Education; Mrs. John G. Cook, Frostburg district president; and Miss Lillie Rockwell, district secretary of Missions have planned the program.

"Children's Work" will be presented by Mrs. R. J. Reuschlein, conference secretary of Children's Work; "Our Youth," Mrs. C. P. Leatherbury, Baltimore, conference secretary of Youth Work; "The United Nations," Mrs. R. K. Klatt, Baltimore, conference secretary of Christian Social Relations; "Evangelism," Mrs. Dashiell; "Devotions," Mrs. Thomas F. Law, Washington, D. C., conference secretary of Spiritual Life.

The program will include a play entitled, "Thy Way May Be Known Upon Earth." Characters will be portrayed by Gwendolyn Pierce, June Clark, Lois Allender and Anna Lee Parks. There will also be a duet of "The World Astir," by Lois and June.

Literature will be on display with Mrs. William Huyett, Hagerstown, district secretary of Literature and Publications, in charge.

The general chairman for arrangements at the host church is Mrs. A. E. Kesecker, president of Grace WSCS. Mrs. Clarence Owens is in charge of reservations and all officers and members of each local society are urged to attend the seminar. Mrs. Mabel Welling is in charge of registrations assisted by Mrs. Vivian Mahaney. Mrs. Kesecker and Mrs. Alan Fisher will be hostesses.

Young Adults Plan Outing Sept. 29

The Young Adult Fellowship of the Cumberland Sub-district of the Methodist Church will hold a wiener roast, September 29, at Constitution Park. Mrs. Ethel Zimmerman, director of recreation and creative arts will lead the recreation program, which will begin at 6 o'clock. It will be followed with the wiener roast and marshmallow toast at 7:30, after which a campfire vesper service will be conducted by Mrs. George Triplett, director of study and worship.

Walter Maxey, Miss Alma Logsdon, Miss Dortha Copeland, Donald Holtzman, Mrs. George Triplett, Miss Clara Boettner, Mrs. Ethel Zimmerman, Leroy Lewis and Miss Martha Meek comprise the committee in charge of arrangements.

John Drummond Weds Maxine J. Stone

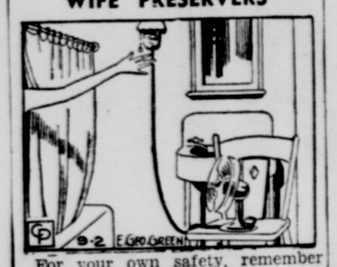

The marriage of Miss Maxine J. Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Stone, Vinland, Kans., to John F. Drummond, Spurill Apartments, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Drummond, Prospect Park, Pa., was performed August 30 by Rev. Walter Marion Michael in Centre Street Methodist Church.

Miss Gladys Drummond, sister of the bridegroom was the maid of honor and Cliff Anderson, city, served as best man.

The bride attended Kansas City Business College and served in the SPARS. The bridegroom is a graduate of North Carolina State College and is employed as a chemical engineer by Hercules Powder Company, Pinto.

After a luncheon at Anton's the couple left for a trip to Asheville, N. C.

WIFE PRESERVERS

For your own safety, remember that water conducts electricity. Never touch any electric cord or fixture while you are in the bathtub or shower or standing on a damp floor. Damp hands are dangerous. Dry them thoroughly before handling electrical equipment, to ward off possible shock from an exposed part.

Catherine Ayers Becomes Bride Of J. Earl Couter

Miss Catherine Margaret Ayers, daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Ayers, 417 Broadway, and the late John F. Ayers, became the bride of J. Earl Couter, son of the late Charles and Vergie Couter, Friday night in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, with Rev. H. T. Bowersox officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson R. Couter, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom were the only attendants.

The bride was attired in a bride's blue street length dress, with which she wore brown accessories and carried a Bible. A corsage of brown orchids completed her costume. Her matron of honor wore a pink and black print dress, with black accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

The bride is an active member of Colfax Rebekah Lodge and St. Paul's Lutheran Church. She is bookkeeper for Star Life and Quaker Cities Life Companies. She is a graduate of Allegany High School. The bridegroom is associated with J. Tom Long, interior decorator.

The couple left immediately after the ceremony for a trip to Washington and eastern cities.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Only Human To Build Air Castles, Then Try To Make Them Realities

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

It is only human to have daydreams and build castles in the air, and then try to turn them into realities at the first opportunity. But before making any such attempt, it is only common sense to be very sure of what you're doing first.

Even under the best of circumstances, nobody, of course, can predict that any enterprise will be 100 percent successful. Most projects in life have something of the gambling touch in them, and if no one were ever to take a chance, nobody would get anywhere. The decision to take the chance and gamble on an outcome should be dependent upon the amount of chance and the possible proportion of the gambling loss.

A girl of 20, who is engaged to a boy of the same age, writes me about one of the riskiest pieces of aircastle construction I have heard of to date. She says that she and her fiance want to go into business for themselves because they think it is a good way to "make a penny or two for our coming marriage and for the future." And here is how she describes her situation:

"We haven't one penny invested anywhere. He has been out of work seven months ever since he's been out of the army. We don't know what to look for. We both like the restaurant business—just a hamburger place is what we want. My dad owns a restaurant and I work in it but I don't make enough to pay my bills or even to save a little. We are wondering if the GI Bill of Rights is the best way to get money, or where could we go? Many of our young friends have developed businesses in this way and are doing wonderfully. But we don't know if we would make out wonderfully, too. Do you think it would be right if I should leave my dad and go into business for myself? I have worked for him two years and think it is about time I made some money. Do you think we are too young to be considering something like this?"

Now, while undoubtedly these young people have seen friends of theirs go into business for themselves and make a success of it, I very much doubt if the type of business these friends chose was something of which they were completely ignorant. While this girl has worked for her father in the restaurant business, I imagine she has had nothing to do with the business end of it, which is a pretty important factor in conducting any business successfully. And since she doesn't say that her boy friend has had any restaurant experience, I take it that he knows nothing whatever about this sort of thing.

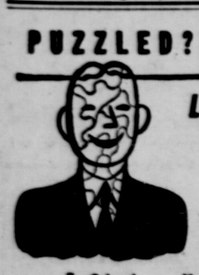

Again, the fact that neither of these two young people has apparently ever saved a cent makes them look like rather poor bets as adventurers in business. Even if only one of them had been thrifty enough to lay by a small amount of money, it would give the idea a more hopeful outlook. When two without money sense get together, the prospect doesn't look good. Moreover, the fact that this boy has been out of work ever since he left the army shows that he either lacks initiative or is completely untrained for anything.

The thing for this couple to do, if they wish ultimately to run an independent business, is to make up their minds what type of venture would be most practical for them and would interest them most. The next thing would be to make a point of learning something about it before undertaking it. Unless they do this, they are almost certainly going to find themselves in financial difficulties before they have gone very far.

Since this girl is already working in a restaurant, it would seem that their idea of starting a food business some time, somewhere, might be a good one. And, in the meantime, she can make a serious study of how such a business should be run. Also, since her boy friend is not working anyway, why doesn't he join her in working in the restaurant and let them learn together? Even though he had to do this as a volunteer, without paw, he couldn't be any worse off financially than just hanging around doing nothing. If he doesn't want to do this, perhaps he could go to school somewhere, under the GI Bill of Rights, and learn something about the restaurant business that way.

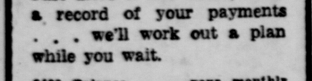

It would certainly be a sound and sensible idea for these two to talk their vocational problem over with someone experienced in the kind of business they decide they want to start, and then be wise enough to follow the advice they get.

"YOU BET! IT'S THE BEST BETHOLINE EVER"

and HERE'S WHY...

Chief chemist Gustav Bornscheuer, in an official motor fuel analysis of improved Betholine, says:

"This is the best Betholine we have ever made. During the war several new types of compounds were used in making 100 Octane aviation fuel. The exclusive Betholine formula contains a large proportion of these compounds. Improved Betholine has exceptional starting and accelerating qualities, a low gravity and a higher octane value than any Betholine ever produced. It ranks first among motor fuels in this territory."

A great PREMIUM motor fuel—now better than ever. PROVE IT. Check the extra mileage, the extra antiknock protection. Feel the extra power, extra pep, extra smoothness. It's economical to buy the best, and with motor fuels that means improved Betholine.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2—(CP)—Desupite Navy's valiant, and apparently successful, fight to retain control of its aviation in the future, the prospects of the sky sailors are not nearly as bright as the wings of gold they wear.

Congress wrote into the Army-Navy unnification bill a provision safeguarding the naval aviation's identity, but the Navy and independnant Air Force brass have spotted a loophole already. It was this:

Next-to-last word on appropriations — Congress gets final say-so—will be the new defense secretary, "boss of all three services." With that power he can easily put any branch out of business.

Washington

Navy has no apprehension over the course its secretary, James Forrestal, who will be sworn in as the nation's first defense secretary, will pursue. However, the Navy is afraid he will carry out his reported determination to resign within a year.

Air power advocates have long preached obsorption of naval flying into their long-sought, now-achieved independent air arm. Little doubt exists that the first air power man to become the defense boss will reduce the Navy's aviation branch to a mere name.

Movie Tax—British movie tycoon J. Arthur Rank looms as the key figure in the squabble between Hollywood and Great Britain over the 75 per cent tax on American-made films.

In fact, some sources think that if the confiscatory tax operates too much to Britain's disadvantage Rank may intercede to effect a settlement which would be in harmony with British efforts to limit luxury imports and still assure Hollywood its English market

One reason is that the tall, heavy-set movie man in Britain's leading producer and exhibitor whose chain of movoie theatres depends heavily on American pictures.

Should United States film imports decline to a dribble, many of Rank's theaters would be forced to close and Britain would realize virtually nothing on the tax. Then, too, Hollywood might force British films out of the United States market.

Brookings Looks Ahead — The Brookings Institute believes that each nation faces the "stark alternatives of joining in effective international collaboration for peace or risking possible annihilation" in a third world war.

With that in mind, the institution is beginning a broad study of international relations designed, among other things, to help supply a reservoir of trained specialists in international affairs.

United States foreign policy will be scrutinized closely by the Brookings staff, particularly on major problems arising from two kinds of situations.

First will be a study of the problem presented where the United States has initiated an active policy that is being resisted by another country, and second, where another country has initiated an active policy where the United States, in return, is the resister nation.

On The Labor Front—Signs of the times: The machine-tool industry, generally regarded as a good barometer of United States industrial activity, is in a slight slump with employment and production declining.

Employment is down 10 per cent from Jan. 1 and normally this would cause economists to sit up and take notice. But it is not alarming in the present situation.

Machine-tool industry officials explain that they are suffering from the disposal of government-owned surplus tools, therefore their decline in business.

The industry's answer is to go to work on research developing new and better tools which will render the existing ones obsolete.

Radio manufacturing employment and production also is off for somewhat similar reasons. The industry has flooded the market with ordinary type sets and the public now is waiting for the new static-free FM units.

Employment also is off in textiles, rubber and aluminum, but elsewhere the economy continues in high gear.

UNTIL steamships dock on Main Street

UNTIL airplanes load up at warehouses

UNTIL railroads pull up at your door

Everything you eat, wear, use or buy goes all—or part of the way—by Truck.

That truck you see when you step out of your office may mark the end of a long, glamorous journey.

Behind its doors might be pineapple from Honolulu . . . orchids from Belem . . . or stainless steel cutlery from Pittsburgh. Everything from everywhere!

Many of us are apt to forget the important part trucking plays in routine life. Truck transport moves goods from cities-to-cities, coast-to-coast.

Cities Depend on Trucks

They're also the "connecting link" between docks, warehouses, freight terminals—and every merchant and citizen in the land.

Trucks, by necessity, have to use city streets. Your milk on your doorstep . . . your bread and butter. Shoes, clothing, medicines, baby carriages, gasoline for your car, hardware and house paint—everything you eat, wear, use or buy—comes to you ALL or PART OF THE WAY by truck.

As long as ships sail the Seven Seas, railroads and airplanes continue to play their part . . . trucks will do their job swiftly, economically. Yes, your dollars bring more, go farther, every time a truck wheel turns!

Anna McCarty Heads Purple Heart Auxiliary

The election of officers of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Military Order of the Purple Heart featured the meeting Monday night at the home.

Mrs. Anna McCarty was named president; Mrs. E. F. Reichert, senior vice president; Mrs. Leona Harper, junior vice president; Mrs. Mary Brinkman, secretary; Mrs. Juanita Loundy, chaplain; Mrs. Melvina Cubbage, parliamentarian; Mrs. Jane Bassell, historian; Mrs. Ada Hamburg, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Gladys Mock, marshal; and Mrs. Eleanor Couter, sergeant at arms.

Man Fined $112.90 On Motor Charges

Donald P. Neuman, Route 5, Winchester Road, was found guilty of reckless and drunken driving at a hearing in Trial Magistrates' Court yesterday and was fined $112.90 by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

City Police Officer P. M. Crabtree arrested the man early Sunday morning after the car he was driving collided with a machine operated by Clarence F. Peer, Wiley Ford, at the intersection of Potomac Street and River Avenue.

Police testified at the trial that Neuman was driving on the wrong side of the street when the crash occurred.

Robert E. Leighty, 6 Silver Street, Ridgeley, forfeited $26.45 bond for reckless driving on Route 40 Sunday. State Trooper G. M. Rotruck preferred the charge.

Two other crash drivers, Ernest J. Twigg, Route 4, Christie Road, and Vonder J. Conner, Route 1, Hyndman, Pa., were fined $6.45 each on reckless driving charges. Their cars collided headon at Ellerslie Monday night, State Police said.

John W. Ritchie, Long, was fined $2.45 on a charge of failing to halt for a stop sign at the intersection of Route 40 and Vocke Drive on Saturday. Trooper John F. Browning made the arrest.

State Trooper Thomas Barton is holding Forrest F. Wilhelm and Charles Logue, both of Hyndman, Pa., in the city jail for investigation. He arrested the pair yesterday.

Another man, Louis Donius, this city, was fined $25 and costs yesterday in Trial Magistrates' Court for allegedly trespassing on B. and O. property Sunday.

Arthur Spoltore Weds Mary K. Tickle

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Mary Kethren Tickle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Webster Tickle, Mount Airy, N. C., to Arthur Spoltore, son of James V. Spoltore, 40 Lamont Street, city and the late Mrs. Spoltore.

The double ring cermony was performed August 27, by Rev. Paul G. Termer in the Church of the Holy Angels, Mount Airy, N. C. Miss Mable Tickle was her sister's maid of honor and John Small, city, served as Mr. Spoltore's best man. Martin Thomas and Thomas Browne, Mount Airy, were the ushers. Mrs. Robert Perkins was soloist and Mrs. R. C. Browne, organist.

The bride is a graduate of Mount Airy High School and attended WSNC and Appalachian State College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Fort Hill High School and attended Tampa University, Georgia Tech and received his degree at Appalachian College, where he was a member of Phi Kappa Psi. He is a veteran of three years service in the Marines.

Following a reception at the home of the bride, Mr. Spoltore and his bride left for a southern trip. They will reside at Barnsville, Ga., where the former has accepted a position with Gordon Military College.

Mrs. Joseph Squillace, city attended her brother's wedding.

Surplus Handbags Are Welcome Overseas

A new project of the Church World Service Center, New Windsor, consists merely of filling a hand bag with household necessities and sending it to the center for shipment overseas to housewives there, Graham R. Hodges, promotion director at New Windsor, reports. Officials at the center are sending these bags abroad without opening or changing the contents, he says.

The idea started in North Carolina, where club women started collecting purses and handbags no longer needed and stuffing them with articles inobtainable by housewives overseas. Practically all the bags sent to New Windsor have been in good condition. Since more than 99 percent of American women have extra handbags, this project seems to have universal appeal to all women's groups.

Suggested articles to put in the purses are thread, needles, scissors, pencils, buttons, soap, lipstick, tube handcream, tooth brush, tooth powder, stockings, socks, underwear, pins, safety pins, comb, thimbles ribbon, shoe laces and compacts In this way supplies are sent overseas in containers that will be as welcome as the contents. Distribution overseas is handled by local churches there and donations are distributed solely on the basis of need.

City Police Probe Three Reported Thefts

City Police continued last night to investigate three cases of larceny reported over the weekend.

James Blake, 513 Henderson Avenue, said $60 in cash and a wrist watch worth $64 were taken from him while he was sleeping in the Blue Ridge Bus Terminal, Frederick Street, after returning to Cumberland from Baltimore Saturday night.

B. F. Rank, 13 Virginia Avenue, notified officers that two pairs of sun glasses worth $25 were taken from his car last Friday night while the vehicle was parked on Browning Street.

Miss Mary Zearfoss, 137 North Centre Street, told police her home was entered Friday night and $15 taken.

Mount Auburn is a cemetery situated near Cambridge, Mass., where Longfellow, Sumner, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Brooks and Lowell are buried.

BIDS FOR BEDS

Sealed bids will be received by the County Commissioners of Allegany County at their office at the Court House, Cumberland, Maryland until Friday, September 12, 1947 at 10 A. M. for furnishing 28 single steel beds, size 6'6" x 36." All bids to give general description and make of beds. For further information apply to the Superintendent of the County Home and Infirmary.

Man Fined $112.90 On Motor Charges

Donald P. Neuman, Route 5, Winchester Road, was found guilty of reckless and drunken driving at a hearing in Trial Magistrates' Court yesterday and was fined $112.90 by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

City Police Officer P. M. Crabtree arrested the man early Sunday morning after the car he was driving collided with a machine operated by Clarence F. Peer, Wiley Ford, at the intersection of Potomac Street and River Avenue.

Police testified at the trial that Neuman was driving on the wrong side of the street when the crash occurred.

Robert E. Leighty, 6 Silver Street, Ridgeley, forfeited $26.45 bond for reckless driving on Route 40 Sunday. State Trooper G. M. Rotruck preferred the charge.

Two other crash drivers, Ernest J. Twigg, Route 4, Christie Road, and Vonder J. Conner, Route 1, Hyndman, Pa., were fined $6.45 each on reckless driving charges. Their cars collided headon at Ellerslie Monday night, State Police said.

John W. Ritchie, Long, was fined $2.45 on a charge of failing to halt for a stop sign at the intersection of Route 40 and Vocke Drive on Saturday. Trooper John F. Browning made the arrest.

State Trooper Thomas Barton is holding Forrest F. Wilhelm and Charles Logue, both of Hyndman, Pa., in the city jail for investigation. He arrested the pair yesterday.

Another man, Louis Donius, this city, was fined $25 and costs yesterday in Trial Magistrates' Court for allegedly trespassing on B. and O. property Sunday.

Surplus Handbags Are Welcome Overseas

A new project of the Church World Service Center, New Windsor, consists merely of filling a hand bag with household necessities and sending it to the center for shipment overseas to housewives there, Graham R. Hodges, promotion director at New Windsor, reports. Officials at the center are sending these bags abroad without opening or changing the contents, he says.

The idea started in North Carolina, where club women started collecting purses and handbags no longer needed and stuffing them with articles inobtainable by housewives overseas. Practically all the bags sent to New Windsor have been in good condition. Since more than 99 percent of American women have extra handbags, this project seems to have universal appeal to all women's groups.

Suggested articles to put in the purses are thread, needles, scissors, pencils, buttons, soap, lipstick, tube handcream, tooth brush, tooth powder, stockings, socks, underwear, pins, safety pins, comb, thimbles ribbon, shoe laces and compacts In this way supplies are sent overseas in containers that will be as welcome as the contents. Distribution overseas is handled by local churches there and donations are distributed solely on the basis of need.

City Police Probe Three Reported Thefts

City Police continued last night to investigate three cases of larceny reported over the weekend.

James Blake, 513 Henderson Avenue, said $60 in cash and a wrist watch worth $64 were taken from him while he was sleeping in the Blue Ridge Bus Terminal, Frederick Street, after returning to Cumberland from Baltimore Saturday night.

B. F. Rank, 13 Virginia Avenue, notified officers that two pairs of sun glasses worth $25 were taken from his car last Friday night while the vehicle was parked on Browning Street.

Miss Mary Zearfoss, 137 North Centre Street, told police her home was entered Friday night and $15 taken.

Kelly Pays County $39,524 In Taxes Under Protest

Indicate Appeal May Be Filed

Reserving the right to reclaim the amount, in the event of a reversal of Court opinion, the Kelly Springfild Tire Company yesterday paid the county $39,425 in taxes on tools and machinery, previously exempt.

The check, accompanied by a letter from the company's attorney, William C. Walsh, covers an approximate assessment of $2,412,791 in personal property which was exempted from taxation, until Circuit Court ruled recently that the exemption was invalid. The check for $39,425 was less a discount of five percent allowed by a Court decree, to give the firm the benefit of the discount period.

In June, the Company paid the county $21,016.90, covering taxes on a personal property assessment of $1,286,224, which has never been exempted.

The letter accompanying the check yesterday indicated that the payment was made subject to the condition that if an appeal is filed in the Maryland Court of Appeals, and a reversal of the local Court's decision is obtained, the company will expect the money returned.

County Commissioners passed an order accepting the tax check under the company's conditions, and deposited the amount with W. A. Strother, county tax collector. Court House attaches mentioned yesterday that the money realized from the three industries which were involved in the tax exemption cases here cannot be used by the County this year, but must apply on next year's levy, thereby lowering the rate an equivalent amount.

Two LaVale men, Miles G. Thompson and Blair V. Welsh, appeared at the board meeting with a proposed bill concerning LaVale sanitation to be submitted to the extraordinary session of the Legislature. The men sought the board's approval of the bill.

The bill is concerned with obtaining an adequate water supply and sewage disposal system for LaVale. It would have the county place funds at the disposal of a commission named by the commissioners for the purpose of making a survey, and then forming a self-sufficient company to supply the water needs.

The county would be reimbursed for its outlay, and maintenance of the system would be made by assessment on the participating property owners.

The board approved the bill, which now is to be submitted to the Legislative Council, for approval to be placed before the Legislature.

John W. Ritenbaugh, who resides near the Green Ridge Road two miles past Oldtown, appeared to ask that the county place culverts under the road to carry off surplus water which overflowed onto the road when the drainage ditch filled, and made it impassable.

The board received a letter of inquiry from the Clark-Lennin Equipment Company concerning the manner in which bids are to be placed to equip the Allegany County Infirmary.

Mrs. Ezra Fike Taken By Death

PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 2—Mrs. Ezra Fike, 60, wife of Rev. Ezra Fike, Brethren minister of Eglon, W. Va., died today at her home.

She was born in Grant County, a daughter of Rev. Jacob and Angelina Hampstead Judy. Besides her husband she is survived by the following children, Mrs. Joseph Miller, Broadway, Va.; Mrs. Jacob Huffman, Dayton, Va.; Mrs. Jerome Arnett, Rowlesburg, W. Va.; Miss Virginia Fike, at home, and Rev. Galen Fike, Eglon; two step children, Rev. Earl Fike, Circleville, W. Va., and Mrs. L. H. Perry, Lakeland, Fla.

Mrs. Fike is also survived by four brothers, Olyn Judy, Romney, W. Va.; J. P. Judy, Keyser, W. Va.; Lester Roy Judy, Greenwood, Del.; and Ray Judy, Eglon; two sisters, Mrs. A. J. Powers, Eston, Md., and A. R. Weaver, Johanna, Pa., and 10 grandchildren.

The body will be removed from the residence on Thursday at 1 p. m. to the Maple Springs Brethren Church, Eglon, where it will lie in state until the 2:30 p. m. A funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. Everett K. Zieller, Bridgewater, Va.

Mrs. Anna Quarry Rites

A funeral service will be conducted at the residence tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. for Anna Elizabeth Quarry, 76, a resident of Hendricks, W. Va., for 45 years, who was found dead on the front porch of her home Sunday after a heart attack. Rev. Harold Shifflet, pastor of the Parsons Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Interment will be in McNeely cemetery.

Mrs. Quarry was born in Pennsylvania, a daughter of the late George and Rebecca Long Park. She is survived by one son, Z. A. Quarry, Riverdale, Md., one daughter, Mrs. C. W. White, Harding, W. Va., one sister, Mrs. Sadie Bell, Saltsville, Pa. nine grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Henderson Awards $75 Monthly To Mrs. R. F. Bowser

Writes Opinion In Divorce Action

A decree has been signed in Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson awarding Anna S. Bowser separate maintenance of $75 per month in the suit for divorce filed by Ralph F. Bowser.

In a lengthy opinion reviewing the long legal contest, Judge Henderson cited that Bowser asked for divorce on grounds of desertion, but his wife denied desertion and filed a cross bill. The Court also brought out that Bowser claimed his wife threw rocks at him and threatened him with a hammer and an axe, but that he was not actually in fear of his wife because the couple lived together afterward.

Judge Henderson also wrote that Bowser claimed his wife allowed him only 25 or 50 cents a week of his pay, but evidence indicated there was a difference between the two as to which should spend the most money. The Court also found that a West Virginia Court ruling required Bowser to pay his wife $75 per month, and concluded that proceedings were instituted here in an effort to have this payment set aside.

Henderson also found that Mrs. Bowser, now working in a laundry at Bedford, Pa., for less than $20 per week, has indicated she is willing to effect a reconciliation. Bowser denied, the Court mentioned, evidence that there had been another woman involved and when her name was brought out Bowser said he never heard of her.

Makes Good Money

The Court found that Bowser is employed near Frostburg as a shovel operator at a strip mine for about $400 per month, and ordered that he pay his wife separate maintenance of $75 per month from May 21, 1947.

In the opinion, Judge Henderson remarked that if Bowser had told his attorney all the facts, the case probably would not have come before the Court.

Chief Judge William A. Huster signed a decree yesterday granting a divorce to Glenn A. Gank, of 416 Grand Avenue, in his suit against Elsie Mae Gank. Testimony showed the couple married in Kingwood, W. Va., December 27, 1939 and while living at 122 Thomas Street here, separated May 7, 1943. Gank showed he has been a steady worker and provided for his wife and claimed she left without provocation.

Suits were docketed as follows: Elsie A. Smith vs Earl S. Smith; Earl Hunt vs Grace Hunt; and Mary Stewart Branson vs Grover Paul Branson.

Decree Is Amended

In a hearing in Circuit Court yesterday, the court amended a decree of October 15, 1946, which granted a divorce to Henry S. Morrisey from Bessie J. Morrisey to include alimony payments to Mrs. Morrisey.

The original decree allowed a payment of $70 per month to Mrs. Morrisey for the support and maintenance of her son, Milton, but included no provision for alimony.

On July 30, 1947, Morrisey applied to the court for a reduction of the maintenance for his son, and this sum subsequently was reduced to $50 per month by the Court.

Julius E. Schindler, attorney for Mrs. Morrisey, appeared before the court today to reopen the issue on the judgment, and stated that the October 15, 1946, decree be amended to include alimony, because a mistake in the divorce decree did not provide the alimony, although the testimony by both principals showed an alimony agreement between them.

Schindler said that this was corroborated by the testimony. He then cited precedents whereby decrees could be amended. The court granted the request and the alimony.

2, Williams Road, who cashed a bond for $125.

Second National Bank reported David H. Hahn, 69 Greene Street, who cashed a bond for $300, as first, and at the Peoples Bank it was John W. Andrews, Jr., 511 Baltimore Avenue.

Military papers and other personal papers, or a friend who is a well-known bank customer, were methods of identification. Banks were instructed by Treasury officials not to cash bonds if:

1. Person requesting payment was not properly identified.

2. If the owner has not signed his name in ink exactly as it appears on the bond, with his home or business address. Persons whose names have been changed by marriage—but not otherwise—must show both names.

3. If bond bears altered, illegibly, incomplete or unauthorized inscriptions, or if it has been defaced or mutilated.

4. If the owner is deceased. Survivors must make application for payment on forms available at any Federal Reserve Bank.

Over 138,000 Bonds In State

Veterans holding bonds marked "duplicate" issued when destroyed by fire or otherwise, must have them certified and then submitted to the Treasury Department before payment.

Statisticians estimate that there are 138,240 of the 216,000 veterans of World War II in Maryland have applied for and received terminal leave pay bonds. These total approximately $11,000,000.

Throughout the state yesterday, all banks reported much the same experience, and several institutions ran short of cash before closing time, and issued checks or entered the bonds as deposits. The banks can convert the bonds into cash with the treasury immediately, but about six days are required for processing, one bank official reported.

Post office officials said last night they had been beseiged all day by veterans who wanted their bonds cashed, but in each instance the applicant was referred to a bank. The post office does not cash terminal leave bonds.

Bankers last night said they anticipate another "run" on bond cashing today, but believe it will not be as heavy as yesterday. They point out the fact that "the longer the [illegible] keeps his bond, the more it is worth."

Earl Kalbaugh, 19, Westernport, who suffered minor head injuries in a motorcycle crash near Lonaconing last Wednesday night, was reported in good condition last night in Miners Hospital, Frostburg.

A Franklin Navy serviceman, James Russell Kenney, 19, was fatally injured in the accident.

Crash Victim's Funeral Today

A funeral service will be held at 3 p. m. today for Espy W. Growden, 70, Route 3, Bedford Road, who died at 8:40 p. m. Sunday in Allegany Hospital from injuries suffered in a two-car collision on Bedford Road near the city limits August 16

Death was caused by inter-cranial hemorrhage, according to Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, who said Mr. Growden suffered a fractured skull in the crash in which Mrs. Flo M. Watson, Warren, Ohio, was seriously hurt.

Growden was riding in a car police said was operated by his son, Earl W. Growden, 35, Bedford Road, when it collided with the machine driven by Alec James Watson, husband of the injured woman.

State Trooper Thomas G. Barton investigated and filed two state motor charges against Earl Growden following the crash and summoned him to appear later for a hearing in Trial Magistrates Court.

Born in Bedford Valley, Pa., Mr. Growden was a son of the late James M. and Sarah E. Hendrickson Growden. He was a member of Elliott Memorial Methodist Church.

Surviving besides his son are a daughter, Mrs. Ralph Oster, Bedford Valley, and five grandchildren.

The service today will be held in Centenary Union Methodist Church, Bedford Road, by Rev. Richard H. Bready, pastor. Interment will be in Fellowship Cemetery, Centerville, Pa.

Kelly Pays County $39,524 In Taxes Under Protest

Indicate Appeal May Be Filed

Reserving the right to reclaim the amount, in the event of a reversal of Court opinion, the Kelly Springfild Tire Company yesterday paid the county $39,425 in taxes on tools and machinery, previously exempt.

The check, accompanied by a letter from the company's attorney, William C. Walsh, covers an approximate assessment of $2,412,791 in personal property which was exempted from taxation, until Circuit Court ruled recently that the exemption was invalid. The check for $39,425 was less a discount of five percent allowed by a Court decree, to give the firm the benefit of the discount period.

In June, the Company paid the county $21,016.90, covering taxes on a personal property assessment of $1,286,224, which has never been exempted.

The letter accompanying the check yesterday indicated that the payment was made subject to the condition that if an appeal is filed in the Maryland Court of Appeals, and a reversal of the local Court's decision is obtained, the company will expect the money returned.

County Commissioners passed an order accepting the tax check under the company's conditions, and deposited the amount with W. A. Strother, county tax collector. Court House attaches mentioned yesterday that the money realized from the three industries which were involved in the tax exemption cases here cannot be used by the County this year, but must apply on next year's levy, thereby lowering the rate an equivalent amount.

Two LaVale men, Miles G. Thompson and Blair V. Welsh, appeared at the board meeting with a proposed bill concerning LaVale sanitation to be submitted to the extraordinary session of the Legislature. The men sought the board's approval of the bill.

The bill is concerned with obtaining an adequate water supply and sewage disposal system for LaVale. It would have the county place funds at the disposal of a commission named by the commissioners for the purpose of making a survey, and then forming a self-sufficient company to supply the water needs.

The county would be reimbursed for its outlay, and maintenance of the system would be made by assessment on the participating property owners.

The board approved the bill, which now is to be submitted to the Legislative Council, for approval to be placed before the Legislature.

John W. Ritenbaugh, who resides near the Green Ridge Road two miles past Oldtown, appeared to ask that the county place culverts under the road to carry off surplus water which overflowed onto the road when the drainage ditch filled, and made it impassable.

The board received a letter of inquiry from the Clark-Lennin Equipment Company concerning the manner in which bids are to be placed to equip the Allegany County Infirmary.

Mrs. Ezra Fike Taken By Death

PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 2—Mrs. Ezra Fike, 60, wife of Rev. Ezra Fike, Brethren minister of Eglon, W. Va., died today at her home.

She was born in Grant County, a daughter of Rev. Jacob and Angelina Hampstead Judy. Besides her husband she is survived by the following children, Mrs. Joseph Miller, Broadway, Va.; Mrs. Jacob Huffman, Dayton, Va.; Mrs. Jerome Arnett, Rowlesburg, W. Va.; Miss Virginia Fike, at home, and Rev. Galen Fike, Eglon; two step children, Rev. Earl Fike, Circleville, W. Va., and Mrs. L. H. Perry, Lakeland, Fla.

Mrs. Fike is also survived by four brothers, Olyn Judy, Romney, W. Va.; J. P. Judy, Keyser, W. Va.; Lester Roy Judy, Greenwood, Del; and Ray Judy, Eglon; two sisters, Mrs. A. J. Powers, Eston, Md., and A. R. Weaver, Johanna, Pa., and 10 grandchildren.

The body will be removed from the residence on Thursday at 1 p. m. to the Maple Springs Brethren Church, Eglon, where it will lie in state until the 2:30 p. m. A funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. Everett K. Zieller, Bridgewater, Va.

Mrs. Anna Quarry Rites

A funeral service will be conducted at the residence tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. for Anna Elizabeth Quarry, 76, a resident of Hendricks, W. Va., for 45 years, who was found dead on the front porch of her home Sunday after a heart attack. Rev. Harold Shifflet, pastor of the Parsons Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Interment will be in McNeely cemetery.

Mrs. Quarry was born in Pennsylvania, a daughter of the late Georgs and Rebecca Long Park. She is survived by one son, Z. A. Quarry, Riverdale, Md., one daughter, Mrs. C. W. White, Harding, W. Va., one sister, Mrs. Sadie Bell, Saltsville, Pa. nine grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Henderson Awards $75 Monthly To Mrs. R. F. Bowser

Writes Opinion In Divorce Action

A decree has been signed in Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson awarding Anna S. Bowser separate maintenance of $75 per month in the suit for divorce filed by Ralph F. Bowser.

In a lengthy opinion reviewing the long legal contest, Judge Henderson cited that Bowser asked for divorce on grounds of desertion, but his wife denied desertion and filed a cross bill. The Court also brought out that Bowser claimed his wife threw rocks at him and threatened him with a hammer and an axe, but that he was not actually in fear of his wife because the couple lived together afterward.

Judge Henderson also wrote that Bowser claimed his wife allowed him only 25 or 50 cents a week of his pay, but evidence indicated there was a difference between the two as to which should spend the most money. The Court also found that a West Virginia Court ruling required Bowser to pay his wife $75 per month, and concluded that proceedings were instituted here in an effort to have this payment set aside.

Henderson also found that Mrs. Bowser, now working in a laundry at Bedford, Pa., for less than $20 per week, has indicated she is willing to effect a reconciliation. Bowser denied, the Court mentioned, evidence that there had been another woman involved and when her name was brought out Bowser said he never heard of her.

Makes Good Money

The Court found that Bowser is employed near Frostburg as a shovel operator at a strip mine for about $400 per month, and ordered that he pay his wife separate maintenance of $75 per month from May 21, 1947.

In the opinion, Judge Henderson remarked that if Bowser had told his attorney all the facts, the case probably would not have come before the Court.

Chief Judge William A. Huster signed a decree yesterday granting a divorce to Glenn A. Gank, of 416 Grand Avenue, in his suit against Elsie Mae Gank. Testimony showed the couple married in Kingwood, W. Va., December 27, 1939 and while living at 122 Thomas Street here, separated May 7, 1943. Gank showed he has been a steady worker and provided for his wife and claimed she left without provocation.

Suits were docketed as follows: Elsie A. Smith vs Earl S. Smith; Earl Hunt vs Grace Hunt; and Mary Stewart Branson vs Grover Paul Branson.

Decree Is Amended

In a hearing in Circuit Court yesterday, the court amended a decree of October 15, 1946, which granted a divorce to Henry S. Morrisey from Bessie J. Morrisey to include alimony payments to Mrs. Morrisey.

The original decree allowed a payment of $70 per month to Mrs. Morrisey for the support and maintenance of her son, Milton, but included no provision for alimony.

On July 30, 1947, Morrisey applied to the court for a reduction of the maintenance for his son, and this sum subsequently was reduced to $50 per month by the Court.

Julius E. Schindler, attorney for Mrs. Morrisey, appeared before the court today to reopen the issue on the judgment, and stated that the October 15, 1946, decree be amended to include alimony, because a mistake in the divorce decree did not provide the alimony, although the testimony by both principals showed an alimony agreement between them.

Schindler said that this was corroborated by the testimony. He then cited precedents whereby decrees could be amended. The court granted the request and the alimony.

2, Williams Road, who cashed a bond for $125.

Second National Bank reported David H. Hahn, 69 Greene Street, who cashed a bond for $300, as first, and at the Peoples Bank it was John W. Andrews, Jr., 511 Baltimore Avenue.

Military papers and other personal papers, or a friend who is a well-known bank customer, were methods of identification. Banks were instructed by Treasury officials not to cash bonds if:

1. Person requesting payment was not properly identified.

2. If the owner has not signed his name in ink exactly as it appears on the bond, with his home or business address. Persons whose names have been changed by marriage—but not otherwise—must show both names.

3. If bond bears altered, illegibly, incomplete or unauthorized inscriptions, or if it has been defaced or mutilated.

4. If the owner is deceased. Survivors must make application for payment on forms available at any Federal Reserve Bank.

Over 138,000 Bonds In State

Veterans holding bonds marked "duplicate" issued when destroyed by fire or otherwise, must have them certified and then submitted to the Treasury Department before payment.

Statisticians estimate that there are 138,240 of the 216,000 veterans of World War II in Maryland have applied for and received terminal leave pay bonds. These total approximately $11,000,000.

Throughout the state yesterday, all banks reported much the same experience, and several institutions ran short of cash before closing time, and issued checks or entered the bonds as deposits. The banks can convert the bonds into cash with the treasury immediately, but about six days are required for processing, one bank official reported.

Post office officials said last night they had been beseiged all day by veterans who wanted their bonds cashed, but in each instance the applicant was referred to a bank. The post office does not cash terminal leave bonds.

Bankers last night said they anticipate another "run" on bond cashing today, but believe it will not be as heavy as yesterday. They point out the fact that "the longer the [illegible] keeps his bond, the more it is worth."

Street, was treated in Allegany Hospital yesterday for a right arm injury. Attaches were told the child fell from a chair.

Earl Kalbaugh, 19, Westernport, who suffered minor head injuries in a motorcycle crash near Lonaconing last Wednesday night, was reported in good condition last night in Miners Hospital, Frostburg.

A Franklin Navy serviceman, James Russell Kenney, 19, was fatally injured in the accident.

Crash Victim's Funeral Today

A funeral service will be held at 3 p. m. today for Espy W. Growden, 70, Route 3, Bedford Road, who died at 8:40 p. m. Sunday in Allegany Hospital from injuries suffered in a two-car collision on Bedford Road near the city limits August 16

Death was caused by inter-cranial hemorrhage, according to Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, who said Mr. Growden suffered a fractured skull in the crash in which Mrs. Flo M. Watson, Warren, Ohio, was seriously hurt.

Growden was riding in a car police said was operated by his son, Earl W. Growden, 35, Bedford Road, when it collided with the machine driven by Alec James Watson, husband of the injured woman.

State Trooper Thomas G. Barton investigated and filed two state motor charges against Earl Growden following the crash and summoned him to appear later for a hearing in Trial Magistrates Court.

Born in Bedford Valley, Pa., Mr. Growden was a son of the late James M. and Sarah E. Hendrickson Growden. He was a member of Elliott Memorial Methodist Church.

Surviving besides his son are a daughter, Mrs. Ralph Oster, Bedford Valley, and five grandchildren.

The service today will be held in Centenary Union Methodist Church, Bedford Road, by Rev. Richard H. Bready, pastor. Interment will be in Fellowship Cemetery, Centerville, Pa.

Horse Show Will Be Sponsored At Memorial Park

By HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 2—The second annual horse show will be held at the Parsons Memorial Park, Saturday, September 6. The committee of the park announced that several new horses from Parsons will enter the tournament as well as horses from towns and cities throughout West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

A parade will be held at 1:30 p. m. on the streets of Parsons and will continue to the park where nine class contests will be sponsored. The, will be the five gait saddle class in which all horses must show fine distinct gaits, flat footed walk, running walk or fox trot, rack or single foot, trot and canter.

Cash prizes for this class will be given and first, second and third place winners will also be presented with ribbons.

In the three gaited saddle class, the three first places will receive ribbons and cash awards. Number three Trial or plantation class, will show horses in flat footed walks and gallops.

Number four class will be the pony class. Five will be the harness class. Calss six will be for horsemanship.

Class seven will be for the best horse in the show and is open to all horses that have won a first or second place in any other class.

Class eight will feature a musical chair competition and Class nine is farm teams, which must have two entries to complete the class. There must be competition to draw first prize, mare and gelding, two mares, or two geldings will constitute a team. There are no weight requirements, but must be shown in harness and demonstrate adaptability of farm work.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Winters, Clarksburg, announce the marriage of their daughter, Betty Arlene, to Harold J. Hendrix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pase, Thomas.

The double ring ceremony was held Friday evening, August 15, at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Clarksburg, with Rev. William P. Cline officiating.

The bride wore for her marriage a suit of white gabardine with matching accessories and completed her attire with a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Ellis Teets, Brookside, cousin of the bride, served as matron of honor and wore a pink ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds. Ellis Teets served the bridegroom as best man.

Following the wedding a reception was held for the members of the families and a few close friends at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Hendrix is a graduate of Washington Irving High School in the class of 1946. She was a member of Delta Iota Delta Sorority and the Be-Square Club. She is now employed by a hardware store in Clarksburg.

Mr. Hendrix is a graduate of Thomas High School in 1945 and served for one year with the Navy, ten months of which was spent in Guam. He is now associated with the Southern Steel Company, Clarksburg.

Boys Clubs Treated

Dick Luzier, sponsor of the Tucker County Boys Sports clubs in Parsons, Thomas and Davis announced that three shows will be given this week. The first one is scheduled for Wednesday evening in Parsons High School gymnasium at 8 o'clock. Two shows will be held in the Thomas High School gymnasium, one on Friday evening, and the second on Saturday evening.

Mr. Luzier stated that "Pudge" Stalnaker, Elkins, will be the referee. Approximately 100 boys from the three towns attended the boxing show at the Prison Outside Arena near Huttonsville on Friday evening, and were guests of Warden Ira E. Briers.

The boys were transported through the courtesy of Joe Gillis, Parsons and heard a 30 minute concert presented by the prison string band. Eight bouts were presented during the evening. Following the boxing match, the boys were invited to inspect the administration building. Warden Briers spoke to the boys concerning law breakers and their punishment. Warden Briers then presented Mr. Luzier with a check for the boys clubs of Tucker County and thanked Luzier for his part played in trying to curb juvenile delinquency in the county.

Moorefield Will Issue Bonds For New Water System

By KATHERINE FISHER

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Sept. 2—H. K. Gidley, engineer with the Division of Sanitary Engineering of the West Virginia State Health Department, met with the Town Council in a special meeting recently to discuss Moorefield's water system. Meeting with Gidley were Mayor P. W. Clarke, Recorder Harold Dodd, Councilman Raymond Sindy, Water Superintendent John Brill, Town Sergeant Sager and Dr. W. H. Maxwell.

Gidley pointed out that Moorefield's water system was obsolete and not adequate to take care of growing needs, and stated that although the town water supply may be safe at times it was always unsafe when oily or muddy.

In the discussion it was found that the council need not hold a special election to issue bonds. A bond issue will be passed by the council for a new water system, meeting with state requirements. After the council passes on a bond issue a public hearing will be held to give the citizens a chance to hear the plans and unless more than 10 per cent of the citizens object the bonds may be issued.

The state must approve the issue and the plans for a new system.

Mayor Clarke indicated that the council would be asked to retain a firm of consulting engineers to draw up plans for the system at the next meeting.

No apparent difficulties are evident which would prevent the council from immediately authorizing work to start for an adequate, safe water system for the town.

Rereation Group To Meet

Miss Irene Spitz, State Extension Recreation Specialist, will be in Hardy County Saturday, September 6, for a meeting at 2 p. m. with all recreation leaders in the county at Lost River State Park.

Mrs. Lester Mathias, county recreation chairman for the Farm Women's Clubs, has arranged with Miss Spitz to hold this meeting. It was found in a survey conducted by the county Farm Women's clubs that Hardy County needed a program for better and more recreation.

Miss Alice Goodell, Hardy Home Demonstration Agent, requests all persons working with young people in church work, schools, 4-H clubs, Boy Scouts or through the Farm Women's Clubs to attend the meeting. Those interested in adult recreation are invited to attend the clinic.

4-H Exhibit Projects

Nearly 150 4-H club members exhibited their project work at one of the three 4-H exhibits at Mathias, Wardensville and Moorefield during a two-day exhibition recently. Winners in the community exhibits will show their work at the Tri-County Fair this week.

The projects which were exhibited at the community showings represented work during the past year by members of the clubs in the county and consisted of all farm and home craft work. A large number of parents and friends attended the community exhibitions.

A Thief's Sour Note

HAMMOND, Ind.—(AP) Accordions in Hammond are due to give many an off-pitch squeal unless the person who robbed the room of Robert Hill returns the loot. The thief put the squeeze on Hill for $75 worth of tools used to repair and tune accordions.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive
Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell
Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduces the red-blood strength—and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.
Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.
To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.
Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Horse Show Will Be Sponsored At Memorial Park

By HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 2—The second annual horse show will be held at the Parsons Memorial Park, Saturday, September 6. The committee of the park announced that several new horses from Parsons will enter the tournament as well as horses from towns and cities throughout West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

A parade will be held at 1:30 p. m. on the streets of Parsons and will continue to the park where nine class contests will be sponsored. The, will be the five gait saddle class in which all horses must show fine distinct gaits, flat footed walk, running walk or fox trot, rack or single foot, trot and canter.

Cash prizes for this class will be given and first, second and third place winners will also be presented with ribbons.

In the three gaited saddle class, the three first places will receive ribbons and cash awards. Number three Trial or plantation class, will show horses in flat footed walks and gallops.

Number four class will be the pony class. Five will be the harness class. Calss six will be for horsemanship.

Class seven will be for the best horse in the show and is open to all horses that have won a first or second place in any other class.

Class eight will feature a musical chair competition and Class nine is farm teams, which must have two entries to complete the class. There must be competition to draw first prise, mare and gelding, two mares, or two geldings will constitute a team. There are no weight requirements, but must be shown in harness and demonstrate adaptability of farm work.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Winters, Clarksburg, announce the marriage of their daughter, Betty Arlene, to Harold J. Hendrix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pase, Thomas.

The double ring ceremony was held Friday evening, August 15, at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Clarksburg, with Rev. William P. Cline officiating.

The bride wore for her marriage a suit of white gabardine with matching accessories and completed her attire with a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Ellis Teets, Brookside, cousin of the bride, served as matron of honor and wore a pink ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds. Ellis Teets served the bridegroom as best man.

Following the wedding a reception was held for the members of the families and a few close friends at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Hendrix is a graduate of Washington Irving High School in the class of 1946. She was a member of Delta Iota Delta Sorority and the Be-Square Club. She is now employed by a hardware store in Clarksburg.

Mr. Hendrix is a graduate of Thomas High School in 1945 and served for one year with the Navy, ten months of which was spent in Guam. He is now associated with the Southern Steel Company, Clarksburg.

Boys Clubs Treated

Dick Luzier, sponsor of the Tucker County Boys' Sports clubs in Parsons, Thomas and Davis announced that three shows will be given this week. The first one is scheduled for Wednesday evening in Parsons High School gymnasium at 8 o'clock. Two shows will be held in the Thomas High School gymnasium, one on Friday evening, and the second on Saturday evening.

Mr. Luzier stated that "Pudge" Stalnaker, Elkins, will be the referee. Approximately 100 boys from the three towns attended the boxing show at the Prison Outside Arena near Huttonsville on Friday evening, and were guests of Warden Ira E. Briers.

The boys were transported through the courtesy of Joe Gillis, Parsons and heard a 30 minute concert presented by the prison string band. Eight bouts were presented during the evening. Following the boxing match, the boys were invited to inspect the administration building. Warden Briers spoke to the boys, concerning law breakers and their punishment. Warden Briers then presented Mr. Luzier with a check for the boys clubs of Tucker County and thanked Luzier for his part played in trying to curb juvenile delinquency in the county.

Moorefield Will Issue Bonds For New Water System

By KATHERINE FISHER

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Sept. 2—H. K. Gidley, engineer with the Division of Sanitary Engineering of the West Virginia State Health Department, met with the Town Council in a special meeting recently to discuss Moorefield's water system. Meeting with Gidley were Mayor P. W. Clarke, Recorder Harold Dodd, Councilman Raymond Sindy, Water Superintendent John Brill, Town Sergeant Sager and Dr. W. H. Maxwell.

Gidley pointed out that Moorefield's water system was obsolete and not adequate to take care of growing needs, and stated that although the town water supply may be safe at times it was always unsafe when oily or muddy.

In the discussion it was found that the council need not hold a special election to issue bonds. A bond issue will be passed by the council for a new water system, meeting with state requirements. After the council passes on a bond issue a public hearing will be held to give the citizens a chance to hear the plans and unless more than 10 per cent of the citizens object the bonds may be issued.

The state must approve the issue and the plans for a new system.

Mayor Clarke indicated that the council would be asked to retain a firm of consulting engineers to draw up plans for the system at the next meeting.

No apparent difficulties are evident which would prevent the council from immediately authorizing work to start for an adequate, safe water system for the town.

Recreation Group To Meet

Miss Irene Spitz, State Extension Recreation Specialist, will be in Hardy County Saturday, September 6, for a meeting at 2 p. m. with all recreation leaders in the county at Lost River State Park.

Mrs. Lester Mathias, county recreation chairman for the Farm Women's Clubs, has arranged with Miss Spitz to hold this meeting. It was found in a survey conducted by the county Farm Women's clubs that Hardy County needed a program for better and more recreation.

Miss Alice Goodell, Hardy Home Demonstration Agent, requests all persons working with young people in church work, schools, 4-H clubs, Boy Scouts or through the Farm Women's Clubs to attend the meeting. Those interested in adult recreation are invited to attend the clinic.

4-H Exhibit Projects

Nearly 150 4-H club members exhibited their project work at one of the three 4-H exhibits at Mathias, Wardensville and Moorefield during a two-day exhibition recently. Winners in the community exhibits will show their work at the Tri-County Fair this week.

Elks Nose Out Caseys, 2 To 1, In First Game

Moose And Legion Teams Meet Today

Right Fielder Bruce Mackey started two double plays, throwing runners out at the plate on both occasions, as the B.P.O. Elks edged the Knights of Columbus in the opening game of the Rocking Chair Softball League's playoff series yesterday at Community Park by the score of 2 to 1.

Mackey caught fly balls and tossed out Madden and Scaletta with perfect throws to Stakem as the Elks drew first blood on the best-of three games series.

The Elks scored their runs in the first two innings, Donald Whiteman and R. Wilkinson driving in the tallies. Gerdeman tripled and scored the Caseys' lone tally in the fifth.

Today the Loyal Order of Moose and the American Legion will open their playoff series at 6:15 p. m. at Community Park.

The second game of the Elks-K. of C. series is scheduled for tomorrow at Community Park. Box:

Terrors Will Open Season At Harvard

34 Of 50 Candidates Are 1946 Holdovers

WESTMINSTER, Md., Sept. 2 (AP)—Half a hundred football candidates, including 34 holdovers from the 1946 team which won five of seven games, turned out for opening practice today at Western Maryland College.

Coach Charlie Havens scheduled hard workouts for the Green Terrors who have less than a month before their opening game with Harvard at Cambridge Sept. 27.

Replacements must be found for such stalwarts as Halfback Art O'Keeffe, End Sig Jensen, Halfback Carlton Mendell, and Tackles Bart Norman and Joe Kittner. The latter is eligible for another season, but a knee injury sustained in the Delaware game last fall will keep him on the sidelines. He will help coach the varsity and junior varsity teams.

Bruce Ferguson, who has been aiding Havens since he was graduated from Western Maryland in 1937, will be back again to coach the ends while Havens handles the backfield.

Added to his coaching staff besides Kittner are Lou Lassahn, with the Green teams of the late 30's, who will concentrate on the line, and Tommy Tereshinski. The latter was to be discharged from the Valley Forge, Pa., Army Convalescent Center today. He has a leg injury received from German mortar fire during the late fracas in Europe.

After Harvard, Western Maryland meets Gettysburg there Oct. 4, Catholic University here Oct. 11, Washington College at Chestertown Oct. 18, Hampden-Sydney there Nov. 1, Delaware there Nov. 8, Dickinson here Nov. 15, and Johns Hopkins at Baltimore, Nov. 22.

Wratchford Tosses 1-Hitter In Opener Of Celanese Series

Service defeated "B" Downtwist in the opening game of the Celanese Softball League series yesterday morning by the score 4 to 0 behind the one-hit pitching of Wratchford, who retired the side in order in the second, third, fifth and seventh innings.

The only hit yielded by Wratchford came when Mongold misjudged Moyer's fly in right field in the 6th inning. Moyer, incidentally, was the only Downtwist player to reach second base during the game.

G. Rice obtained two of the five hits credited to the winning team. Score:

League Will Present Sportsmanship Trophy

Umpires of the City Softball League will select a player to be awarded a sportsmanship trophy, it was announced last night at a meeting of the league.

The 12 arbiters will cast ballots and the name of the winner of the trophy will not be announced until before the first game of the playoff series for the championship.

If the Amvets annex the second half championship they'll play Lacy's Delicatets in the opening game at Stitcher Field. The Amvets need one more victory to capture second half honors.

Houston Elder, assistant football coach at the University of Maryland was likewise assistant coach of the famed Great Lakes Naval Training Center during the war under Paul Brown. Elder, prior to that coached High School ball at Portsmouth, Ohio.

100 Players Enter National Singles Tennis Tourney

Represent 17 Nations; Play To Start Friday

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (AP)—Seventeen countries will be represented in the national tennis singles championships opening at Forest Hills Friday, with Jack Kramer of Los Angeles shooting for his second straight title and 99 other fellows going along for the ride.

The U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, announcing the pairings for the annual event today, disclosed that an even 100 entries had been received in the men's division while the feminine side of the entry list was limited to a tidy 64, just enough for a full bracket.

Twenty-eight men drew byes in the opening round of the ten-day court carnival, which attracted top-ranking amateurs from Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, China, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, England, France, India, Mexico, New Zealand, Romania, Sweden and the United States, including Hawaii.

Half of the remaining 72 men will be eliminated Friday, when officials plan to complete all first round play in the masculine division and run through half of the 32 first-round women's contests—making a total of 52 matches on opening day.

Kramer, who as defending champion heads the men's domestic seedings, drew a first round bye and will open the defense of his title against Ed McGrath, young Brooklyn collegian, in the second round.

With Kramer still among the amateurs, his 99 challengers obviously will be playing for experience and the dubious honor of swinging at his breath-taking drives in the title bout.

The stubble-haired Californian demonstrated by his performance in the Davis Cup finals over the weekend that he is head and shoulders above all the other amateur players of the world, and barring injury or overconfidence, should waltz through to another championship.

Bi-State League Playoffs Will Get Under Way Sunday

Westvaco At Hyndman, Amvets Hosts To Coney

Playoffs in the Bi-State Baseball League will get under way on Sunday, September 7, at Taylor Field, this city, and Hyndman, Pa., it was decided at a league meeting last night in Frostburg.

The Lonaconing Republican Club and the Cumberland Amvets, the No. 2 and 4 teams in the draw, will launch their series on Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at Taylor Field. The second game is set for Lonaconing, Sunday, September 14, at 2:30 p. m. while the third game, if necessary, will be staged Wednesday, September 17, at 5 p. m., with the site being determined by the toss of a coin.

Westvaco and Hyndman will open their series Sunday, Steptember 7, at 3:30 p. m., in Hyndman. Westernport will be the site of the second game, Sunday, September 14, at 2:30 p. m. The third game, if necessary, is set for Wednesday, September 17, at 5 p. m., and the site will be decided by the toss of a coin.

In event rain halts either of the opening games they are rescheduled for Wednesday, September 10.

The final best-of-three-games series for the league championship will get under way Sunday, September 21.

It was announced that the league race ended in a tie on Labor Day between the Amvets and Westvaco. The Amvets won two games from Barton, 16-0 and 8-3, while Westvaco won by forfeit from Barton on Monday morning. The latter game was scheduled at 9 a. m. but Barton failed to put in its appearance and forfeited. The $25 forfeit fee was waived but Barton will be required to pay the umpires $12. Westvaco players and the arbiters showed up at Barton for the game.

In the toss for the playoff positions Westvaco won the No. 1 position while the Amvets were second.

The Amvets protested the use of Paul Clapper, Hyndman pitcher, in the playoff series. Clapper who just returned from a minor league team played with Hyndman early in the season. Clapper was declared ineligible because he could not produce his unconditional release before Sunday, August 31.

RAY TAKES OFF—Ray Apolskis, former Marquette University star now with the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League, heralds the fall football season in the proper way at the Cards' camp at Waukesha, Wis.

Century Tossers Cop Second Place

Frostburg Playoffs To Start Tomorrow

FROSTBURG, Sept. 2—The Century Athletic Club clinched second place in the Frostburg Softball League today by defeating the Aristocrats in a playoff game at State Teachers' College Field by the score of 9 to 6.

The extra game was necessary after the teams closed their regular schedules deadlocked for the runner-up position with records of 16 wins and 14 losses.

Stoops' Restaurant finished in first place and Chubby's cafe was fourth. Stoops' and the Aristocrats will launch their playoff series Thursday at 6 p. m. at State Teachers' College Field. On Friday the C. A. C. and Chubby's will open their series on the same field.

Larry Shaner was the "big gun" in today's game. He obtained three of Century's 12 hits. R. Harper garnered two of the Aristocrats' five bingles. Glenn Hanna, third sacker of the C. A. C. starred afield. Score:

LONDON NEWSPAPER VOICES OPPOSITION TO OLYMPIC GAMES

LONDON, Sept. 2—(AP)—Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard which has been waging a fight against Great Britain playing host to the 1948 Olympic games took another swing at the project today.

In an editorial headed "it is still not too late—call off the games," The Standard attacked the large scale construction work slated for Wembley Stadium where most of the Olympic program will be run off.

"Sane opinion will marvel only at the colossal thickness of hide which permits its owners, at this time of crisis in the nation's serious affairs, to indulge in grandiose and luxurious schemes for an international weight-lifting and basketball jamboree," said The Standard.

Garden To Stage 29 College Cage Shows

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (AP)—Madison Square Garden today announced a record schedule of 29 college basketball shows for the coming season—along with the sad news that there will be practically no public sale of tickets for 27 of the dribble dates.

Forty-eight out-of-town schools, including nine major 1947 conference champions and Utah's national invitation tourney titlists, will make appearances in the big arena with the regular season starting December 2 and closing March 9.

In addition to these collegiate clashes the Garden will be the scene of the invitation tourney, the eastern end and finals of the NCAA post-season tourneys, the East-West all-star game and the Olympic trials.

The college slate includes.

V. F. W. at Concord (Taylor)
Others not scheduled

The Amvets muffed an opportunity to clinch the second half championship of the City Softball League yesterday when they dropped an 11 to 7 decision to the Veterans of Foreign Wars on the Rolling Mill diamond while the runner-up Astor Cab team went down to defeat before Lacy's Delicatets, first half champions, at Taylor Field, by the score of 6 to 1.

Wildness on the part of Amvet pitchers paved the way to victory for the Vets. Whiteman issued nine passes and Sheetz gave up four walks and six of these free tickets produced runs for the V.F.W. Eddie Decker kept the league leaders nine hits well spaced.

Three V.F.W. tallies were the result of circuit clouts. Paul Whitford homered in the 4th with none on and "Pruny" Lewis belted a four-bagger in the 5th with one aboard. Lou Riehl clouted a triple for the losers.

At Taylor Field, Jim Roby and Gene Scaletta limited Astor Cab to four hits while the Delicatets bunched hits in four innings for all of their runs. "Sonny" Wilson and Scaletta shared four of the winners' nine hits.

The Concord Clothiers walloped the Maccabees at Campobello, 15 to 4. Ray Cleggett smacked a homer for the victors.

Reed's Electricians won by forfeit when the American Legion was unable to field a team and North End gained a forfeit win over the defunct Virginia Avenue Merchants.

A victory for the Amvets over North End today at Campobello would decide the second half race. If another game is necessary to decide the championship it will be staged Thursday at Penn Avenue Field between the Amvets and the Maccabees.

Herboldsheimer and Barnett will umpire the Amvets-North End game while True and Grimes will officiate in today's V.F.W.-Concord Clothiers contest.

If a Thursday game is necessary, Minnicks and Angellatta will be the umpires. Scores:

FOX KNOCKS OUT GUEDES IN EIGHTH

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 2—(AP)—Billy Fox, Philadelphia light heavyweight contender, scored a technical knockout over Agostino Guedes, former light heavyweight champion of Portugal, tonight in 2:41 of the eighth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at the Allentown Fair Grounds.

The knockout victory was Fox's 49th in 50 starts as a pro but it was far from an easy win. A crowd of 5,171 saw Guedes shake up Fox in the first round with a series of left hooks and then drop him for nine counts in the fifth and sixth.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—The football public will get its final look tomorrow night at probably the greatest double dose of dynamite ever to perfrom on one amateur team when Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis perform for the Eastern All-Stars against the New York Giants in a charity game at the Polo Grounds.

GLENN DAVIS

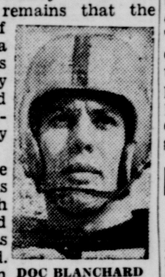

It isn't without a tinge of regret that this correspondent views the passing of Mr. B. and Mr. D. from the gridiron scene. They have given us the greatest thrills we have experienced in years we hesitate to count of watching the passing parade.

Maybe there haven't been too many years, at that, as the tendency as we grow older always is to belittle current performances and build the heroes of away-back-when to Paul Bunyonish proportions. We haven't reached that stage yet, but maybe we're just a victim of arrested development.

Anyway, we fully realize that for all but the final year of their collegiate competition at West Point Doc and Junior were playing against war-weakened teams, and that they were blessed with burly, capable teammates who likewise were draft proof, making the Army team a cohesive, experienced unit.

For there was no plucking of promising athletes to be shipped to Army and Navy and Marine camps for assignment to combat units. The boys were there until they were graduated, barring their own possible scholastic deficiencies.

But regardless of the admittedly inferior competition and the advantages of immunity from the draft, the fact remains that the Army teams of the B. & D. era were great teams which, we firmly believe, would have been standouts under any conditions.

DOC BLANCHARD

The best of the three Army teams on which both Blanchard and Davis played was the 1945 squad. The 1946 eleven lacked the depth of its predecessors, but it still was able to hold a great Notre Dame team to a scoreless tie.

We'll always carry a clear mental picture of their performance—Glenn darting out to take a lateral and streaking down the sidelines; Doc slashing and battering and bulling through the line and then speeding and sidestepping like a lightweight through the secondary.

Some day we may see their equal as a pair, and we hope we're still young enough to admit it. If we don't and the feats of B. & D. take on legendary hues, we'll know we're getting old.

Legion Held Edge In Seven Series

Swept One And Took 3 Out Of 4 From Six

Manager Art Garbark's Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion team holds the distinction of having gained the edge in every series in which it figured this season in the Interstate Baseball League.

The No. 1 team of President John J. Long's eight-club circuit swept its four-game series with Barrelville and won three out of four from the other six clubs of the loop.

Moorefield, runner-up in the Interstate, won five series, including three clean sweeps. The West Virginians were held on even terms by Centerville and lost three games to the Cumberland Legion.

Final standings showed that 15½ games separated the first and last place teams.

Fort Cumberland split even with Ridgeley in its final games on Labor Day, losing the opener 5-4 and taking the nightcap, 18-0. Moorefield won the first game, 7-1, and dropped the second to Centerville, 4-1 while the Cumberland Eagles bagged two from Naval Reserve, 22-5 and 8-7 and Barrelville swept a doubleheader from the Cumberland Moose, 5-1 and 5-2.

The Legion will play the third place Eagles while Moorefield will tangle with Centerville in the league's Shaughnessy playoffs scheduled to get under way this weekend.

Gridders Play Charity Game In New York

Proceeds Will Go To Fresh Air Fund

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (AP)—Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard, who did much of their footballing for Army on New York City gridirons give their followers a chance to say goodbye to them tomorrow night in the ninth annual Eastern College All-Star-New York Giant charity game.

Every one of the 52,000 pasteboards for the game, which gets under way at 7:30 p. m. (EST), has been sold and none of the ticket windows at the Polo Grounds even will be opened.

Profits from the struggle, the ninth in a series, will go to the Tribune Fresh Air Fund.

Mr. Outside and Mr. Inside will have two other former Army players in the starting All-Star lineup with them, Arnold (Mr. In-Between) Tucker at quarterback and Shelton Biles at tackle. Four other members of the Cadet teams which have gone unbeaten in college circles the past three years are on the All-Star list.

The ex-collegians have been practicing for three weeks at Bear Mountain under the direction of Tuss McLaughry, Dartmouth coach who tutored the 1940 All-Star team. That eleven made history by defeating the Giants, for the professionals only setback in the series.

The Giants reached West Point Saturday from Superior, Wis., where for the past month Coach Steve Owen has been remodeling the club that last year won the Eastern title of the National Football League. The remodeling was necessary because of the loss of Frank Filchock, the club's top passer, who was suspended indefinitely for failure to report a bribe offer to "fix" the championship game with the Chicago Bears.

Baltimore Colts Cut Squad To 38

Waivers Are Asked On Nine Gridders

BALTIMORE, Sept. 2 (AP)—Coach Cecil Isbell announced today that nine players had been cut from the Baltimore Colts' squad, reducing the roster to 38 men as final preparations went ahead for the opening All-America Football Conference game here with the Brooklyn Dodgers Sunday.

Conference regulations call for a 35-man squad by Sunday, but Isbell said he would seek permission to keep 38 players at least temporarily. Baltimore is a new member of the loop, and Isbell feels the Colts need more time to prepare, since players have been arriving and departing steadily in recent weeks as the coaches attempt to mould a smoothworking outfit.

Waivers have been asked on Keith Parker and Don Reece, backs from Missouri; Guard Emile Fritz, Maryland; Hal Mullins, Duke, and Pat O'Brien, Purdue, tackles; Center Patsy Martinelli, with the Buffalo Bills in 1946; Halfback Bob Kresja, recently obtained from the New York Yankees; and Guard George Cheroke and Fullback Jim Thibaut, two recent acquisitions from the Cleveland Browns.

Short Gap Takes Opener Of Series

Defeats Legion 10-4 In Frankfort Playoff

Short Gap defeated the Ridgeley American Legion yesterday by the score of 10 to 4 in the opener of the best-of-three-games series for the championship of the Frankfort District Softball League.

In the preliminary playoff games Short Gap eliminated the Ridgeley Brokers and the Ridgeley Legion defeated the Ridgeley Independents.

Short Gap scored all its runs in the second, third and fourth innings.

Files of Short Gap and W. Thompson of the Legion hit three-baggers and L. Sisk of the victors hit a double.

The second game of the series will be staged today at 5:45 p. m. on the Ridgeley High School field. Score:

Moose And Legion Teams Meet Today

Right Fielder Bruce Mackey started two double plays, throwing runners out at the plate on both occasions, as the B.P.O. Elks edged the Knights of Columbus in the opening game of the Rocking Chair Softball League's playoff series yesterday at Community Park by the score of 2 to 1.

Mackey caught fly balls and tossed out Madden and Scaletta with perfect throws to Stakem as the Elks drew first blood on the best-of three games series.

The Elks scored their runs in the first two innings, Donald Whiteman and R. Wilkinson driving in the tallies. Gerdeman tripled and scored the Caseys' lone tally in the fifth.

Today the Loyal Order of Moose and the American Legion will open their playoff series at 6:15 p. m. at Community Park.

The second game of the Elks-K. of C. series is scheduled for tomorrow at Community Park. Box:

Terrors Will Open Season At Harvard

34 Of 50 Candidates Are 1946 Holdovers

WESTMINSTER, Md., Sept. 2 (AP)—Half a hundred football candidates, including 34 holdovers from the 1946 team which won five of seven games, turned out for opening practice today at Western Maryland College.

Coach Charlie Havens scheduled hard workouts for the Green Terrors who have less than a month before their opening game with Harvard at Cambridge Sept. 27.

Replacements must be found for such stalwarts as Halfback Art O'Keeffe, End Sig Jensen, Halfback Carlton Mendell, and Tackles Bart Norman and Joe Kittner. The latter is eligible for another season, but a knee injury sustained in the Delaware game last fall will keep him on the sidelines. He will help coach the varsity and junior varsity teams.

Bruce Ferguson, who has been aiding Havens since he was graduated from Western Maryland in 1937, will be back again to coach the ends while Havens handles the backfield.

Added to his coaching staff besides Kittner are Lou Lassahn, with the Green teams of the late 30's, who will concentrate on the line, and Tommy Tereshinski. The latter was to be discharged from the Valley Forge, Pa., Army Convalescent Center today. He has a leg injury received from German mortar fire during the late fracas in Europe.

After Harvard, Western Maryland meets Gettysburg there Oct. 4, Catholic University here Oct. 11, Washington College at Chestertown Oct. 18, Hampden-Sydney there Nov. 1, Delaware there Nov. 8, Dickinson here Nov. 15, and Johns Hopkins at Baltimore, Nov. 22.

Wratchford Tosses 1-Hitter In Opener Of Celanese Series

Service defeated "B" Downtwist in the opening game of the Celanese Softball League series yesterday morning by the score 4 to 0 behind the one-hit pitching of Wratchford, who retired the side in order in the second, third, fifth and seventh innings.

The only hit yielded by Wratchford came when Mongold misjudged Moyer's fly in right field in the 6th inning. Moyer, incidentally, was the only Downtwist player to reach second base during the game.

G. Rice obtained two of the five hits credited to the winning team. Score:

League Will Present Sportsmanship Trophy

Umpires of the City Softball League will select a player to be awarded a sportsmanship trophy, it was announced last night at a meeting of the league.

The 12 arbiters will cast ballots and the name of the winner of the trophy will not be announced until before the first game of the playoff series for the championship.

If the Amvets annex the second half championship they'll play Lacy's Delicatets in the opening game at Stitcher Field. The Amvets need one more victory to capture second half honors.

Houston Elder, assistant football coach at the University of Maryland was likewise assistant coach of the famed Great Lakes Naval Training Center during the war under Paul Brown. Elder, prior to that coached High School ball at Portsmouth, Ohio.

100 Players Enter National Singles Tennis Tourney

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (AP)—Seventeen countries will be represented in the national tennis singles championships opening at Forest Hills Friday, with Jack Kramer of Los Angeles shooting for his second straight title and 99 other fellows going along for the ride.

The U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, announcing the pairings for the annual event today, disclosed that an even 100 entries had been received in the men's division while the feminine side of the entry list was limited to a tidy 64, just enough for a full bracket.

Twenty-eight men drew byes in the opening round of the ten-day court carnival, which attracted top-ranking amateurs from Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, China, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, England, France, India, Mexico, New Zealand, Romania, Sweden and the United States, including Hawaii.

Half of the remaining 72 men will be eliminated Friday, when officials plan to complete all first round play in the masculine division and run through half of the 32 first-round women's contests—making a total of 52 matches on opening day.

Kramer, who as defending champion heads the men's domestic seedings, drew a first round bye and will open the defense of his title against Ed McGrath, young Brooklyn collegian, in the second round.

With Kramer still among the amateurs, his 99 challengers obviously will be playing for experience and the dubious honor of swinging at his breath-taking drives in the title bout.

The stubble-haired Californian demonstrated by his performance in the Davis Cup finals over the weekend that he is head and shoulders above all the other amateur players of the world, and barring injury or overconfidence, should waltz through to another championship.

Bi-State League Playoffs Will Get Under Way Sunday

Westvaco At Hyndman, Amvets Hosts To Coney

Playoffs in the Bi-State Baseball League will get under way on Sunday, September 7, at Taylor Field, this city, and Hyndman, Pa., it was decided at a league meeting last night in Frostburg.

The Lonaconing Republican Club and the Cumberland Amvets, the No. 2 and 4 teams in the draw, will launch their series on Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at Taylor Field. The second game is set for Lonaconing, Sunday, September 14, at 2:30 p. m. while the third game, if necessary, will be staged Wednesday, September 17, at 5 p. m., with the site being determined by the toss of a coin.

Westvaco and Hyndman will open their series Sunday, Steptember 7, at 3:30 p. m., in Hyndman. Westernport will be the site of the second game, Sunday, September 14, at 2:30 p. m. The third game, if necessary, is set for Wednesday, September 17, at 5 p. m., and the site will be decided by the toss of a coin.

In event rain halts either of the opening games they are rescheduled for Wednesday, September 10.

The final best-of-three-games series for the league championship will get under way Sunday, September 21.

It was announced that the league race ended in a tie on Labor Day between the Amvets and Westvaco. The Amvets won two games from Barton, 16-0 and 8-3, while Westvaco won by forfeit from Barton on Monday morning. The latter game was scheduled at 9 a. m. but Barton failed to put in its appearance and forfeited. The $25 forfeit fee was waived but Barton will be required to pay the umpires $12. Westvaco players and the arbiters showed up at Barton for the game.

In the toss for the playoff positions Westvaco won the No. 1 position while the Amvets were second.

The Amvets protested the use of Paul Clapper, Hyndman pitcher, in the playoff series. Clapper who just returned from a minor league team played with Hyndman early in the season. Clapper was declared ineligible because he could not produce his unconditional release before Sunday, August 31.

Century Tossers Cop Second Place

Frostburg Playoffs To Start Tomorrow

FROSTBURG, Sept. 2—The Century Athletic Club clinched second place in the Frostburg Softball League today by defeating the Aristocrats in a playoff game at State Teachers' College Field by the score of 9 to 6.

The extra game was necessary after the teams closed their regular schedules deadlocked for the runner-up position with records of 16 wins and 14 losses.

Stoops' Restaurant finished in first place and Chubby's cafe was fourth. Stoops' and the Aristocrats will launch their playoff series Thursday at 6 p. m. at State Teachers' College Field. On Friday the C. A. C. and Chubby's will open their series on the same field.

Larry Shaner was the "big gun" in today's game. He obtained three of Century's 12 hits. R. Harper garnered two of the Aristocrats' five bingles. Glenn Hanna, third sacker of the C. A. C. starred afield. Score:

LONDON NEWSPAPER VOICES OPPOSITION TO OLYMPIC GAMES

LONDON, Sept. 2—(AP)—Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard which has been waging a fight against Great Britain playing host to the 1948 Olympic games took another swing at the project today.

In an editorial headed "it is still not too late—call off the games," The Standard attacked the large scale construction work slated for Wembley Stadium where most of the Olympic program will be run off.

"Sane opinion will marvel only at the colossal thickness of hide which permits its owners, at this time of crisis in the nation's serious affairs, to indulge in grandiose and luxurious schemes for an international weightlifting and basketball jamboree," said The Standard.

Garden To Stage 29 College Cage Shows

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (AP)—Madison Square Garden today announced a record schedule of 29 college basketball shows for the coming season—along with the sad news that there will be practically no public sale of tickets for 27 of the dribble dates.

Forty-eight out-of-town schools, including nine major 1947 conference champions and Utah's national invitation tourney titlists, will make appearances in the big arena with the regular season starting December 2 and closing March 9.

In addition to these collegiate clashes the Garden will be the scene of the invitation tourney, the eastern end and finals of the NCAA post-season tourneys, the East-West all-star game and the Olympic trials.

The college slate includes.

Jan. 8 — New York U. vs. Duke; Manhattan vs. West Virginia.

The Amvets muffed an opportunity to clinch the second half championship of the City Softball League yesterday when they dropped an 11 to 7 decision to the Veterans of Foreign Wars on the Rolling Mill diamond while the runner-up Astor Cab team went down to defeat before Lacy's Delicatets, first half champions, at Taylor Field, by the score of 6 to 1.

Wildness on the part of Amvet pitchers paved the way to victory for the Vets. Whiteman issued nine passes and Sheetz gave up four walks and six of these free tickets produced runs for the V.F.W. Eddie Decker kept the league leaders nine hits well spaced.

Three V.F.W. tallies were the result of circuit clouts. Paul Whitford homered in the 4th with none on and "Pruny" Lewis belted a four-bagger in the 5th with one aboard. Lou Riehl clouted a triple for the losers.

At Taylor Field, Jim Roby and Gene Scaletta limited Astor Cab to four hits while the Delicatets bunched hits in four innings for all of their runs. "Sonny" Wilson and Scaletta shared four of the winners' nine hits.

The Concord Clothiers walloped the Maccabees at Campobello, 15 to 4. Ray Cleggett smacked a homer for the victors.

Reed's Electricians won by forfeit when the American Legion was unable to field a team and North End gained a forfeit win over the defunct Virginia Avenue Merchants.

A victory for the Amvets over North End today at Campobello would decide the second half race. If another game is necessary to decide the championship it will be staged Thursday at Penn Avenue Field between the Amvets and the Maccabees.

Herboldsheimer and Barnett will umpire the Amvets-North End game while True and Grimes will officiate in today's V.F.W.-Concord Clothiers contest.

If a Thursday game is necessary, Minnicks and Angellatta will be the umpires. Scores:

FOX KNOCKS OUT GUEDES IN EIGHTH

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 2—(AP)—Billy Fox, Philadelphia light heavyweight contender, scored a technical knockout over Agostino Guedes, former light heavyweight champion of Portugal, tonight in 2:41 of the eighth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at the Allentown Fair Grounds.

The knockout victory was Fox's 49th in 50 starts as a pro but it was far from an easy win. A crowd of 5,171 saw Guedes shake up Fox in the first round with a series of left hooks and then drop him for nine counts in the fifth and sixth.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—The football public will get its final look tomorrow night at probably the greatest double dose of dynamite ever to perfrom on one amateur team when Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis perform for the Eastern All-Stars against the New York Giants in a charity game at the Polo Grounds.

GLENN DAVIS

It isn't without a tinge of regret that this correspondent views the passing of Mr. B. and Mr. D. from the gridiron scene. They have given us the greatest thrills we have experienced in years we hesitate to count of watching the passing parade.

Maybe there haven't been too many years, at that, as the tendency as we grow older always is to belittle current performances and build the heroes of away-back-when to Paul Bunyonish proportions. We haven't reached that stage yet, but maybe we're just a victim of arrested development.

Anyway, we fully realize that for all but the final year of their collegiate competition at West Point Doc and Junior were playing against war-weakened teams, and that they were blessed with burly, capable teammates who likewise were draft proof, making the Army team a cohesive, experienced unit.

For there was no plucking of promising athletes to be shipped to Army and Navy and Marine camps for assignment to combat units. The boys were there until they were graduated, barring their own possible scholastic deficiencies.

But regardless of the admittedly inferior competition and the advantages of immunity from the draft, the fact remains that the Army teams of the B. & D. era were great teams which, we firmly believe, would have been standouts under any conditions.

DOC BLANCHARD

The best of the three Army teams on which both Blanchard and Davis played was the 1945 squad. The 1946 eleven lacked the depth of its predecessors, but it still was able to hold a great Notre Dame team to a scoreless tie.

We'll always carry a clear mental picture of their performance—Glenn darting out to take a lateral and streaking down the sidelines; Doc slashing and battering and bulling through the line and then speeding and sidestepping like a lightweight through the secondary.

Some day we may see their equal as a pair, and we hope we're still young enough to admit it. If we don't and the feats of B. & D. take on legendary hues, we'll know we're getting old.

Legion Held Edge In Seven Series

Swept One And Took 3 Out Of 4 From Six

Manager Art Garbark's Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion team holds the distinction of having gained the edge in every series in which it figured this season in the Interstate Baseball League.

The No. 1 team of President John J. Long's eight-club circuit swept its four-game series with Barrelville and won three out of four from the other six clubs of the loop.

Moorefield, runner-up in the Interstate, won five series, including three clean sweeps. The West Virginians were held on even terms by Centerville and lost three games to the Cumberland Legion.

Final standings showed that 15½ games separated the first and last place teams.

Fort Cumberland split even with Ridgeley in its final games on Labor Day, losing the opener 5-4 and taking the nightcap, 18-0. Moorefield won the first game, 7-1, and dropped the second to Centerville, 4-1 while the Cumberland Eagles bagged two from Naval Reserve, 22-5 and 8-7 and Barrelville swept a doubleheader from the Cumberland Moose, 5-1 and 5-2.

The Legion will play the third place Eagles while Moorefield will tangle with Centerville in the league's Shaughnessy playoffs scheduled to get under way this weekend.

Today's PITCHERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (AP)—Probable pitchers for tomorrow's major league games (won and lost records in parentheses):

Gridders Play Charity Game In New York

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (AP)—Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard, who did much of their footballing for Army on New York City gridirons give their followers a chance to say goodbye to them tomorrow night in the ninth annual Eastern College All-Star-New York Giant charity game.

Every one of the 52,000 pasteboards for the game, which gets under way at 7:30 p. m. (EST), has been sold and none of the ticket windows at the Polo Grounds even will be opened.

Profits from the struggle, the ninth in a series, will go to the Tribune Fresh Air Fund.

Mr. Outside and Mr. Inside will have two other former Army players in the starting All-Star lineup with them, Arnold (Mr. In-Between) Tucker at quarterback and Shelton Biles at tackle. Four other members of the Cadet teams which have gone unbeaten in college circles the past three years are on the All-Star list.

The ex-collegians have been practicing for three weeks at Bear Mountain under the direction of Tuss McLaughry, Dartmouth coach who tutored the 1940 All-Star team. That eleven made history by defeating the Giants, for the professionals only setback in the series.

The Giants reached West Point Saturday from Superior, Wis., where for the past month Coach Steve Owen has been remodeling the club that last year won the Eastern title of the National Football League. The remodeling was necessary because of the loss of Frank Filchock, the club's top passer, who was suspended indefinitely for failure to report a bribe offer to "fix" the championship game with the Chicago Bears.

Probable Lineups

Baltimore Colts Cut Squad To 38

Waivers Are Asked On Nine Gridders

BALTIMORE, Sept. 2 (AP)—Coach Cecil Isbell announced today that nine players had been cut from the Baltimore Colts' squad, reducing the roster to 38 men as final preparations went ahead for the opening All-America Football Conference game here with the Brooklyn Dodgers Sunday.

Conference regulations call for a 35-man squad by Sunday, but Isbell said he would seek permission to keep 38 players at least temporarily. Baltimore is a new member of the loop, and Isbell feels the Colts need more time to prepare, since players have been arriving and departing steadily in recent weeks as the coaches attempt to mould a smoothworking outfit.

Waivers have been asked on: Keith Parker and Don Reece, backs from Missouri; Guard Emile Fritz, Maryland; Hal Mullins, Duke, and Pat O'Brien, Purdue, tackles; Center Patsy Martinelli, with the Buffalo Bills in 1946; Halfback Bob Kresja, recently obtained from the New York Yankees; and Guard George Cheroke and Fullback Jim Thibaut, two recent acquisitions from the Cleveland Browns.

Short Gap Takes Opener Of Series

Defeats Legion 10-4 In Frankfort Playoff

Short Gap defeated the Ridgeley American Legion yesterday by the score of 10 to 4 in the opener of the best-of-three-games series for the championship of the Frankfort District Softball League.

In the preliminary playoff games Short Gap eliminated the Ridgeley Brokers and the Ridgeley Legion defeated the Ridgeley Independents.

Short Gap scored all its runs in the second, third and fourth innings.

Files of Short Gap and W. Thompson of the Legion hit three-baggers and L. Sisk of the victors hit a double.

The second game of the series will be staged today at 5:45 p. m. on the Ridgeley High School field. Score:

RIDGELEY LEGION..102 000 1— 4 7 3
SHORT GAP ..... 043 300 x—10 12 7

Miss Grace Yutzy Becomes Bride Of James L. Bittner

Couple Is Wed In St. Paul's Church

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Sept. 2—Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Grace Arlene Yutzy, daughter of Mrs. John L. Yutzy, to James Leonard Bittner, son of Mrs. Verna Mae Bittner, Sand Patch, Pa. The double ring ceremony was performed August 30, at 8 p. m., in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, with Rev. J. H. Liesmann, pastor, officiating. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Yutzy, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

The bride was attired in a street length dress of powder blue with black accessories and a corsage of pink snapdragons. The matron of honor wore a blue street length dress with navy accessories and a corsage of the same flowers as the bride's.

The bridegroom is employed at California, Pa., by the Vesta Coal Division of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation. After a brief honeymoon, the couple will reside in California, Pa.

Miller-Timney Nuptials Held In Methodist Church

By MARIE MERRBACH

LONACONING, Sept. 2—Miss Helen Timney, daughter of Mrs. Hettie Timney and the late John Timney, and Charles J. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller, were married Saturday at 7 p. m.

The wedding was solemnized in the First Methodist Church, Lonaconing, by Rev. John E. Stacks. The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Charley B. Miller, of Friendsville. A double ring ceremony was used.

Miss Miriam Orndorff, Westernport, college classmate of the bride, played "I Love You Truly" and "The Wedding March" on the church organ.

The bride wore a light blue gabardine suit with black accessories and carried a white Bible covered with orchids and white satin ribbon streamers and marker.

Mrs. George Cooper was her sister's matron-of-honor and only attendant. She wore a black suit with black and white accessories and a corsage of white camelias.

Louis Miller, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Miller are graduates of Central High School. The bride is also a graduate of Frostburg State Teachers college and taught in Cresaptown Junior High school last year.

While at college she was a member of Phi Omicron Delta sorority, the Maryland Singers, president of the Day Council, vice president of the Student Congress and in her senior year was selected as "Sweetheart of the Campus".

Mr. Miller was in the armed services for two and a half years. He served as an army engineer and he is now enrolled in the University of Maryland.

Mrs. Timney, mother of the bride, wore a gray dress with black accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds. Mrs. Miller, mother of the bridegroom, wore a pale gray dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Miss Orndorff, the organist, wore a pale green suit with a pink rosebud corsage.

A reception was held at the bride's home following the ceremony with members of the immediate families attending. A three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and tall white candles were the table decorations. The home was decorated with fall flowers.

Mrs. Charley B. Miller, Friendsville, and Mrs. James Phillips, Jr., sisters of the bride, and Mrs. Nettie Ralston, Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Joseph Miller assisted in serving.

The couple has gone to Washington for a wedding trip. They will reside at 3905 Oglethorpe Street, Hyattsville, Md., where Mrs. Miller will teach this year. Mr. Miller will resume his studies at the University of Maryland.

Citizens Pledge Needed Sum For Shirt Factory

By W. A. SHOEMAKER

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Sept. 2—The possibility of losing an industrial plant with a $150,000 annual payroll acted as an impetus to the citizens who, at meetings over the weekend, pledged sufficient money to practically insure the amount, according to a statement given out by John Layton, manager-partner of the Stock Manufacturing Company.

The Stock Shirt Company was brought to Meyersdale from New York by the local Chamber of Commerce last October, and employes about 100 persons. The plant has been operating in the social hall of SS. Philip and James Catholic Church, but the quarters have proved to be too small. Beginning with a handful of employes the number has increased to 100, and there are 20 new machines waiting to be unpacked, which should materially increase the payroll.

The site for the proposed new plant and considerable building material has been secured, and it is now assured that definite steps will be taken at once for the construction of the new factory building to which so many local citizens have already contributed.

John H. Dietle Rites

John H. Dietle, 80, who was injured Saturday morning and died nine hours later at his home on the north slope of Hundsrick Hill, will be buried at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon, with services conducted at the Konhaus Funeral Home, Meyersdale, and interment in Union Cemetery.

Mr. Dietle, who celebrated his 80th birthday last July, and who was a retired farmer and miner, was driving from his home to U. S. Highway 219, and drove on to the road just as a Ferndale truck, driven by Robert Sembower, Rockwood, was passing.

The car crashed and the aged man was given first aid by a physician and then removed to the Hazel McGilvery Hospital in Meyersdale to be X-rayed for chest injuries, but none were found.

Death was attributed to heart failure due to nervous shock. The accident was investigated by Pennsylvania State Police from the Somerset barracks.

Mr. Dietle has no near relatives other than several nieces and nephews located in Akron, Ohio. He lived alone in his own home located about three miles south of Meyersdale.

Harry Byer Funeral

Rites for Harry Byer, 60, Meyersdale, who died Friday night in the Veterans Hospital at Aspinwall, were held this afternoon at the Kronhaus Funeral Home, at 2 o'clock, with Rev. Nelson C. Brown, pastor of Amity Evangelical and Reformed Church, officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Mr. Byer, who was a Spanish-American war veteran, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Caroline Habel Byer, and these children, Mrs. Una Lichty and Mrs. Doris Clapper, Meyersdale; Mrs. Mary Phillippi, Rockwood; Harry W. Byer, Pittsburgh, and Fern, Blaine and John Byer, at home; three brothers, Peter Byer, Harrisburg; Frank Byer, Shelocta, and Abe Byer, Lancaster; and a sister, Mrs. Mary Whiteman, also of Lancaster.

Children Attend Rodeo

A total of 102 children from Meyersdale were guests last Saturday at a free bus excursion sponsored by the Loyal Order of Moose and the Lions Club to be present at the two-hour rodeo show sponsored by the Pennsylvania State Police, St. Vincent's College Stadium, Latrobe. This was the first time in the history of the show that is was presented free to underprivileged and crippled children, disabled veterans, orphans and all children in the 12-18 age limit. The show will not be presented in this part of the state for another four years.

Those who accompanied the group of children were Chief of Police James A. Brocht and James McIntire, a member of the Lions Committee.

Keyser Council Plans Pension And Relief Fund For City Police Force

Governing Board To Be Appointed

By MRS. JOSEPH H. TAYLOR

KEYSER, W. Va., Sept. 2—At the meeting of the Mayor and City Council today, City Attorney James H. Swadley read an ordinance for the beginning of a policeman's pension and relief fund. The proposed plan calls for compensation for sick or injured policemen, and pensions for policemen who have served 23 years and reached the age of at least 50 years.

The three proposed systems of building the pension fund are:

1. Three percent should be taken from the total amount of money paid out to the police force, and the three percent then divided equally among the men on the force, so that each man will be paying the same amount, regardless of his salary.

2. A direct levy of one cent on each $100 worth of taxable property.

3. Add $1 cost fee to a conviction of any criminal act.

A board of trustees, composed of the Mayor and four city policemen who work under civil service, will be appointed. The ordinance was ordered held for 30 days when final action will be taken. It will be brought up and discussed again at the next meeting of the City Council.

The Council ordered all bills presented to be paid.

Three building permits were requested and granted as follows:

D. R. Pritt asked permission to erect a combination garage and work shop at 477 Barnes Street, constructed of concrete blocks, 16x20 feet, at a cost of $450.

T. J. McMillan asked to build a semi-bungalow on Virginia Street, constructed of concrete blocks with composition roof, 26x30 feet, at a cost of $5,000.

Vernon Leatherman was given permission to open a parking lot on Davis Street on the lot owned by the G. C. Murphy Company. An outlet on Davis Street will be included.

The meeting was adjourned until Friday at 11 a. m., to act on all past due bills that have not been presented to the Council because of the Labor Day Holiday.

Meter collections for the past week amounted to $206.67.

Thomas Shears, Mineral County, was arrested Monday night on a charge of drunk and disorderly conduct.

Injured In Wreck

Mrs. Corine Robinette, Ronald Robinette and Jerry Robinette, all of New Creek, were treated at Potomac Valley Hospital yesterday for lacerations received when a vehicle skidded into the automobile in which they were riding on Route 50, near Table Rock Inn, Maryland, about 8 p. m. Sunday. Other occupants in the car were Mrs. Loretta Robinette, Danville, Md.; Jean and Charles Robinette, New Creek. Maryland State Police investigated the accident.

Admitted To Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan, Mrs. Joseph Morgan and daughter, Margaret Edith Morgan, are all patients at Potomac Valley Hospital under observation for injuries sustained when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a bank near Deer Park, Md., Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Their injuries are not considered serious.

Miss Grace Yutzy Becomes Bride Of James L. Bittner

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Sept. 2—Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Grace Arlene Yutzy, daughter of Mrs. John L. Yutzy, to James Leonard Bittner, son of Mrs. Verna Mae Bittner, Sand Patch, Pa. The double ring ceremony was performed August 30, at 8 p. m., in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, with Rev. J. H. Liesmann, pastor, officiating. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Yutzy, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

The bride was attired in a street length dress of powder blue with black accessories and a corsage of pink snapdragons. The matron of honor wore a blue street length dress with navy accessories and a corsage of the same flowers as the bride's.

The bridegroom is employed at California, Pa., by the Vesta Coal Division of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation. After a brief honeymoon, the couple will reside in California, Pa.

Miller-Timney Nuptials Held In Methodist Church

By MARIE MERRBACH

LONACONING, Sept. 2—Miss Helen Timney, daughter of Mrs. Hettie Timney and the late John Timney, and Charles J. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller, were married Saturday at 7 p. m.

The wedding was solemnized in the First Methodist Church, Lonaconing, by Rev. John E. Stacks. The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Charley B. Miller, of Friendsville. A double ring ceremony was used.

Miss Miriam Orndorff, Westernport, college classmate of the bride, played "I Love You Truly" and "The Wedding March" on the church organ.

The bride wore a light blue gabardine suit with black accessories and carried a white Bible covered with orchids and white satin ribbon streamers and marker.

Mrs. George Cooper was her sister's matron-of-honor and only attendant. She wore a black suit with black and white accessories and a corsage of white camellias.

Louis Miller, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Miller are graduates of Central High School. The bride is also a graduate of Frostburg State Teachers college and taught in Cresaptown Junior High school last year.

While at college she was a member of Phi Omicron Delta sorority, the Maryland Singers, president of the Day Council, vice president of the Student Congress and in her senior year was selected as "Sweetheart of the Campus".

Mr. Miller was in the armed services for two and a half years. He served as an army engineer and he is now enrolled in the University of Maryland.

Mrs. Timney, mother of the bride, wore a gray dress with black accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds. Mrs. Miller, mother of the bridegroom, wore a pale gray dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Miss Orndorff, the organist, wore a pale green suit with a pink rosebud corsage.

A reception was held at the bride's home following the ceremony with members of the immediate families attending. A three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and tall white candles were the table decorations. The home was decorated with fall flowers.

Mrs. Charley B. Miller, Friendsville, and Mrs. James Phillips, Jr., sisters of the bride, and Mrs. Nettie Ralston, Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Joseph Miller assisted in serving.

The couple has gone to Washington for a wedding trip. They will reside at 3905 Oglethorpe Street, Hyattsville, Md., where Mrs. Miller will teach this year. Mr. Miller will resume his studies at the University of Maryland.

Citizens Pledge Needed Sum For Shirt Factory

By W. A. SHOEMAKER

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Sept. 2—The possibility of losing an industrial plant with a $150,000 annual payroll acted as an impetus to the citizens who, at meetings over the weekend, pledged sufficient money to practically insure the amount, according to a statement given out by John Layton, manager-partner of the Stock Manufacturing Company.

The Stock Shirt Company was brought to Meyersdale from New York by the local Chamber of Commerce last October, and employes about 100 persons. The plant has been operating in the social hall of SS. Philip and James Catholic Church, but the quarters have proved to be too small. Beginning with a handful of employes the number has increased to 100, and there are 20 new machines waiting to be unpacked, which should materially increase the payroll.

The site for the proposed new plant and considerable building material has been secured, and it is now assured that definite steps will be taken at once for the construction of the new factory building to which so many local citizens have already contributed.

John H. Dietle Rites

John H. Dietle, 80, who was injured Saturday morning and died nine hours later at his home on the north slope of Hundsrick Hill, will be buried at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon, with services conducted at the Konhaus Funeral Home, Meyersdale, and interment in Union Cemetery.

Mr. Dietle, who celebrated his 80th birthday last July, and who was a retired farmer and miner, was driving from his home to U. S. Highway 219, and drove on to the road just as a Ferndale truck, driven by Robert Sembower, Rockwood, was passing.

The car crashed and the aged man was given first aid by a physician and then removed to the Hazel McGilvery Hospital in Meyersdale to be X-rayed for chest injuries, but none were found.

Death was attributed to heart failure due to nervous shock. The accident was investigated by Pennsylvania State Police from the Somerset barracks.

Mr. Dietle has no near relatives other than several nieces and nephews located in Akron, Ohio. He lived alone in his own home located about three miles south of Meyersdale.

Harry Byer Funeral

Rites for Harry Byer, 60, Meyersdale, who died Friday night in the Veterans Hospital at Aspinwall, were held this afternoon at the Kronhaus Funeral Home, at 2 o'clock, with Rev. Nelson C. Brown, pastor of Amity Evangelical and Reformed Church, officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Mr. Byer, who was a Spanish-American war veteran, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Caroline Habel Byer, and these children, Mrs. Una Lichty and Mrs. Doris Clapper, Meyersdale; Mrs. Mary Phillippi, Rockwood; Harry W. Byer, Pittsburgh, and Fern, Blaine and John Byer, at home; three brothers, Peter Byer, Harrisburg; Frank Byer, Shelocta, and Abe Byer, Lancaster; and a sister, Mrs. Mary Whiteman, also of Lancaster.

Children Attend Rodeo

A total of 102 children from Meyersdale were guests last Saturday at a free bus excursion sponsored by the Loyal Order of Moose and the Lions Club to be present at the two-hour rodeo show sponsored by the Pennsylvania State Police, St. Vincent's College Stadium, Latrobe. This was the first time in the history of the show that is was presented free to underprivileged and crippled children, disabled veterans, orphans and all children in the 12-18 age limit. The show will not be presented in this part of the state for another four years.

Those who accompanied the group of children were Chief of Police James A. Brocht and James McIntire, a member of the Lions Committee.

Governing Board To Be Appointed

By MRS. JOSEPH H. TAYLOR

KEYSER, W. Va., Sept. 2—At the meeting of the Mayor and City Council today, City Attorney James H. Swadley read an ordinance for the beginning of a policeman's pension and relief fund. The proposed plan calls for compensation for sick or injured policemen, and pensions for policemen who have served 23 years and reached the age of at least 50 years.

The three proposed systems of building the pension fund are:

1. Three percent should be taken from the total amount of money paid out to the police force, and the three percent then divided equally among the men on the force, so that each man will be paying the same amount, regardless of his salary.

2. A direct levy of one cent on each $100 worth of taxable property.

3. Add $1 cost fee to a conviction of any criminal act.

A board of trustees, composed of the Mayor and four city policemen who work under civil service, will be appointed. The ordinance was ordered held for 30 days when final action will be taken. It will be brought up and discussed again at the next meeting of the City Council.

The Council ordered all bills presented to be paid.

Three building permits were requested and granted as follows:

D. R. Pritt asked permission to erect a combination garage and work shop at 477 Barnes Street, constructed of concrete blocks, 16x20 feet, at a cost of $450.

T. J. McMillan asked to build a semi-bungalow on Virginia Street, constructed of concrete blocks with composition roof, 26x30 feet, at a cost of $5,000.

Vernon Leatherman was given permission to open a parking lot on Davis Street on the lot owned by the G. C. Murphy Company. An outlet on Davis Street will be included.

The meeting was adjourned until Friday at 11 a. m., to act on all past due bills that have not been presented to the Council because of the Labor Day Holiday.

Meter collections for the past week amounted to $206.67.

Thomas Shears, Mineral County, was arrested Monday night on a charge of drunk and disorderly conduct.

Injured In Wreck

Mrs. Corine Robinette, Ronald Robinette and Jerry Robinette, all of New Creek, were treated at Potomac Valley Hospital yesterday for lacerations received when a vehicle skidded into the automobile in which they were riding on Route 50, near Table Rock Inn, Maryland, about 8 p. m. Sunday. Other occupants in the car were Mrs. Loretta Robinette, Danville, Md., Jean and Charles Robinette, New Creek. Maryland State Police investigated the accident.

Admitted To Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan, Mrs. Joseph Morgan and daughter, Margaret Edith Morgan, are all patients at Potomac Valley Hospital under observation for injuries sustained when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a bank near Deer Park, Md., Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Their injuries are not considered serious.

Eighth Broome Reunion Held

The eighth annual Broome Reunion was held Sunday, August 31, at the Samuel Logsdon Home, Fountain, with 99 members of the clan present, all descendants of John L. and Harriet Rice Broome.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Broome, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Dorhman, Mrs. W. H. Broome, Mrs. L. E. Broome, Washington, Mrs. A. H. Broome and son, Richard, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Malone, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Broome and two children, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Logsdon, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Logsdon, Mrs. Harry Broome and son, Carroll, Mrs. Earl Logsdon, Pittsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Broome and four children, Earl Malone, Mr. and Mrs. Lantz Malone and son, Mrs. John Pownell and four children, Mr. and Mrs. Lantz Hershberger and five children.

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Bane and son, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Dayton and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Null, and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Broome and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Douthitt and two sons, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Dorhman and son,

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 2—Hold everything! Here's a flash that ought to knock you off your pins! Gene Autry is deserting his trusty six-shooters and leather chaps for satin pants and a jeweled rapier.

Gene Autry

Gene just told me his surprising plans for late next year, and I must say it's the darndest news I ever expected to hear from him. When he has finished the last of the eight musical westerns he is to make for Columbia — he's now working on the third called "A Little Spanish Town" — Gene is going to star in Sir Walter Scott's blood and thunder novel, "Quentin Durward."

That's the story, you remember, of the dashing Scottish guardsman in the service of Louis XI of France which deals with the exciting siege of Liege in 1470. The book is in public domain, and Gene is assigning writers to start preparing the script.

Oh yes, kids, Champ will be in it, never fear. All dressed up like his master, too.

I thought when I was told that Deanna Durbin was going to make a picture called "White House Girl" and that it was about a singer, I surmised maybe it was the story of Margaret Truman. But I was wrong. Deanna plays a switchboard operator at the White House who has a gorgeous singing voice, and it's really a hilarious comedy.

An original by producer-writer Karl Tunberg, it will be directed by William Seiter, and it follows "Up In Central Park." All Deanna needs to do is be just as good as she was in "Something In The Wind," that's her best picture in years.

Robert Alda, who started so auspiciously in "Rhapsody in Blue" and then sort of faded from view, is being brought back again by Warners for one of the leads in "April Showers," with Ann Sothern and Jack Carson.

This one should be a cake-walk for Bob, because he plays a vaudeville song and dance man, his old job in pre-Hollywood days. I suppose I say he faded from view, because he's been making personal appearances so long, and when he hasn't been doing that, he's been busy developing his chain of drive-in restaurants in the valley.

I am greatly interested in a telegram Van Johnson sent me in which he says that although this is the first time he has ever been out on a personal appearance tour it certainly won't be the last.

He says he thinks more of our film personalities should go out and see how the public feels about the movies and the tremendous influence the motion picture industry wields.

Some people traveled 250 miles to see Van in Memphis, which pleased him greatly, but also made him realize, he said, what a responsibility all picture folk have to this loyal public.

Chit Chat: When I went to the book department at May's Department Store a few days ago, they told me that Kathleen Winsor was coming there to autograph books of "Forever Amber"—I suppose to help the movie.

Then I started checking and heard that Kathleen and Artie Shaw are back together and trying to work out their marriage, they have consulted a psychiatrist to see if they can's readjust their lives.

I also heard that Miss Winson is writing another book — a modern story.

How the years fly! Young June Lockhart, Gene's daughter, leaves next week to make her Broadway debut in the romantic comedy, "For Love Or Money" with John Loder, and she is one excited little girl.

Actually, it's only her grown-up debut because June, who just finished "T-Man" for Eagle-Lion, first appeared on Broadway when she was eight years old.

Loder leaves this week and he is very hopeful the play will have a long run. He and Hedy Lamarr are not parting friends—as is the old California custom among separated couples.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Nancy Valentine and Pat DiCicco a dancing twosome at the Macombo.

'Tis whispered that June Havoc and Bill Spiers have set March as the month of their wedding. That is, he has about convinced June she should be Mrs. Spiers after he is legally free.

When Barbara Lawrence married John Fontaine, Martha Crawford caught the bouquet. Now Martha is marrying Bill Lear on September 14, and Barbara will be matron of honor.

Diana Garrett, who has been seeing David Street, might like to know he's just bought an interest in a gold mine near Reno. Or maybe she wouldn't want to know—gold mines often don't "pan" out.

Dennis Day will sing at Jane Withers' wedding September 30. The O'Malley girls, Sheila and Kathleen, gave a bridal shower for Jane, who is busy buying her trousseau.

Barry Sullivan and his wife, Mary Brown, will do a comedy for George Abbott on Broadway this fall. They were together 10 years ago in "Brother Rat."

Most birds have strong leg tenons so arranged that when the bird settles down on a perch the toes are locked in place.

DEATH IN ARENA—Manuel Rodriguez, known as Manolete, idol of the bull-fighting world, lies mortally wounded under the hooves of "Islero," a Mauri bull, which gored the matador at Linares, Spain, August 28. The bull, with two "banderillas," finger-thick sticks with barbs, and Manolete's "estoque" (sword), still in his thick back, died later from a short thrust made by the fighter after he received his fatal goring. He died in the hospital the following day.

Pro-College All Stars Game Will Be Aired Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Another of the three pre-season samples of the new football year will come on for network description Wednesday night. This time the scene is New York and the event the eastern college all-stars against the New York Pro Giants.

With the aid of Harry Wismer, ABC will do the broadcasting from 8:30 on, with the regular schedule so eliminated that nothing else will be in the way until the game is over. The college team is to include the Army heroes of last season, Davis and Blanchard. The broadcast is to be carried in cooperation with the army recruiting service.

In anticipation of one of the many program changes due on MBS for fall the adventures of Johnny Modero in drama form are to end with the 7:30 broadcast. Next week in this time it is to appear Quiet Please, which has been on the Sunday list.

Tex and Jinx, continuing their interviewing ways in the Duffy Tavern summer replacement on NBC at 8 have picked Jack Kramer, tennis champion, and Nancy Walker, fast talking comedy talker particularly from the standpoint of the verbal comeback, as their guests. But the program isn't all interviewing, for there is the orchestra music of Johnnie Guarnieri's band.

Second Mrs. Burton, CBS serial which has weekly guests under the category of "mid-week counselor," announced Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas as occupying that spot at 1 p. m.

George Fleming is now a press agent for the American Broadcasting Company, but he has tried his hand at virtually everything else short of cow punching. By GEORGE FLEMING

A Press Agent and His Ulcers

The double rye-and-water set, a knowing bunch of boys, are critical of radio. Toward radio press agents they are openly scornful. In their book, radio press agents are strictly for consumption off the premises. They like to point out that the theater, the movies, politics, Broadway and even parts of Florida wholly under water all have produced characters worthy of being called press agents. "Looks like all you birds are buckin' for an Oscar for being unmentionable," one of them summed it up recently.

He was wrong there. Some of radio's better press agents are at least as well known as the average vender of artificially flavored fruit syrups in Valpariso, Ind. Their names are seen where it counts, too. On freight cars, on fences and sidewalks, on the bodies of dusty trucks, on the lions in front of the New York Public Library—places more enduring than mere newspaper columns.

One I know of managed, after months of trying, to scribble his name on the dashboard of an Atlantic City rolling chair! The network he's been with for six years gave him his own desk. Now, of course, he's well on his way to Calvert.

Something not generally known among the double rye-and-water boys is that radio press agents, sensitive to the shortcomings of a young, $700 million industry, often consciously seek the background. For example, take the opening night of some big Broadway musical. How many times have I, faultlessly dressed, sneaked down the aisle just before the lights dimmed and pausing at the third row, shouted back for an usher to find my three seats, one for myself, one for my gloves and one for my "Reader's Digest?"

In a way, self-effacement comes natural to a radio press agent. The network which employs him has maybe two hundred sponsors and each one of them, in a sense, is his boss. He musn't offend any of them in thought, word or deed. If he does the sponsor will turn on him with those expectant cocker spaniel eyes. Most press agents have no more than one boss. Besides, when they have to entertain out-of-town newspaper guys they can get as disorderly as the annual clambake of the Lithuanian open hearth furnace social club of Saltpill, Pa.

Let the double rye boys ponder this. It often happens that a smiling man with a charcoal-broiled heart comes into your office and asks, "Who does the publicity on the 'Fanny Faces Frigidity' program?" Would any of the double rye boys leap to his feet and cry out "I, Dick Merriwell, do." Not if he had one shred of self-respect. He would clap his hands to his stomach and moan. I, on the other hand, just clap my hands. That's so I won't hear the man with the charcoal-broiled heart ask exactly what I'm doing to lift the program's Hooper. On a program like that the Hooper is as hard to lift as J. Edgar Hoover's watch and, about such a disastrous half hour, the only humane thing is to keep absolutely quiet. It needs publicity about as much as the Dionne family needs fertility symbols around the house.

But the program has a sponsor. So you have to tell the man something. A sponsor is a gentleman who pays so much for a radio program that when it's on the air the only thing that will make him laugh is news of a stock market crash. "I'm entertaining the custodian of Mark Twain's cave in Hannibal, Missouri," you say spiritedly. "He edits a magazine on the side. A dental monthly called 'The Oral Cavity.'" The man with the charcoal-broiled heart sends in a report to your boss that you are flippant.

Much of a radio agent's pain, however, is lightened by the conditions under which he works. They are practical ideal. In the A.B.C. publicity office, for example, there's a typewriter for each member of the staff. It isn't his own, of course, and any one in the office is free to use it. As in all offices there's always one machine busted, which means that the last man to arrive in the morning can't start work until somebody goes to the washroom. Eventually some one does and then the last man in grabs his typewriter. When the man who has gone comes back his machine is in use, so he waits around until somebody else has to go.

During these periods of waiting, a number of A.B.C. press agents write plays and novels. This stuff is known as the soft underbelly of literature.

Also, as often as not during these periods of waiting, the boss comes out with what is called a "small" assignment.

"You're not busy, are you?" he remarks.

"Not physically but I'm thinking," you say defensively.

"It doesn't show," he says and explains that some executive of the network is going to Boston the following day to address the Diligent Drones Society and needs a couple of thousand words—"just rough, of course"—on radio as a potential advertising medium for beekeepers and others who advocate the use of honey as an aid of combatting curvature of the spine.

Up to then you fancied yourself a press agent. Now you're in the advertising racket. It isn't bad. Except that while you're at it you get phone calls. They want to know where a friend of the sponsor can pick up some black figs. Or do you know Bud Barry? Sure. Well, this chum of mine has a dog that can mix drinks, martinis, manhattans, anything and do you think you could persuade Bud to put him on one of your programs?

Day before yesterday I got a call from a man who wanted to know if the agent for Indian motorcycles in Johnstown, Pa., had ever been on any A.B.C. program.

Double rye-and-water boys, in your own wonderful words, that's the beauty part of it.

Pro-College All Stars Game Will Be Aired Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Another of the three pre-season samples of the new football year will come on for network description Wednesday night. This time the scene is New York and the event the eastern college all-stars against the New York Pro Giants.

With the aid of Harry Wismer, ABC will do the broadcasting from 8:30 on, with the regular schedule so eliminated that nothing else will be in the way until the game is over. The college team is to include the Army heroes of last season, Davis and Blanchard. The broadcast is to be carried in cooperation with the army recruiting service.

In anticipation of one of the many program changes due on MBS for fall the adventures of Johnny Modero in drama form are to end with the 7:30 broadcast. Next week in this time it is to appear Quiet Please, which has been on the Sunday list.

Tex and Jinx, continuing their interviewing ways in the Duffy Tavern summer replacement on NBC at 8 have picked Jack Kramer, tennis champion, and Nancy Walker, fast talking comedy talker particularly from the standpoint of the verbal comeback, as their guests. But the program isn't all interviewing, for there is the orchestra music of Johnnie Guarnieri's band.

Second Mrs. Burton, CBS serial which has weekly guests under the category of "mid-week counselor," announced Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas as occupying that spot at 1 p. m.

A Press Agent and His Ulcers

The double rye-and-water set, a knowing bunch of boys, are critical of radio. Toward radio press agents they are openly scornful. In their book, radio press agents are strictly for consumption off the premises. They like to point out that the theater, the movies, politics, Broadway and even parts of Florida wholly under water all have produced characters worthy of being called press agents. "Looks like all you birds are buckin' for an Oscar for being unmentionable," one of them summed it up recently.

He was wrong there. Some of radio's better press agents are at least as well known as the average vender of artificially flavored fruit syrups in Valpariso, Ind. Their names are seen where it counts, too. On freight cars, on fences and sidewalks, on the bodies of dusty trucks, on the lions in front of the New York Public Library—places more enduring than mere newspaper columns.

One I know of managed, after months of trying, to scribble his name on the dashboard of an Atlantic City rolling chair! The network he's been with for six years gave him his own desk. Now, of course, he's well on his way to Calvert.

Something not generally known among the double rye-and-water boys is that radio press agents, sensitive to the shortcomings of a young, $700 million industry, often consciously seek the background. For example, take the opening night of some big Broadway musical. How many times have I, faultlessly dressed, sneaked down the aisle just before the lights dimmed and pausing at the third row, shouted back for an usher to find my three seats, one for myself, one for my gloves and one for my "Reader's Digest?"

In a way, self-effacement comes natural to a radio press agent. The network which employs him has maybe two hundred sponsors and each one of them, in a sense, is his boss. He musn't offend any of them in thought, word or deed. If he does the sponsor will turn on him with those expectant cocker spaniel eyes. Most press agents have no more than one boss. Besides, when they have to entertain out-of-town newspaper guys they can get as disorderly as the annual clambake of the Lithuanian open hearth furnace social club of Saltpill, Pa.

Let the double rye boys ponder this. It often happens that a smiling man with a charcoal-broiled heart comes into your office and asks, "Who does the publicity on the 'Fanny Faces Frigidity' program?" Would any of the double rye boys leap to his feet and cry out "I, Dick Merriwell, do." Not if he had one shred of self-respect. He would clap his hands to his stomach and moan. I, on the other hand, just clap my hands. That's so I won't hear the man with the charcoal-broiled heart ask exactly what I'm doing to lift the program's Hooper. On a program like that the Hooper is as hard to lift as J. Edgar Hoover's watch and, about such a disastrous half hour, the only humane thing is to keep absolutely quiet. It needs publicity about as much as the Dionne family needs fertility symbols around the house.

But the program has a sponsor. So you have to tell the man something. A sponsor is a gentleman who pays so much for a radio program that when it's on the air the only thing that will make him laugh is news of a stock market crash. "I'm entertaining the custodian of Mark Twain's cave in Hannibal, Missouri," you say spiritedly. "He edits a magazine on the side. A dental monthly called 'The Oral Cavity.'" The man with the charcoal-broiled heart sends in a report to your boss that you are flippant.

Much of a radio agent's pain, however, is lightened by the conditions under which he works. They are practical ideal. In the A.B.C. publicity office, for example, there's a typewriter for each member of the staff. It isn't his own, of course, and any one in the office is free to use it. As in all offices there's always one machine busted, which means that the last man to arrive in the morning can't start work until somebody goes to the washroom. Eventually some one does and then the last man in grabs his typewriter. When the man who has gone comes back his machine is in use, so he waits around until somebody else has to go.

During these periods of waiting, a number of A.B.C. press agents write plays and novels. This stuff is known as the soft underbelly of literature.

Also, as often as not during these periods of waiting, the boss comes out with what is called a "small" assignment.

"You're not busy, are you?" he remarks.

"Not physically but I'm thinking," you say defensively.

"It doesn't show," he says and explains that some executive of the network is going to Boston the following day to address the Diligent Drones Society and needs a couple of thousand words—"just rough, of course"—on radio as a potential advertising medium for beekeepers and others who advocate the use of honey as an aid of combatting curvature of the spine.

Up to then you fancied yourself a press agent. Now you're in the advertising racket. It isn't bad. Except that while you're at it you get phone calls. They want to know where a friend of the sponsor can pick up some black figs. Or do you know Bud Barry? Sure. Well, this chum of mine has a dog that can mix drinks, martinis, manhattans, anything and do you think you could persuade Bud to put him on one of your programs?

Selected Stocks Enter New Month With Recovery Leanings, But Slip

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—Selected stocks today entered the new month with recovery leanings but top gains failed to hold in most cases and a number of leaders eventually slipped into the minus division.

Advances of fractions to a point or more predominated. Transfers of 650,000 shares compared with 580,000 Friday and were the largest since Monday week.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .4 of a point at 65.6 on top of Friday's comeback of .5. It was the broadest market since the reaction of August 25. Of 906 issues registering, 475 rose and 210 fell.

Norfolk and Western added 3½ points at 252, American Telephone 1¾ at 159⅝. Among gainers of a point or better were Youngstown sheet at 69⅜, American Smelting 63¼, American Woolen 42¼, Celotex 28⅞, International Paper 48 and American Machine and Foundry 28⅜ (a new year's top).

Modest improvement was retained by United States Steel, Westinghouse, Pennsylvania Railroad, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio and Standard Oil (NJ).

On the offside were Bethlehem, General Motors, General Electric and Cerro De Pasco. Celanese touched a 1947 high, in the wake of a raised quarterly, but finished off ⅛ at 25¾.

In the curb Aluminum Goods Manufacturing hardened on a boosted extra. In the plus ranks were Colts Manufacturing, Lakey Foundry, Elliott Company, McWilliams Dredging and Consolidated Textile. Turnover here was 140,000 shares versus 120,000 in the previous session.

Issues of the New Haven, Missouri Pacific, and a few other railway systems took the play in a narrowly steady bond market today.

Only moderate support was enough to lift favored loans fractions to an outside of around two points. Most changes, though, were measured in fractions.

United States Governments held steady in the over-the-counter market, the Victory Loan 2½s of December 1967-72 remaining at 102 30-32 bid.

Sales totaled $3,231,000, compared with $2,550,000 Friday.

Teachers To Hold Annual Pre-School Meeting This Week

By MYRTLE K. PARK

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 2—The annual pre-school meeting for teachers of Grant County will be held Thursday and Friday, September 4 and 5 at Petersburg Grade School auditorium, Superintendent of Schools, A. Neil Frye announces. The two-day conference will center its attention to the study of the use of the new state adopted textbooks.

New textbooks have been adopted by the State Board of Education for reading, writing, health, arithmetic, and geography. The companies that furnish these textbooks hire outstanding teachers who take special courses in preparation for service work. These specialists then travel over a certain territory to assist school systems in getting the materials used most effectively. Six such specialists will work with Grant County Schools personnel on these two days.

Miss Elsa Reints who represents Ginn and Company will open the two day session on Friday morning with a discussion of arithmetic. The Zaner-Bloser Company is sending Miss Marguerite Llewellyn to demonstrate handwriting in the afternoon. On Friday morning at 9:30, Mrs. Marion Taylor, repesenting the MacMillan Company, will present primary reading techniques to the primary teachers while Miss Mary Graves of Rand McNally acts as a consultant with teachers on the subject of geography. The Scott Foresman Company reading specialist, Miss Margaret Irwin, will have charge of reading for the Friday afternoon conference while Miss Mildred Troup of the American Book Company aids teachers in planning work for primary geography.

Rev. J. W. Vance will have charge of the devotions Thursday morning. C. D. Sions, president of the Grant County Education Association, will make a report of the conference for leaders which he attended at Camp Caesar near Webster Springs and an extension division representative will appear on the program in the interest of 4-H Club work. One hour has been set aside for principals to meet with their faculties on Thursday afternoon.

Selected Stocks Enter New Month With Recovery Leanings, But Slip

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—Selected stocks today entered the new month with recovery leanings but top gains failed to hold in most cases and a number of leaders eventually slipped into the minus division.

Advances of fractions to a point or more predominated. Transfers of 650,000 shares compared with 580,000 Friday and were the largest since Monday week.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .4 of a point at 65.6 on top of Friday's comeback of .5. It was the broadest market since the reaction of August 25. Of 906 issues registering, 475 rose and 210 fell.

Norfolk and Western added 3½ points at 252, American Telephone 1⅜ at 159⅝. Among gainers of a point or better were Youngstown sheet at 69⅝, American Smelting 63¼, American Woolen 42¼, Celotex 28⅞, International Paper 48 and American Machine and Foundry 28⅜ (a new year's top).

Modest improvement was retained by United States Steel, Westinghouse, Pennsylvania Railroad, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio and Standard Oil (NJ).

On the offside were Bethlehem, General Motors, General Electric and Cerro De Pasco. Celanese touched a 1947 high, in the wake of a raised quarterly, but finished off ⅛ at 25¾.

In the curb Aluminum Goods Manufacturing hardened on a boosted extra. In the plus ranks were Colts Manufacturing, Lakey Foundry, Elliott Company, McWilliams Dredging and Consolidated Textile. Turnover here was 140,000 shares versus 120,000 in the previous session.

Issues of the New Haven, Missouri Pacific, and a few other railway systems took the play in a narrowly steady bond market today.

Only moderate support was enough to lift favored loans fractions to an outside of around two points. Most changes, though, were measured in fractions.

United States Governments held steady in the over-the-counter market, the Victory Loan 2½s of December 1967-'72 remaining at 102 30-32 bid.

Sales totaled $3,231,000, compared with $2,550,000 Friday.

Teachers To Hold Annual Pre-School Meeting This Week

By MYRTLE K. PARK

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 2—The annu pre-school meeting for teachers of Grant County will be held Thursday and Friday, September 4 and 5 at Petersburg Grade School auditorium, Superintendent of Schools, A. Neil Frye announces. The two-day conference will center its attention to the study of the use of the new state adopted textbooks.

New textbooks have been adopted by the State Board of Education for reading, writing, health, arithmetic, and geography. The companies that furnish these textbooks hire outstanding teachers who take special courses in preparation for service work. These specialists then travel over a certain territory to assist school systems in getting the materials used most effectively. Six such specialists will work with Grant County Schools personnel on these two days.

Miss Elsa Reints who represents Ginn and Company will open the two day session on Friday morning with a discussion of arithmetic. The Zaner-Bloser Company is sending Miss Marguerite Llewellyn to demonstrate handwriting in the afternoon. On Friday morning at 9:30, Mrs. Marion Taylor, repesenting the MacMillan Company, will present primary reading techniques to the primary teachers while Miss Mary Graves of Rand McNally acts as a consultant with teachers on the subject of geography. The Scott Foresman Company reading specialist, Miss Margaret Irwin, will have charge of reading for the Friday afternoon conference while Miss Mildred Troup of the American Book Company aids teachers in planning work for primary geography.

Rev. J. W. Vance will have charge of the devotions Thursday morning. C. D. Sions, president of the Grant County Education Association, will make a report of the conference for leaders which he attended at Camp Caesar near Webster Springs and an extension division representative will appear on the program in the interest of 4-H Club work. One hour has been set aside for principals to meet with their faculties on Thursday afternoon.

Jean Dixon Draws No. 8 In Miss America Contest

Will Appear Early In Beauty Pageant

Miss Carolyn Jean Dixon, 696 Fayette Street, made her first public appearance in Atlantic City, N. J. yesterday as "Miss Maryland", when she participated in the "Miss America" pageant board walk parade along with 53 other hopefuls from 38 other states, 14 cities and Canada.

Miss Dixon, in the drawing for contestant numbers, drew number "eight", and will appear in that sequence throughout the competition. Tonight she will appear as "No. 8" in the bathing suit revue. She will wear a pageant regulation white two piece bathing suit as presented by the pageant committee to each contestant.

Tomorrow night, Miss Dixon will participate in the talent contest singing the popular old song which helped win local and state competition, "It Had To Be You." She will wear the white evening gown which she wore in both local shows.

On Friday night Miss Dixon will compete in the evening gown judging, wearing a black evening gown presented to her by a local merchant.

Has Busy Day

Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moore and Galen Metzger, representing the Jaycees, sponsors of the local and state contest, Miss Dixon arrived in Atlantic City Monday, after spending Sunday night at the Ben Franklin Hotel, in Philadelphia. She registered at the pageant headquarters at Traymore Hotel at 6 p. m. and was immediately assigned a chaperone, Mrs. William Schoppy, wife of a prominent Atlantic City jeweler. The pageant committee assigns an Atlantic City matron to each contestant during the stay there.

Miss Dixon and Mrs. Moore are staying at the Mayflower Hotel. In front of the hotel, a huge banner announces the fact that "Miss Maryland", "Miss Rhode Island" and "Miss Indiana" are official guests and are sponsored by the hotel there.

Jack Moore, who is managing Miss Dixon's affairs for the Jaycees said last night that Jean had a busy day with photographers, interviewers and other pageant business. After the parade, she was interviewed by Bernie Rubin, formerly an announcer over WTBO here. Bernie was describing the parade over a microphone for WMID when he saw her.

Expressing his pleasant and exuberant surprise that Maryland was represented by a Cumberland girl, he had Jean on the air for an interview and gave Cumberland a nation-wide boost.

On Radio Show

Jean, along with 21 other girls from Eastern Seaboard States was a guest on the Professor Quiz radio program. The program was recorded for "live" rebroadcast next Saturday night. It was not planned to announce a winner until the rebroadcast.

Miss Maryland told an Associated Press reporter that she is pleased with her ocean front hotel room which gives her a view of the sea and the boardwalk. Although one of her hobbies is swimming, she will probably not have an opportunity to try the surf, until after Saturday night's finals, due to the heavy schedule arranged for all contestants.

108,000 See Parade

Moore said police estimated that a crowd of 108,000 persons viewed the two-hour long parade yesterday, with each contestant in an individual push-chair float. There were scores of bands and drum corps, and Miss America of 1946 was an official guest as was "Miss Philippine Islands" entered by the Philippine Air Lines as a guest but not a contestant.

J. Ben Shepherd, of Texas, president of the United States Junior Association of Commerce, is an official guest and will be at the pageant throughout the week.

Moore said the entry from Tennessee is a set of twins, and they are exactly alike. One is entered from one Tennessee city and one from another, to give each an equal opportunity. He punned, "if they win there will be two Miss America's."

Mrs. Hitchcock Is Ill Of Pneumonia

Mrs. Lydia H. Hitchcock, the oldest resident of Allegany County, who observed her 104th birthday August 3 in Memorial Hospital, was reported seriously ill last night of bronchial pneumonia.

Although she has been a patient in the hospital since November 7, 1945, Mrs. Hitchcock's condition has been remarkably good, with the exception of a seven-week seige of pneumonia early in 1946.

Her physician said Mrs. Hitchcock became ill three days ago.

Uniontown Firm Asks Lease For Oil, Gas Drilling

Operation Proposed On Garrett Tract

FROSTBURG, Sept. 2 — The Mayor and Council took under consideration tonight the proposal of a Uniontown, Pa., concern to lease 1,173 acres of city-owned land known as the Piney Run watershed in Garrett County, a few miles northwest of the city, to conduct drilling operations for petroleum and natural gas.

On motion of Commissioner Kenneth Crowe, the council voted to grant the lease provided satisfactory terms can be worked out by City Attorney William Jenkins and counsel for the firm, identified as Snee and Eberly, independent oil and gas drillers.

Robert E. Eberly, a representative of the Uniontown company, explained that the watershed is part of the Deer Park anticline, an arch of stratified rock in which the layers dip in opposite directions from the crest.

He said geological studies indicate that petroleum and natural gas are usually found at or near anticlines because they tend to move to the most elevated portions of permeable beds of rock.

Eberly presented a form lease to the city attorney for further study. The latter suggested that he draw up a lease for consideration of the firm, after which the Mayor and Council will take final action on the proposal.

Jenkins pointed out that the watershed was bought by the city as part of its water supply, adding that he plans to confer with state authorities as to wheher drilling operations would interfere with the water supply.

Piney Run Dam, which is Frostburg's largest source of water, was built on the watershed in 1931-32. Eberly said the proposed drilling operations would not interfere with the water supply, and city officials suggested that a clause be inserted in the lease prohibiting drilling within a specified distance of the dam.

Eberly said his firm has conducted several drilling operations in Fayette County, Pa.

Far East Expert Will Speak Here

John Korba, Far Eastern representative for the Kelly Springfield Tire Company and expert in Oriental languages, will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Cumberland Junior Chamber of Commerce tonight at 6:30 p. m. at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Korba, who was one of the 20 persons in the United States who could speak the Burmese dialect at the outbreak of the war, was formerly associated with the Export Department of the Kelly in the Orient. During World War II, he served with the OSS and CIC in the China-Burma-India theater.

He is a graduate of Yale University and the Intelligence Department of the Army sent him to the College of Foreign Service at Georgetown University. He plans to return to the Far East as soon as possible.

Tonight Korba will speak on the Far Eastern situation and will also present background information on the current controversy between the Dutch and the Indonesians. He will describe the living conditions and racial manners of the Burmese, Chinese and Japanese.

After the lecture, a 30 minute discussion will be held by members of the organization and Mr. Korba. Included in the program will be Tommy Powers, local athlete, who played with the United States All-Stars baseball team against the Canadian team in the recent international Amateur All-Star games in Baltimore.

Medals Presented To 14 Ex-Marines

Thirteen ex-Marines were awarded World War II Victory Medals and an ex-gunnery sergeant was presented both the Victory Medal and the American Defense medals in ceremonies at the local Marine Reserve Armory last night by Maj. Remsen J. Cole, commander of the local Marine Reserve company.

Maj. Cole announced at the meeting that three men, Robert D. Powers, 716 Sylvan Avenue, Eugene R. Bolyard, 535 Yale Street, and Stanley Barnhart, 707 Virginia Avenue, made application for duty with Company D, Fifth Infantry Battalion. Pvt. John A. Sensabaugh, 110 North Cedar Street, was accepted into the unit.

Both American Defense and the Victory Medal were awarded to a retired gunnery sergeant, Raymond F. Neel. Those receiving the Victory Medal were Curtis Kime, 128 Monroe Street, acting desk sergeant at City Police headquarters, John R. Manley, first lieutenant with the local reserve unit. Charles E. Gilford, 456 Goethe Street.

Others were Calvin Allen Ruhl, 525 Furnace Street, Otis L. Bean, 16 Laing Avenue, Wendell R. Boggs, Route 2, Williams Road, James T. Barnhart, 307 Arch Street, Everett Leo Beeman, Braddock Road, Harry A. Woods, Sr., LaVale, Robert W. Plummer, 135 New Hampshire Avenue, Charles F. Davis, 708 Brookfield Avenue, George E. Gormer, 201 Mary Street, and Eugene F. Clark, 401 Race Street.

MAKING HISTORY—The picture above, taken at the local airport, shows the first transfer by plane from Cumberland to another city of a hospital patient, in this case, Mrs. Flo M. Watson, Warren, Ohio, who was injured in an accident on Bedford Road August 16 in which Espy W. Growden, 70, Route 3, Bedford Road, was fatally hurt. In the picture (left to right) are William Kight, whose ambulance was used to transfer Mrs. Watson from Allegany Hospital to the plane; Alec James Watson, Mrs. Watson's husband; Byron Kight, of the Kight ambulance service; Ardell Wilkins, the pilot; Ed Musser (back to camera), co-pilot, and Rita Small Arnt, registered nurse. The transfer and flight were made on Monday.

China's Plight Is Described By David Zysman

Warns Local Groups Of Red Influences

"In China one can evaluate the staggering price a simple people have to pay for tolerating the spread of communism and national disunity," David Zysman, lecturer and writer who formerly managed Radio Station XCDN, "The Voice of Democracy" in Shanghi, until it was seized by the Japanese, said here yesterday.

Zysman addressed the Cumberland Rotary Club yesterday, spoke over WTBO last evening and addressed Western Maryland Lodge No. 1507 B'Nai B'Rith last night at B'er Chayim Temple.

He declared that although the United States defeated the Japanese and has rendered great assistance to the Chinese, Soviet armies have looted Manchuria, China's richest industrial province and dismantled whatever could be carted away. When the Japanese were defeated, Chinese communists turned their guns on fellow Chinese, Zysman declared, and the country is still war-ridden and destitute.

Communist Seek Control

Zysman who was in China from 1934 until 1945 and served as assistant headmaster of the Shanghai Jewish High School part of that time declared, "Communism is out to gain control of the largest country in the world by force."

The Civil War in China is not merely a Chinese problem," he continued. "It is an international problem which requires an international solution. Like the Communist menace in Greece, which does not only concern the Greek but all freedom-loving people, so the Communist invasion of China is and should be of great importance to the democratic world."

Zysman praised the "Truman Plan" and the "Marshall Plan", but declared that unless these plans are adopted by the United States and effectively executed, the cause of liberty in Europe and in Asia may be lost by default.

Describing conditions in China, Zysman said the average Chinese village has changed little in 2,000 years and the average Chinese peasant in his entire lifetime has never seen the equivalent of $10 American.

Peace Is Needed

The core of the Chinese problem, he declared is the individual deplorable destitution, and it is this fact and condition which makes an excellent breeding ground for the spread of Communism and Red influences, he explained.

Many Chinese strive toward Western democracy, but many do not wish to change. The Nationalist Party is not without fault, he said, and the Chinese must liberalize and streamline their government.

"China's admittedly slim hope is that both parties will realize that their continued conflict can lead to China's complete ruination and will lay down their arms", he said. "The Communists are difficult to appease. China's more substantial expectation is that the United States will render sufficient help to overcome obstacles facing China's unification and reconstruction. This assistance", he concluded, "will not only benefit China, but ultimately will be of importance to the United States as well."

Meeting On Traffic Slated This Morning

Representatives of 11 or 12 local organizations are expected to meet this morning with officials of the Cumberland Police Department to begin a study of the local traffic situation, Acting Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn said yesterday.

Called for 10 a. m. in the Public Safety Building, the meeting will initiate plans to correct traffic conditions in the business section.

In his letter of invitation, Flynn said he is in hope of putting on a traffic squad to faciliate the handling of traffic in the city, and he told the organizations that their ideas will be appreciated.

Service Will Be Held Tonight For R. Holt Hitchins

Prominent Frostburg Architect Succumbs

A funeral service will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the residence for Robert Holt Hitchins, 55, prominent Frostburg architect and a veteran of World War I, who was found dead in bed yesterday morning at his home, Depot Terrace, as the result of a heart attack suffered during the night.

Rev. Watson E. Holley, pastor of First Methodist Church, Frostburg, will officiate. The body will be taken to Arlington National Cemetery tomorrow morning for interment with military honors.

Members of Frostburg Lodge No. 470, B.P.O. Elks, of which Mr. Hitchins was a member, conducted an Elks service at the residence last night.

Mr. Hitchins, who designed Cumberland's present Post Office, Fort Hill High School, Beall High School in Frostburg, Cresaptown School and many other buildings in this area, had been in failing health in recent years, but remained active and had planned to make a trip yesterday.

Born In Frostburg

He designed numerous residences in the Frostburg section, including the home of Dr. Hilda J. Walters, erected during the war.

A native of Frostburg, Mr. Hitchins was a son of Mrs. Margaret Hitchins and the late Joseph H. Hitchins. He attended Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa., Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, from which he was graduated after completing a course in architecture and architectural designing.

While at Gettysburg College, Mr. Hitchins became acquainted with Frederick A. Muhlenburg, then a student at the college and now one of the country's leading church architects, whom he consulted frequently in connection with designs for churches in this area.

Mr. Hitchins enlisted in the Army at Oklahoma City, Okla., June 10, 1917, and after training at various camps he was sent overseas with a group of engineers. He served as a lieutenant with Company E and F, First Gas Regiment, at St. Mihiel and in the battle of Meuse-Argonne. He was gassed October 4, 1918, and after returning to this country he received his honorable discharge December 4, 1918.

One of the first men of this section to receive the Purple Heart medal during World War I, Mr. Hitchins was employed for a number of years as a sales engineer for the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company. After his war service, however, he returned to Frostburg and practiced his profession in this area until his death.

Received Recognition

During the past year Mr. Hitchins had been working on plans for a new high school building at Greensburg, Pa., and had partially completed plans for a new American Legion home in Frostburg. He joined Farrady Post No. 24 in the early days of its history and designed several attractive floats for the Frostburg post, one of which was reproduced in the American Legion magazine.

Alvin R. Ingram Named Commander Of Purple Heart Chapter Here

Alvin R. Ingram, 306 Fifth Street, veteran of World War II, was elected commander of Mountain Chapter No. 166, Military Order of Purple Heart at their annual election Monday night. He succeeds John W. Pownall.

Ingram, who is employed on GI-job training at the White-Haines Optical Company here, was wounded in action in the Battle of the Bulge.

Elected to serve with him are, John R. Mills, 406 Chestnut Street, senior vice commander; Herbert R. McFarland, LaVale, junior vice commander; John W. Pownall, 833 Shriver Avenue, finance officer; Earl Smith, 110 Mullan Street, sergeant-at-arms; Stephen Bassel, 424 Walnut Street, re-elected historian; James H. Reichart, Holland Street, department executive committeeman; Charles W. Harper, 704 Patterson Avenue, alternate; Abe Loundy, 924 Bedford Street, trustee; George M. Leib, 722 Fayette Street, adjutant.

All the officers except Leib, Harper and Pownall are veterans of the recent war, while these three served in World War I.

Harry Iles, Jr., was named chairman of the installation committee to arrange for an installation ceremony and dinner at the Shrine Country Club later this month.

Leib said last night the Chapter has been notified that ten M103 rifles for use of a ceremonial firing squad will be shipped from an arsenal in New Jersey in the next ten days.

It was also announced that a delegation from the local Chapter will go to Baltimore tonight to participate in the opening of the new home of Baltimore Chapter N. 122.

Driver Of Bakery Truck Fined After Crash; Three Hurt

Accident Occurs North Of Hancock

The driver of an Ort Brothers Bakery truck paid fines of $27.50 yesterday afternoon on two charges filed against him following an accident near Warfordsburg, Pa., in which three Florida residents were injured, two of them seriously, according to Pennsylvania State Police at McConnellsburg.

Officers listed the truck driver as Clarence Edward Taylor, Cook's Mill, near Hyndman, Pa., and said he entered pleas of guilty before Justice of the Peace Thomas Gordon, Needmore, Pa., to charges of operating without a valid operator's license and attempting to pass in the face of oncoming traffic.

Taylor, heading toward Warfordsburg, pulled from behind a tractor-trailer truck to pass and crashed headon with the oncoming sedan driven by Vaughn A. Freeman, Orlando, Fla., on a straight stretch of road about three miles north of Hancock on Route 522, police said.

Taylor escaped with minor cuts, officers reported, but Freeman and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Freeman, Orlando, were taken to Washington County Hospital, Hagerstown, for treatment.

John Freeman was admitted for treatment of possible fractures of the skull and spine and his wife for a fractured leg. Their conditions were said to be serious. Vaughn Freeman was less seriously hurt, suffering cuts and bruises.

The accident happened about 10:45 a. m., according to investigators from the McConnellsburg State Police Barracks.

Conference Is Planned Soon On Viaduct Project

City Officials To Go To Baltimore

Arrangements will be made by Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineering consultants to the city, for local officials to attend a conference in Baltimore next week regarding plans for the crosstown viaduct, Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday.

Mayor Post said he received a letter from Gustav J. Requardt, senior partner of the engineering firm, informing him that the State Roads Commission will welcome an application by Cumberland for state funds to design and construct the structure.

The mayor commented that the viaduct is virtually the city's "No. one project" because of present traffic congestion in the downtown section.

Will Submit Report

Stating that the City of Baltimore is planning to apply for state funds shortly for a similar project, Requardt said Cumberland should not delay its negotiations for such funds.

He asked for a list of tentative dates suitable for the conference, and said the firm would submit its latest report on data, designs and estimated cost of the viaduct to Robert M. Reindollar, chairman of the State Roads Commission, asking for a conference with him on one of those dates.

The mayor suggested September 9, 10 or 11 as dates for the conference, in his reply to Requardt's letter. He said he would probably be accompanied by City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett, City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer and James Alfred Avirett, chairman of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission.

Requardt said that steps to be taken in regard to the viaduct project are as follows:

1. Appropriation of engineering funds, the selection of engineering design personnel and the preparation of complete detailed contract drawings and specifications for the work.

2. Appropriation of funds, letting of contracts and actual construction.

Requardt Will Attend

Requardt said his firm will attend the conference with the State Roads Commission and will give all possible help toward securing the viaduct for Cumberland.

In an overall report submitted to the planning and zoning commission early last month, the firm listed the project as among the most important for the city, along with flood control, water supply and sewerage improvements.

Cost of the crosstown viaduct has been estimated at $1,900,000, plus half a million for property ocsts. The Public Roads Administration, the State Roads Commission, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Western Maryland Railway are expected to share the cost with the city.

Girl, 14, Injured When Hit By Car At Bowling Green

A 14-year-old Route 6 girl was treated in Allegany Hospital last night for abrasions of the back suffered when she was struck by an automobile at the intersection of Route 220, Third Street and Roberts Place in Bowling Green about 8:50 p. m.

The girl, Sarah F. Valentine, was walking with two companions, Margaret Walbert and Barbara King, both of Bowling Green, when the accident occurred, according to State Trooper Thomas G. Barton, who investigated.

He said the driver of the car involved was Chester B. Campbell, 29, Cresaptown, and added that no charges were filed against him.

The trio of girls was walking on the roadway, with traffic toward Cumberland and Campbell, headed in the same direction, told police, they said, that he was blinded by lights of an oncoming vehicle.

When Campbell saw the girls, he swerved to avoid them but the Valentine girl, walking nearest the car, was struck by a hinge of the right rear door, according to Trooper Barton.

The girl is to return to the hospital this morning for X-rays.

Applications Expected For City Water Job

Several possible applicants for the post of superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, made vacant by the death last month of Charles J. Bruce, may come here in the near future, Water Commissioner William J. Edwards reported yesterday.

Edwards said he contacted several men who expressed interest in the post at the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Waterworks Association, which he attended last week in State College, Pa.

1,401 County Veterans Cash Terminal Pay Bonds

COLLEGE HEAD—Rev. Francis Xavier Talbot, S. J., is the new president of Loyola College of Baltimore. Father Talbot is a former editor of the National Catholic weekly "America". He became the 20th president of the college, which is operated by the Jesuit Order.

Banks Release Total Of $298,407.45

Thirteen financial institutions in Allegany County, cashed a total of 1,401 terminal leave pay bonds for veterans yesterday, releasing $298,407.45 in cash.

The Second National Bank of Cumberland handled the largest number of bond-cashing customers, redeeming 210 for $42,828. Fewest bonds were cashed by the First National Bank of Barton, where three were converted to cash of a little more than $500. An official there said, "we know most of these fellows and did everything we could to get them to hold their bonds. A few hundred dollars a few years from now, might be worth more than it is today. Of course we dont refuse to cas hthem, we just try to discourage them."

In Cumberland, and other towns in the county, bank facilities were exhausted to handle the bond-cashers. All banks required identification in one form or another, but only one bank was refusing to accept discharge certificates as proper identification.

Veterans Stand In Lines

Before banks opened their doors for business, lines had formed and after the 2 p. m. closing hour, there were still up to 20 men in each bank, who had to be served after the doors closed. There was no confusion, only waiting, on the veterans who were accustomed to standing in line for long periods while in the service.

Bankers generally said "it is unfortunate so many cashed their bonds. They draw more interest than the boys can get on their money elsewhere, and many of them will need it later."

One county banker declared, "many of our bond-cashers were local 52-20 Club boys," and in Cumberland, it was noted that some of the first in one line, were fellows who are not regularly employed.

Bank officials said few gave reasons for cashing their bonds, although some were under the impression they had to cash them now if they expected to redeem them. One bank clerk said he had a couple of veterans decide to keep their bonds, when they learned cashing now is not mandatory.

Some Offer Good Reasons

On the other hand, many cashed their bonds to reduce business indebtedness, pay off notes, buy furniture, clear up standing bills, pay taxes, apply the money to mortgages, or other sound reasons. Many of the bond-cashers were veterans enrolled for GI-training at schools and colleges. Some just cashed them because they wanted "to feel a bundle of folding money," one banker said.

According to figures obtained from the individual banks, the largest single bond cashed totaled, with interest, $682.46. Several others near this amount were reported. The average bond however was between $200 and $300. Bonds were issued in multiples of $25 to compensate enlisted men for unused furlough time and ration allowances.

The figures by banks follow:

	Number	Amount
Cumberland
Second National	210	$42,828.00
Cumberland Savings	147	37,664.60
Liberty Trust	167	37,527.70
Peoples Bank	149	33,333.10
Commercial Savings	145	30,299.68
First National	136	25,087.13
First Federal Loan	61	10,967.24
Frostburg
Frostburg National	116	24,700.00
Fidelity Savings	75	14,000.00
Lonaconing
Liberty Trust	82	18,000.00
Westernport
Citizens National	70	15,000.00
Mt. Savage
First National	40	8,500.00
Barton
First National	3	500.00
County Totals	1,401	$298,407.45

Report First Cashers

Five of the banks reported the name of the first veterans to cash his bond, and these five men became simultaneously the first veterans in Cumberland to receive their terminal leave payments.

Cumberland Savings Bank reported Wesley J. Shanholtz, 123 Roberts Street, presented his bond for $175 and received $182.64 with the interest added. Shanholtz, 22, was in the Army 31 months, serving 25 months overseas with the 169th Infantry in the South Pacific.

Liberty Trust Company had Raymond P. Chaney, Wiley Ford, employed as a trackman by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, as first in line. Chaney cashed a bond for $205, receiving $209.99. He served four and one half years, including 31 months overseas in the Pacific.

First at the Commercial Savings Bank was Joseph M. Stafford, RFD

Parsons Youth Is Fatally Injured In Truck Mishap

Accident Occurs Near Franklin

A Parsons youth was killed yesterday afternoon when the truck in which he and two men were riding crashed into a house in Brandywine, W. Va. Another Parsons boy was critically injured at Bretz, W. Va., when he was struck by a car on West Virginia Route 219 yesterday.

Charles Guy Floyd, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Floyd, Parsons, was instantly killed when the truck driven by Boone Slaven, also of Parsons, went out of control and ran into a house in the town which is 15 miles from Franklin.

According to Joseph Gillis, the owner of the machine, Slaven and James Collins, Parsons, and the victim were all riding in the cab of the truck which was not carrying a load. Collins and Slaven were uninjured, he said.

Young Floyd was a member of Boy Scout Troop 97, Parsons, the First Methodist Church, the Tucker County Boy's Sports Club and would have been a student in the sixth grade at Parsons Grade School this year.

He is survived by his parents, one brother, Deets, at home; and five sisters, Miss Alberta Floyd, Mrs. Joseph Sloan and Mrs. Florence Bolyard, all of Grafton; and Arlene and Dorothy Rose, at home.

James Leo Barkley, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Whetsel Barkley, Bretz, W. Va., was taken to Tucker County Hospital yesterday at 2 p. m. after he was struck by a car operated by Frederick Burtcher, Hendricks.

Hospital attaches said the boy's condition was critical and stated he had suffered a double fracture of the skull.

Butcher, a student at Parsons High School, told West Virginia State Trooper C. E. Burke, and Tucker County Sheriff D. E. Crosten, who investigated, that the Barkley boy ran in front of his machine as he was driving on Route 219 near Parsons. Butcher took the child to the hospital.

SIGNS TO BE PLACED ON UTILITY POLES

Following a conference yesterday with representatives of the Potomac Edison Company and the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Mayor Thomas S. Post reported an agreement was reached to permit use of utility poles in the downtown section when street signs are installed by the city.

Mayor Post explained that on many intersections, telephone and electric light poles occupy the four corners, leaving no room for the erection of sign standards. He added that City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer is making a check to determine how many utility poles will be used.

Steel brackets are planned for attaching the two-way metal street signs to the poles. Regular sign standards will be used at intersections where there is room for them, the mayor added.

The city has requested information from various sign manufacturers regarding the probable length of time before delivery. One company previously reported it could not make delivery inside of six to eight months.

Street Commissioner Myers G. Light and Rizer attended the conference. It is planned to order 200 street signs.

Hi-Y, Tri-Hi-Y Organizations Plan Officer's Conference This Weekend

Thirty members of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y organizations in county schools are expected to attend an officer's conference to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Pleasant Valley recreation area near Bittinger, Garrett County, according to Winfield H. Adams, program and boys' secretary of Central YMCA.

Nine clubs, including two at Allegany High, three at Fort Hill, two in Westernport and one each in Frostburg and Piedmont, W. Va., high schools, will be represented.

The session will begin Friday afternoon, and Rev. James A. Richards, pastor of First Methodist Church, will give a talk on "Youth on the March" at the evening program.

On Saturday morning the group will divide into classes for presidents, vice presidents, secretaries, treasurers and chaplains for discussions of the general topic "My Job as an Officer."

Leaders of the respective groups will be Roy W. Eves, manager of the bolt and forge shops of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and treasurer of Central YMCA; Miss E. Jane Gilchrist, secretary of the YMCA board of directors; Lloyd Rawlings, past president of the "Y"; Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, rector of St. James Episcopal Church, Westernport and Adam.

In the afternoon the group will discuss the general topic, "Foundations of a Good Club." On Saturday evening David McIntyre, past president of Bruce Hi-Y Club, Westernport, and Barbara Bright, president of the Allegany Tri-Hi-Y Club, will speak on the meaning of the respective organizations.

Former Resident Featured In Film

Frank Neill, formerly of this city, a son of Mrs. J. Fred Neill, of Potomac State School, Keyser, W. Va., has a feature role in the new Monogram film, "Gentleman Joe Palooka," which was shown at the Maryland Theatre this week.

Neill, who served as a war correspondent for INS during the early stages of Word War II and later as a sergeant in the Marine Corps, portrays a sports writer, along with Tom Harmon, former All-American halfback from Michigan.

While attending West Virginia University, Neill was selected in 1937 as "the nation's outstanding college undergraduate" by College Analysts, Inc. He was elected president of his senior class, edited the year book and comic monthly, was vice-president of the Inter-fraternity Council, headed the University dance committee and was a member of numerous honorary groups.

He is a graduate of Allegany High School here, and was active in local scholastic affairs. As a youngster, he was a star player on several basketball teams, and played two seasons with the Presbyterian Sunday School team in the YMCA-Sunday School League.

Neill is with the International News Service in Los Angeles, Calif., and is now a West Coast Sports Editor. He and several other West Coast newspapermen took feature roles in the sports film, "just for the fun of it." Also in the film with Neill is Bill Becker, Associated Press sports writer on the West Coast.

Frank is a brother of Robert Neill, local insurance adjuster.

Jean Dixon Draws No. 8 In Miss America Contest

Will Appear Early In Beauty Pageant

Miss Carolyn Jean Dixon, 696 Fayette Street, made her first public appearance in Atlantic City, N. J. yesterday as "Miss Maryland", when she participated in the "Miss America" pageant board walk parade along with 53 other hopefuls from 38 other states, 14 cities and Canada.

Miss Dixon, in the drawing for contestant numbers, drew number "eight", and will appear in that sequence throughout the competition. Tonight she will appear as "No. 8" in the bathing suit revue. She will wear a pageant regulation white two piece bathing suit as presented by the pageant committee to each contestant.

Tomorrow night, Miss Dixon will participate in the talent contest singing the popular old song which helped win local and state competition, "It Had To Be You." She will wear the white evening gown which she wore in both local shows.

On Friday night Miss Dixon will compete in the evening gown judging, wearing a black evening gown presented to her by a local merchant.

Has Busy Day

Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moore and Galen Metzger, representing the Jaycees, sponsors of the local and state contest, Miss Dixon arrived in Atlantic City Monday, after spending Sunday night at the Ben Franklin Hotel, in Philadelphia. She registered at the pageant headquarters at Traymore Hotel at 6 p. m. and was immediately assigned a chaperone, Mrs. William Schoppy, wife of a prominent Atlantic City jeweler. The pageant committee assigns an Atlantic City matron to each contestant during the stay there.

Miss Dixon and Mrs. Moore are staying at the Mayflower Hotel. In front of the hotel, a huge banner announces the fact that "Miss Maryland", "Miss Rhode Island" and "Miss Indiana" are official guests and are sponsored by the hotel there.

Jack Moore, who is managing Miss Dixon's affairs for the Jaycees said last night that Jean had a busy day with photographers, interviewers and other pageant business. After the parade, she was interviewed by Bernie Rubin, formerly an announcer over WTBO here. Bernie was describing the parade over a microphone for WMID when he saw her.

Expressing his pleasant and exuberant surprise that Maryland was represented by a Cumberland girl, he had Jean on the air for an interview and gave Cumberland a nationwide boost.

On Radio Show

Jean, along with 21 other girls from Eastern Seaboard States was a guest on the Professor Quiz radio program. The program was recorded for "live" rebroadcast next Saturday night. It was not planned to announce a winner until the rebroadcast.

Miss Maryland told an Associated Press reporter that she is pleased with her ocean front hotel room which gives her a view of the sea and the boardwalk. Although one of her hobbies is swimming, she will probably not have an opportunity to try the surf, until after Saturday night's finals, due to the heavy schedule arranged for all contestants.

Interviewed on her likes and dislikes, the pretty brown-haired Cumberland girl was asked an opinion on the new calf-length dresses in current styles. Jean declared, "I can't see them. . . . I hate to go back to the old-fashioned styles."

106,000 See Parade

Moore said police estimated that a crowd of 106,000 persons viewed the two-hour long parade yesterday, with each contestant in an individual push-chair float. There were scores of bands and drum corps, and Miss America of 1946 was an official guest as was "Miss Philippine Islands" entered by the Philippine Air Lines as a guest but not a contestant.

J. Ben Shepherd, of Texas, president of the United States Junior Association of Commerce, is an official guest and will be at the pageant throughout the week.

Moore said the entry from Tennessee is a set of twins, and they are exactly alike. One is entered from one Tennessee city and one from another, to give each an equal opportunity. He punned, "if they win there will be two Miss America's."

Mrs. Hitchcock Is Ill Of Pneumonia

Mrs. Lydia H. Hitchcock, the oldest resident of Allegany County, who observed her 104th birthday August 3 in Memorial Hospital, was reported seriously ill last night of bronchial pneumonia.

Although she has been a patient in the hospital since November 7, 1945, Mrs. Hitchcock's condition has been remarkably good, with the exception of a seven-week seige of pneumonia early in 1946.

Her physician said Mrs. Hitchcock became ill three days ago.

Uniontown Firm Asks Lease For Oil, Gas Drilling

Operation Proposed On Garrett Tract

FROSTBURG, Sept. 2 — The Mayor and Council took under consideration tonight the proposal of a Uniontown, Pa., concern to lease 1,173 acres of city-owned land known as the Piney Run watershed in Garrett County, a few miles northwest of the city, to conduct drilling operations for petroleum and natural gas.

On motion of Commissioner Kenneth Crowe, the council voted to grant the lease provided satisfactory terms can be worked out by City Attorney William Jenkins and counsel for the firm, identified as Snee and Eberly, independent oil and gas drillers.

Robert E. Eberly, a representative of the Uniontown company, explained that the watershed is part of the Deer Park anticline, an arch of stratified rock in which the layers dip in opposite directions from the crest.

He said geological studies indicate that petroleum and natural gas are usually found at or near anticlines because they tend to move to the most elevated portions of permeable beds of rock.

Eberly presented a form lease to the city attorney for further study. The latter suggested that he draw up a lease for consideration of the firm, after which the Mayor and Council will take final action on the proposal.

Jenkins pointed out that the watershed was bought by the city as part of its water supply, adding that he plans to confer with state authorities as to wheher drilling operations would interfere with the water supply.

Piney Run Dam, which is Frostburg's largest source of water, was built on the watershed in 1931-32. Eberly said the proposed drilling operations would not interfere with the water supply, and city officials suggested that a clause be inserted in the lease prohibiting drilling within a specified distance of the dam.

Eberly said his firm has conducted several drilling operations in Payette County, Pa.

Far East Expert Will Speak Here

John Korba, Far Eastern representative for the Kelly Springfield Tire Company and expert in Oriental languages, will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Cumberland Junior Chamber of Commerce tonight at 6:30 p. m. at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Korba, who was one of the 20 persons in the United States who could speak the Burmese dialect at the outbreak of the war, was formerly associated with the Export Department of the Kelly in the Orient. During World War II, he served with the OSS and CIC in the China-Burma-India theater.

He is a graduate of Yale University and the Intelligence Department of the Army sent him to the College of Foreign Service at Georgetown University. He plans to return to the Far East as soon as possible.

Tonight Korba will speak on the Far Eastern situation and will also present background information on the current controversy between the Dutch and the Indonesians. He will describe the living conditions and racial manners of the Burmese, Chinese and Japanese.

After the lecture, a 30 minute discussion will be held by members of the organization and Mr. Korba. Included in the program will be Tommy Powers, local athlete, who played with the United States All-Stars baseball team against the Canadian team in the recent international Amateur All-Star games in Baltimore.

Medals Presented To 14 Ex-Marines

Thirteen ex-Marines were awarded World War II Victory Medals and an ex-gunnery sergeant was presented both the Victory Medal and the American Defense medals in ceremonies at the local Marine Reserve Armory last night by Maj. Remsen J. Cole, commander of the local Marine Reserve company.

Maj. Cole announced at the meeting that three men, Robert D. Powers, 716 Sylvan Avenue, Eugene R. Bolyard, 535 Yale Street, and Stanley Barnhart, 707 Virginia Avenue, made application for duty with Company D, Fifth Infantry Battalion. Pvt. John A. Sensabaugh, 110 North Cedar Street, was accepted into the unit.

Both American Defense and the Victory Medal were awarded to a retired gunnery sergeant, Raymond F. Neel. Those receiving the Victory Medal were Curtis Kime, 128 Monroe Street, acting desk sergeant at City Police headquarters, John R. Manley, first lieutenant with the local reserve unit. Charles E. Gilford, 456 Goethe Street.

Others were Calvin Allen Ruhl, 525 Furnace Street, Otis L. Bean, 16 Laing Avenue, Wendell R. Boggs, Route 2, Williams Road, James T. Barnhart, 307 Arch Street, Everett Leo Beeman, Braddock Road, Harry A. Woods, Sr., LaVale, Robert W. Plummer, 135 New Hampshire Avenue, Charles F. Davis, 706 Brookfield Avenue, George E. Gormer. 201 Mary Street, and Eugene F. Clark, 401 Race Street.

After the weekly drill period, members of Company D were measured for the new service winter uniform.

MAKING HISTORY—The picture above, taken at the local airport, shows the first transfer by plane from Cumberland to another city of a hospital patient, in this case, Mrs. Flo M. Watson, Warren, Ohio, who was injured in an accident on Bedford Road August 16 in which Espy W. Growden, 70, Route 3, Bedford Road, was fatally hurt. In the picture (left to right) are William Kight, whose ambulance was used to transfer Mrs. Watson from Allegany Hospital to the plane; Alec James Watson, Mrs. Watson's husband; Byron Kight, of the Kight ambulance service; Ardell Wilkins, the pilot; Ed Musser (back to camera), co-pilot, and Rita Small Arnt, registered nurse. The transfer and flight were made on Monday.

China's Plight Is Described By David Zysman

Warns Local Groups Of Red Influences

"In China one can evaluate the staggering price a simple people have to pay for tolerating the spread of communism and national disunity," David Zysman, lecturer and writer who formerly managed Radio Station XCDN, "The Voice of Democracy" in Shanghi, until it was seized by the Japanese, said here yesterday.

Zysman addressed the Cumberland Rotary Club yesterday, spoke over WTBO last evening and addressed Western Maryland Lodge No. 1507 B'Nai B'Rith last night at B'er Chayim Temple.

He declared that although the United States defeated the Japanese and has rendered great assistance to the Chinese, Soviet armies have looted Manchuria, China's richest industrial province and dismantled whatever could be carted away. When the Japanese were defeated, Chinese communists turned their guns on fellow Chinese, Zysman declared, and the country is still war-ridden and destitute.

Communist Seek Control

Zysman who was in China from 1934 until 1945 and served as assistant headmaster of the Shanghai Jewish High School part of that time declared, "Communism is out to gain control of the largest country in the world by force."

The Civil War in China is not merely a Chinese problem," he continued. "It is an international problem which requires an international solution. Like the Communist menace in Greece, which does not only concern the Greek but all freedom-loving people, so the Communist invasion of China is and should be of great importance to the democratic world."

Zysman praised the "Truman Plan" and the "Marshall Plan", but declared that unless these plans are adopted by the United States and effectively executed, the cause of liberty in Europe and in Asia may be lost by default.

Describing conditions in China, Zysman said the average Chinese village has changed little in 2,000 years and the average Chinese peasant in his entire lifetime has never seen the equivalent of $10 American.

Peace Is Needed

The core of the Chinese problem, he declared is the individual deplorable destitution, and it is this fact and condition which makes an excellent breeding ground for the spread of Communism and Red influences, he explained.

Many Chinese strive toward Western democracy, but many do not wish to change. The Nationalist Party is not without fault, he said, and the Chinese must liberalize and streamline their government.

"China's admittedly slim hope is that both parties will realize that their continued conflict can lead to China's complete ruination and will lay down their arms", he said. "The Communists are difficult to appease. China's more substantial expectation is that the United States will render sufficient help to overcome obstacles facing China's unification and reconstruction. This assistance", he concluded, "will not only benefit China, but ultimately will be of importance to the United States as well."

Meeting On Traffic Slated This Morning

Representatives of 11 or 12 local organizations are expected to meet this morning with officials of the Cumberland Police Department to begin a study of the local traffic situation, Acting Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn said yesterday.

Called for 10 a. m. in the Public Safety Building, the meeting will initiate plans to correct traffic conditions in the business section.

In his letter of invitation, Flynn said he is in hope of putting on a traffic squad to faciliate the handling of traffic in the city, and he told the organizations that their ideas will be appreciated.

Service Will Be Held Tonight For R. Holt Hitchins

Prominent Frostburg Architect Succumbs

A funeral service will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the residence for Robert Holt Hitchins, 55, prominent Frostburg architect and a veteran of World War I, who was found dead in bed yesterday morning at his home, Depot Terrace, as the result of a heart attack suffered during the night.

Rev. Watson E. Holley, pastor of First Methodist Church, Frostburg, will officiate. The body will be taken to Arlington National Cemetery tomorrow morning for interment with military honors.

Members of Frostburg Lodge No. 470, B.P.O. Elks, of which Mr. Hitchins was a member, conducted an Elks service at the residence last night.

Mr. Hitchins, who designed Cumberland's present Post Office, Fort Hill High School, Beall High School in Frostburg, Cresaptown School and many other buildings in this area, had been in failing health in recent years, but remained active and had planned to make a trip yesterday.

Born In Frostburg

A native of Frostburg, Mr. Hitchins was a son of Mrs. Margaret Hitchins and the late Joseph H. Hitchins. He attended Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa., Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, from which he was graduated after completing a course in architecture and architectural designing.

While at Gettysburg College, Mr. Hitchins became acquainted with Frederick A. Muhlenburg, then a student at the college and now one of the country's leading church architects, whom he consulted frequently in connection with designs for churches in this area.

Mr. Hitchins enlisted in the Army at Oklahoma City, Okla., June 10, 1917, and after training at various camps he was sent overseas with a group of engineers. He served as a lieutenant with Company E and F, First Gas Regiment, at St. Mihiel and in the battle of Meuse-Argonne. He was gassed October 4, 1918, and after returning to this country he received his honorable discharge December 4, 1918.

One of the first men of this section to receive the Purple Heart medal during World War I, Mr. Hitchins was employed for a number of years as a sales engineer for the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company. After his war service, however, he returned to Frostburg and practiced his profession in this area until his death.

Received Recognition

He received wide recognition last December when an architectural magazine with nationwide circulation carried a picture of Beall High School on its cover, with a story concerning the structure and its designer.

During the past year Mr. Hitchins had been working on plans for a new high school building at Greensburg, Pa., and had partially completed plans for a new American Legion home in Frostburg. He joined Farrady Post No. 24 in the early days of its history and designed several attractive floats for the Frostburg post, one of which was reproduced in the American Legion magazine.

Alvin R. Ingram Named Commander Of Purple Heart Chapter Here

Alvin R. Ingram, 306 Fifth Street, veteran of World War II, was elected commander of Mountain Chapter No. 166, Military Order of Purple Heart at their annual election Monday night. He succeeds John W. Pownall.

Ingram, who is employed on GI-job training at the White-Haines Optical Company here, was wounded in action in the Battle of the Bulge.

Elected to serve with him are, John R. Mills, 406 Chestnut Street, senior vice commander; Herbert R. McFarland, LaVale, junior vice commander; John W. Pownall, 833 Shriver Avenue, finance officer; Earl Smith, 110 Mullan Street, sergeant-at-arms; Stephen Bassel, 424 Walnut Street, re-elected historian; James H. Reichart, Holland Street, department executive committeeman; Charles W. Harper, 704 Patterson Avenue, alternate; Abe Loundy, 924 Bedford Street, trustee; George M. Leib, 722 Fayette Street, adjutant.

All the officers except Leib, Harper and Pownall are veterans of the recent war, while these three served in World War I.

Harry Iles, Jr., was named chairman of the installation committee to arrange for an installation ceremony and dinner at the Shrine Country Club later this month.

Leib said last night the Chapter has been notified that ten M103 rifles for use of a ceremonial firing squad will be shipped from an arsenal in New Jersey in the next ten days.

It was also announced that a delegation from the local Chapter will go to Baltimore tonight to participate in the opening of the new home of Baltimore Chapter N. 122.

Driver Of Bakery Truck Fined After Crash; Three Hurt

Accident Occurs North Of Hancock

The driver of an Ort Brothers Bakery truck paid fines of $27.50 yesterday afternoon on two charges filed against him following an accident near Warfordsburg, Pa., in which three Florida residents were injured, two of them seriously, according to Pennsylvania State Police at McConnellsburg.

Officers listed the truck driver as Clarence Edward Taylor, Cook's Mill, near Hyndman, Pa., and said he entered pleas of guilty before Justice of the Peace Thomas Gordon, Needmore, Pa., to charges of operating without a valid operator's license and attempting to pass in the face of oncoming traffic.

Taylor, heading toward Warfordsburg, pulled from behind a tractor-trailer truck to pass and crashed headon with the oncoming sedan driven by Vaughn A. Freeman, Orlando, Fla., on a straight stretch of road about three miles north of Hancock on Route 522, police said.

Taylor escaped with minor cuts, officers reported, but Freeman and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Freeman, Orlando, were taken to Washington County Hospital, Hagerstown, for treatment.

John Freeman was admitted for treatment of possible fractures of the skull and spine and his wife for a fractured leg. Their conditions were said to be serious. Vaughn Freeman was less seriously hurt, suffering cuts and bruises.

The accident happened about 10:45 a. m., according to investigators from the McConnellsburg State Police Barracks.

City Officials To Go To Baltimore

Arrangements will be made by Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineering consultants to the city, for local officials to attend a conference in Baltimore next week regarding plans for the crosstown viaduct, Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday.

Mayor Post said he received a letter from Gustav J. Requardt, senior partner of the engineering firm, informing him that the State Roads Commission will welcome an application by Cumberland for state funds to design and construct the structure.

The mayor commented that the viaduct is virtually the city's "No. one project" because of present traffic congestion in the downtown section.

Will Submit Report

Stating that the City of Baltimore is planning to apply for state funds shortly for a similar project, Requardt said Cumberland should not delay its negotiations for such funds.

He asked for a list of tentative dates suitable for the conference, and said the firm would submit its latest report on data, designs and estimated cost of the viaduct to Robert M. Reindollar, chairman of the State Roads Commission, asking for a conference with him on one of those dates.

The mayor suggested September 9, 10 or 11 as dates for the conference, in his reply to Requardt's letter. He said he would probably be accompanied by City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett, City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer and James Alfred Avirett, chairman of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission.

Requardt said that steps to be taken in regard to the viaduct project are as follows:

1. Appropriation of engineering funds, the selection of engineering design personnel and the preparation of complete detailed contract drawings and specifications for the work.

2. Appropriation of funds, letting of contracts and actual construction.

Requardt Will Attend

Requardt said his firm will attend the conference with the State Roads Commission and will give all possible help toward securing the viaduct for Cumberland.

In an overall report submitted to the planning and zoning commission early last month, the firm listed the project as among the most important for the city, along with flood control, water supply and sewerage improvements.

Cost of the crosstown viaduct has been estimated at $1,900,000, plus half a million for property ocsts. The Public Roads Administration, the State Roads Commission, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Western Maryland Railway are expected to share the cost with the city.

Girl, 14, Injured When Hit By Car At Bowling Green

A 14-year-old Route 6 girl was treated in Allegany Hospital last night for abrasions of the back suffered when she was struck by an automobile at the intersection of Route 220, Third Street and Roberts Place in Bowling Green about 8:50 p. m.

The girl, Sarah F. Valentine, was walking with two companions, Margaret Walbert and Barbara King, both of Bowling Green, when the accident occurred, according to State Trooper Thomas G. Barton, who investigated.

He said the driver of the car involved was Chester B. Campbell, 29, Cresaptown, and added that no charges were filed against him.

The trio of girls was walking on the roadway, with traffic toward Cumberland and Campbell, headed in the same direction, told police, they said, that he was blinded by lights of an oncoming vehicle.

When Campbell saw the girls, he swerved to avoid them but the Valentine girl, walking nearest the car, was struck by a hinge of the right rear door, according to Trooper Barton.

The girl is to return to the hospital this morning for X-rays.

Applications Expected For City Water Job

Several possible applicants for the post of superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, made vacant by the death last month of Charles J. Bruce, may come here in the near future, Water Commissioner William J. Edwards reported yesterday.

Edwards said he contacted several men who expressed interest in the post at the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Waterworks Association, which he attended last week in State College, Pa.

1,401 County Veterans Cash Terminal Pay Bonds

COLLEGE HEAD—Rev. Francis Xavier Talbot, S. J., is the new president of Loyola College of Baltimore. Father Talbot is a former editor of the National Catholic weekly "America". He became the 20th president of the college, which is operated by the Jesuit Order.

Banks Release Total Of $298,407.45

Thirteen financial institutions in Allegany County, cashed a total of 1,401 terminal leave pay bonds for veterans yesterday, releasing $298,407.45 in cash.

The Second National Bank of Cumberland handled the largest number of bond-cashing customers, redeeming 210 for $42,828. Fewest bonds were cashed by the First National Bank of Barton, where three were converted to cash of a little more than $500. An official there said, "we know most of these fellows and did everything we could to get them to hold their bonds. A few hundred dollars a few years from now, might be worth more than it is today. Of course we dont refuse to cas hthem, we just try to discourage them."

In Cumberland, and other towns in the county, bank facilities were exhausted to handle the bond-cashers. All banks required identification in one form or another, but only one bank was refusing to accept discharge certificates as proper identification.

Veterans Stand In Lines

Before banks opened their doors for business, lines had formed and after the 2 p. m. closing hour, there were still up to 20 men in each bank, who had to be served after the doors closed. There was no confusion, only waiting, on the veterans who were accustomed to standing in line for long periods while in the service.

Bankers generally said "it is unfortunate so many cashed their bonds. They draw more interest than the boys can get on their money elsewhere, and many of them will need it later."

One county banker declared, "many of our bond-cashers were local 52-20 Club boys," and in Cumberland, it was noted that some of the first in one line, were fellows who are not regularly employed.

Bank officials said few gave reasons for cashing their bonds, although some were under the impression they had to cash them now if they expected to redeem them. One bank clerk said he had a couple of veterans decide to keep their bonds, when they learned cashing now is not mandatory.

Some Offer Good Reasons

On the other hand, many cashed their bonds to reduce business indebtedness, pay off notes, buy furniture, clear up standing bills, pay taxes, apply the money to mortgages, or other sound reasons. Many of the bond-cashers were veterans enrolled for GI-training at schools and colleges. Some just cashed them because they wanted "to feel a bundle of folding money," one banker said.

According to figures obtained from the individual banks, the largest single bond cashed totaled, with interest, $682.46. Several others near this amount were reported. The average bond however was between $200 and $300. Bonds were issued in multiples of $25 to compensate enlisted men for unused furlough time and ration allowances.

The figures by banks follow:

	Number	Amount
Cumberland
Second National	210	$42,828.00
Cumberland Savings	147	37,664.00
Liberty Trust	167	37,527.70
Peoples Bank	149	33,333.10
Commercial Savings	145	30,299.60
First National	136	25,087.13
First Federal Loan	61	10,967.26
Frostburg
Frostburg National	116	24,700.00
Fidelity Savings	75	14,000.00
Lonaconing
Liberty Trust	82	18,000.00
Westernport
Citizens National	70	15,000.00
Mt. Savage
First National	40	8,500.00
Barton
First National	3	500.00
County Totals	1,401	$298,407.45

Report First Cashers

Five of the banks reported the name of the first veterans to cash his bond, and these five men became simultaneously the first veterans in Cumberland to receive their terminal leave payments.

Cumberland Savings Bank reported Wesley J. Shanholtz, 123 Roberts Street, presented his bond for $175 and received $182.64 with the interest added. Shanholtz, 22, was in the Army 31 months, serving 25 months overseas with the 169th Infantry in the South Pacific.

Liberty Trust Company had Raymond P. Chaney, Wiley Ford, employed as a trackman by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, as first in line. Chaney cashed a bond for $205, receiving $209.99. He served four and one half years, including 31 months overseas in the Pacific.

First at the Commercial Savings Bank was Joseph M. Stafford, RFD

Accident Occurs Near Franklin

A Parsons youth was killed yesterday afternoon when the truck in which he and two men were riding crashed into a house in Brandywine, W. Va. Another Parsons boy was critically injured at Bretz, W. Va., when he was struck by a car on West Virginia Route 219 yesterday.

Charles Guy Floyd, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Floyd, Parsons, was instantly killed when the truck driven by Boone Slaven, also of Parsons, went out of control and ran into a house in the town which is 15 miles from Franklin.

According to Joseph Gillis, the owner of the machine, Slaven and James Collins, Parsons, and the victim were all riding in the cab of the truck which was not carrying a load. Collins and Slaven were uninjured, he said.

Young Floyd was a member of Boy Scout Troop 97, Parsons, the First Methodist Church, the Tucker County Boy's Sports Club and would have been a student in the sixth grade at Parsons Grade School this year.

He is survived by his parents, one brother, Deets, at home; and five sisters, Miss Alberta Floyd, Mrs. Joseph Sloan and Mrs. Florence Bolyard, all of Grafton; and Arlene and Dorothy Rose, at home.

James Leo Barkley, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Whetsel Barkley, Bretz, W. Va., was taken to Tucker County Hospital yesterday at 2 p. m. after he was struck by a car operated by Frederick Burtcher, Hendricks.

Hospital attaches said the boy's condition was critical and stated he had suffered a double fracture of the skull.

Butcher, a student at Parsons High School, told West Virginia State Trooper C. E. Burke, and Tucker County Sheriff D. E. Crosten, who investigated, that the Barkley boy ran in front of his machine as he was driving on Route 219 near Parsons. Butcher took the child to the hospital.

SIGNS TO BE PLACED ON UTILITY POLES

Following a conference yesterday with representatives of the Potomac Edison Company and the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Mayor Thomas S. Post reported an agreement was reached to permit use of utility poles in the downtown section when street signs are installed by the city.

Mayor Post explained that on many intersections, telephone and electric light poles occupy the four corners, leaving no room for the erection of sign standards. He added that City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer is making a check to determine how many utility poles will be used.

Steel brackets are planned for attaching the two-way metal street signs to the poles. Regular sign standards will be used at intersections where there is room for them, the mayor added.

The city has requested information from various sign manufacturers regarding the probable length of time before delivery. One company previously reported it could not make delivery inside of six to eight months.

Street Commissioner Myers G. Light and Rizer attended the conference. It is planned to order 200 street signs.

Former Resident Featured In Film

Frank Neill, formerly of this city, a son of Mrs. J. Fred Neill, of Potomac State School, Keyser, W. Va., has a feature role in the new Monogram film, "Gentleman Joe Palooka," which was shown at the Maryland Theatre this week.

Neill, who served as a war correspondent for INS during the early stages of Word War II and later as a sergeant in the Marine Corps, portrays a sports writer, along with Tom Harmon, former All-American halfback from Michigan.

While attending West Virginia University, Neill was selected in 1937 as "the nation's outstanding college undergraduate" by College Analysts, Inc. He was elected president of his senior class, edited the year book and comic monthly, was vice-president of the Inter-fraternity Council, headed the University dance committee and was a member of numerous honorary groups.

He is a graduate of Allegany High School here, and was active in local scholastic affairs. As a youngster, he was a star player on several basketball teams, and played two seasons with the Presbyterian Sunday School team in the YMCA-Sunday School League.

Neill is with the International News Service in Los Angeles, Calif., and is now a West Coast Sports Editor. He and several other West Coast newspapermen took feature roles in the sports film, "just for the fun of it." Also in the film with Neill is Bill Becker, Associated Press sports writer on the West Coast.

Frank is a brother of Robert Neill, local insurance adjuster.

Hi-Y, Tri-Hi-Y Organizations Plan Officer's Conference This Weekend

Thirty members of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y organizations in county schools are expected to attend an officer's conference to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Pleasant Valley recreation area near Bittinger, Garrett County, according to Winfield H. Adams, program and boys' secretary of Central YMCA.

Nine clubs, including two at Allegany High, three at Fort Hill, two in Westernport and one each in Frostburg and Piedmont, W. Va., high schools, will be represented.

The session will begin Friday afternoon, and Rev. James A. Richards, pastor of First Methodist Church, will give a talk on "Youth on the March" at the evening program.

On Saturday morning the group will divide into classes for presidents, vice presidents, secretaries, treasurers and chaplains for discussions of the general topic "My Job as an Officer."

Leaders of the respective groups will be Roy W. Eves, manager of the bolt and forge shops of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and treasurer of Central YMCA; Miss E. Jane Gilchrist, secretary of the YMCA board of directors; Lloyd Rawlings, past president of the "Y"; Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, rector of St. James Episcopal Church, Westernport and Adam.

In the afternoon the group will discuss the general topic, "Foundations of a Good Club." On Saturday evening David McIntyre, past president of Bruce Hi-Y Club, Westernport, and Barbara Bright, president of the Allegany Tri-Hi-Y Club, will speak on the meaning of the respective organizations.
